'Father Knows Best' in Doubt for Time

OHS Seniors Perform to Big Crowd

The senior class of O'Neill high school presented a three-act comedy, "Father Knows Best", to a near-record crowd Friday night at the public school auditorium. Earlier the production, coached by Mrs. Harvey Tompkins, had been presented to grade school students.

In the scene pictured by the camera, the police matron (Nancy Fetrow) is returning to bewildered parents the two missing teenagers, Ralph (Larry Frisch) and Betty (Jeanette Fricke). The story represented a few hours of life in the somewhat amusing Anderson family.

On this particular evening the family's washing machine has broken down (a serviceman comes and does battle with errant kids in the family, also neighboring kids), a group from the garden club drops in informally while police are searching for the teenagers. (Police were brought into the act by a jittery father whose daughter, Betty, was on her first date).

All this transpired as the nervous father, Mr. Anderson (Perry Dawes) was attempting to close an insurance contract with a manufacturing executive new to the town.

The executive, Mr. Brinkworth (Veldon Tomlinson) turns out to be Ralph's father, Ralph (Frisch), and they had made off with the Anderson family car. Kathy, another Anderson daughter, happens to be entertaining an equally distressing teenager girl friend. Their untimely on-stage appearances frustrated the nervous Mr. Anderson.

Mrs. Woolsey (Karen Hartront) and Mrs. Wembly (Elaine Krugman) are do-gooding ladies about town and proceeded to rearrange the Anderson household to the consternation of Mrs. Anderson (Betty Rodman), who was sharing Mr. Anderson's burdens and couldn't have been made happier by a sudden departure of the gardener.

Mr. Anderson attempted to remain cool and calm by the events.

However, invariably he became rattled, confused others, made miserable decisions, but, like in most stories, the next morning dawned with a better day.

Others in the cast were: Kathy, Elaine Miller; Bud, Sonny Kukera; Jamie, Lois Nelson; Ramona, Nancy Devall; Patty, Cherrion Knepper; repairman, Merle Pease; Bud's friend, Allen Reynolds; Mrs. Jones, Sharon Marcellus.

Mrs. Gillespie Hostess—Mrs. Bennett Gillespie was hostess to the 9FF club Wednesday evening.

Schindler-Charf Nuptials Read

The fitted bodice featured tiny lace covered buttons down the front with a scalloped neckline and long tapering sleeves that came to bridal points over the wrist. The skirt had three flounces of lace with a show of tulle ruffles in the back. Her veil was in ballerina style with a clip-
