STUART - St. Paul Methodist church in Omaha was the scene of a 7:30 p.m., wedding Saturday. November 22, when Miss Mary Lou Kitto of Omaha, foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rinne of Burchard, and Marvin Earl Mitchell of Omaha, son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlin Mitchell of Stuart, were united in marriage.

Rev. Alva Clark performed the double-ring ceremony at the flower-flanked altar in the church

Vocal selections were "Story of Ruth" and "Wedding Prayer" Given in marriage by her foster father, the bride appeared in a ballerina-length gown of imported tulle and french lace over taffeta The elongated, pointed bodice featured a V-neckline outlined with an overlay of lace and with folds of tulle. The sleeves of tulle were long with bridal points. A bouffant skirt featured an apronette effect of tulle edged with French lace and revealing a cascade of tulle ruffles down the back. Her elbow length veil of imported illusion was held by a jeweled crown. She carried a bridal bouquet of butterfly orchids and stephanotis on a white Bible.

Miss Ruth Merrill, friend of the bride, as maid-of-honor wore a copper colored taffeta sheath with scoop neckline and cap sleeves. A velvet cummerbund topped the slim skirt and the bouffant harem overskirt worn over the sheath. She carried an arrangement of copper colored mums.

Warren Mitchell of Lincoln, twin brother of the bridegroom, served as bestman.

Ushers were Fred Mitchell of Columbus, brother of the bride-groom and Eugene VanHove of Omaha. The men wore dark suits with white carnation boutonnieres. The bride's foster mother chose mosiac blue, and the bridegroom's mother wore grey suit dresses and each wore white rosebud corsages. wore a rosebud corsage.
