O'Neill Firemen on the Jump; Battle 5 Blazes in 4 Days

Electrical Wiring In Three O'Neill Homes Burn Monday Morning

The O'Neill fire department answered five fire calls during the week, three of which were electrical and which occurred at the same time Monday morning. Electrical wiring in three homes in the northeast residential section of the city began burning at the same time at 9 a.m. The first alarm sent one fire truck to the John Hines home at the corner of Eighth and East Benton streets. The siren had no sooner subsided on the first alarm when firemen were called to the Arthur Ennen residence on the corner of Eighth and East Benton. Firemen were forced to punch into the back porch roof to get at the source of the fire -more electri-The third fire reported was at the Gene Wolf home in the same section of town where a wire leading to the hot water heater began to burn its insulation. Damage in all three homes was limited to smoke damage and the wiring itself.

K. L. Van Voorhis, manager of Consumers, said electrical systems were being changed over at the time the fires occurred. He said investigation did not show the exact cause but said that it could have been the result of a mistake on the part of Consumers men in touching a hot wire to the ground or that it could have been faulty grounding in the homes.

Van Voorhis said the city lacks neutral grounds in the area where the fires occurred and said Consumers were taking precautions in that area.

He said no new wiring projects are allowed in homes without neutral grounds, but that all three homes had been built before this rule was made

He explained that more neutral grounds are needed in sandy parts of the country The manager said that Consumers men had investigated the wiring in the area where the fires occurred for several hours but were unable to find the exact cause. "All we know for sure is that some neutral grounds got hot and that some of the circuits were overloaded." Van Voorhis also said that his men had found fuses too large for the circuits in one of the homes but did not believe that was the cause of the trouble.

Firemen also answered two grass fire alarms, during the week, one a mile southwest of O'Neill at the Sherman turkey farm Saturday and at the Joe Jareske farm one mile south of the city on Mon-

Little damage was reported at either place and firemen had the blazes out in a matter of minutes.
