Tree Planting Interest Grows

Interest in tree planting has mounted as a result of the winter storms that have produced significant evidence of the need for protection in various places.

Now is an excellent time to take stock of your tree planting needs. For if you find that snow is blocking a road, feed lot or your farm yard, consider how it might be prevented by a well located shelter belt or wind break.

Elmer Juracek is one of the Holt Soil and Water Conservation District cooperators who three years ago decided that a new shelter belt could eliminate the need for snow removal on the road just north of his place. He stated this week that even though the trees are only three years old, the corner had been free from snow this winter and he had not had to spend time opening the road at that location.

Soil Conservation Service technicians are available to help you in planning your needs for any type tree planting and trees are available either through the local Soil and Water Conservation District office or the Clarke-McNary Forestry Project.

143 Businesses Listed In O'Neill

Statistics released today by Howard P. Wade, district manager of the Omaha office of Dun Bradstreet, Inc., taken from a physical count of names in the Dun & Bradstreet Reference book for January, 1960, shows a total of 243 manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers in O'Neill.

The Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book lists all manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers who seek or grant commercial credit. It does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers, and real estate brokers. Therefore, the figures for businesses in O'Neill would actually be higher than the figure quoted above.

Legion Auxiliary
 Twenty-nine members of the American Legion Auxiliary unit met Feb. 3 for their regular meeting. Before the business meeting, Alvin Hesse, county service officer spoke regarding old and new veteran's pension laws. Announcement was made of a an idea for a "Time Saver" in the kitchen.

Mrs. Frank McDonald was the winner of the secret box. Mrs. McDonald gave a very interesting and helpful lesson on "More Meals for your Money."

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Albert Carson on March 2nd.

Anna C. Carson, reporter

The Eagle News extension club met January 19 at the home of Mrs. Neil Hipke with 10 members present. Mrs. Harold Coburn joined the club. Mystery sisters names were drawn for the coming year. A quiz on parliamentary procedure was given.

Next lesson will be "More Meals for your Money" at Mrs. George Mellor's home on Feb. 16.

Discuss Plays
 Ash Grove auxiliary met at the hall on Tuesday, Feb. 2 for the first meeting of the year. An election of officers was held.

Elected were: Mrs. Merle Spangler, president; Mrs. Lysie Johnson, vice-president; Mrs. Raymond Soucek, treasurer and Mrs. Bill Derickson, secretary.

Quilt blocks to embroider were given each member. The possibility of giving a 3-act or several one act plays was discussed.

4-H Club Notes

On January 27 the Happy Helpers 4-H club met in the IOOF hall. The meeting was called to order with the flag pledge and the 4-H pledge. For roll call each member named the projects she intends to take. Thirty-seven members attended.

A committee of three girls was named to clean up after meetings. A year-book was given to each member. The books will be filled out at the project meetings. The members voted to buy a flag set.

Connie Johnson, reporter

The "Groom Your Room" project meeting of the Happy Helpers 4-H club met Wednesday, Feb. 3 after school at their leader, Mrs. Dale Perry's home. Eight members were present. Demonstration of "Making a Bed" was given by Judy Milnar and Margaret Conway. We filled out our new year books.

Next meeting will be March 3 at Dale Perry's.

Mrs. Michaelis To Start New Frontier Column

A hundred men may make an encampment, but it takes a woman to make a home.—Chinese proverb.

Hi Everyone:
 Today we are introducing a new column in The Frontier. It will be for you ladies and mothers with problems and ideas.

I will be very glad to receive your letters containing any ideas that may help to put "a bit of a spark" to the column.

This column will be made up chiefly of your ideas, recipes, household hints and any short cuts you may send to me. There are those clever sayings of small children you wish to pass on to our readers. Maybe you have an interesting game or idea for parties.

With gardening and house cleaning chores soon to begin, you may know of some little tricks which may make it a might easier for someone else.

It's a neighborly gesture for all of us to exchange our ideas over the backyard fence, so to speak, and that is what I would like to see this column become a neighborly get-together each week.

There will be the new ideas and suggestions put out by our various home economic departments of our universities. These ideas will be passed on to you through this column and you may be able to make use of them in your every day work.

When sending your contributions to this column address them to Mrs. Sarah Michaelis, Box 155, Inman, Nebraska. In your letter please let me know if you wish your name used as a contributor or would you prefer your initials or name at all.

Conservation Essay

Printed below is one of the winning conservation essays. It was written by Keith Krugman of District 17.

PASTURE CONSERVATION
 In my soil conservation work in 4-H during the past years I have found it very interesting and educational. I have found how to identify many different grasses and legumes. Also which grasses are the best to cover the ground so there would be less or no erosion in my pasture.

I also learned that there are many kinds of erosion that take place in a pasture, like blow outs and over flow.

Blow outs are sometimes caused by cattle being allowed to graze in one place for an unlimited time so the grass is killed out. Then wind is allowed to blow the sand away which causes a large hole. It is not taken care of immediately. The cattle can be drawn to different parts of the pasture by moving the salt box to that place.

You can also divide pastures by putting a fence through it so you can put the cattle in one part for a while. The cattle eat the grass on one side while the grass on the other side is having a rest. This will also, where it is necessary to have two wind mills, stop the cattle from trailing between the mills which will cause wind erosion.

Prairie dogs will also cause blow outs. They cause them by digging holes in the ground and killing the grass around the holes which will allow the wind to cause a blow out.

Over flow is when water runs over the soil and stands there part of the year. When water stands on the soil it will kill the grass, so it is necessary to have a drainage ditch. In this ditch grasses that should be planted are Northern Reed, Prairie Cordgrass and Reeds Canarygrass.

In order to keep a pasture in good condition we must take half and leave half. We must not take more than half of the grass because the good grasses will soon die out and the poorer grasses will take over. Then in order to get the pasture back into good range we, possibly have to spray the weeds, do mechanical treatment, or even defer for two or more years. To defer is to take the cattle out of the pasture entirely. This will allow the good grasses to go to seed. In another year the good grasses will soon start to crowd out the poorer grasses.

Krugman is Capped

Elaine Krugman, a member of the freshmen class at Immanuel Hospital School of Nursing in Omaha, received her cap February 7 in an impressive candlelight ceremony at Bloom Hall on the Immanuel Deaconess Institute campus.

Miss Krugman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Krugman of O'Neill. Also as a part of the ceremony, the students were presented their scarlet-lined navy capes.
