

Bus Gilman and his home grown Northern pike

Fish No Pikers Down at Amelia Says Bus Gilman

What need is there for a man to go to Canada on a fishing trip when he can catch an 11 pounder in his own back yard?

Amelia rancher Bus (Harold) Gilman can answer that question. He did it. Furthermore he's got the evidence to prove it in his deep freeze, a recently caught Northern pike.

Of course his back yard is a bit more extensive than that of city dwellers. He owns a neat ranch spread that is a part of the place where he was born and raised and the exact place he caught this home grown giant was in a private pond on a west quarter about a whoop and a holler from his home.

Private ponds are quick and easy in the flowing well area of the southern Holt County. Within a five mile radius of the little town of Amelia you can count at least 20. Nearly every ranch boasts one, some have more. (Maybe in time they'll specialize as they have in live stock and have a water pasture for each type of fish - blue gills, crappies, bull heads etc.) One thing sure, no one will make an enclosure especially for carp. That's a dirty word to pool owners! Once the carp enter they crowd out their more desirable relatives, therefore every precaution is taken to see that none get in.

These ponds are probably so popular because aside from their home entertainment value, their construction is simple. First a likely spot is selected in a place where cattle can be watered to a good advantage, then it is dozed out, dammed up and a hundred foot (Give or take a Little) well is put down. Within a few days the area is flooded. Now all that's left to do is plant your favorite finny crop, go on with the fence riding and hay cabling until the next summer rolls around, then start in reaping the results.

Rancher Gilman raises Hereford cattle on his green rolling acres but when it comes to the watery acres he changes color. Blue gills are a good stand by breed he says with a sizable herd of perch and bass to take up the slack in an off season. The pike were added more or less as an experiment. An experiment that paid off, we'd say.

Mrs. Gilman who is not quite such an enthusiastic angler as her husband, wishes he'd get the big fish off display to make more room in the freezer for beef.

CHEVROLET

OUT WHERE THE COUNTRY CAN TEAR A TRUCK TO PIECES—

Chevy middleweights get 1/3 more work done in a day!

Where they used to deliver 2,300 gallons of liquefied petroleum gas in other trucks, Petrolane Gas Service of Long Beach, California, can now deliver 3,500 gallons a day! That's 7 days a week usually, over back trails and up into high rock country with maximum GVW loads. And with Chevy's Torsion-Spring Ride paving every foot of the way! "You don't get any more jolting on washboard roads than you do in a passenger car, or any sideway on curves," says driver Bernie Stone. "I used to take some rough roads at from 5 to 8 miles an hour. Now I can go 30 over them." Petrolane has over 200 Chevrolets hauling for them.

If you think we're excited about Chevy's independent front suspension, you ought to talk to the truck owners who are profiting by it. They'll tell you Chevy's torsion-spring design is the hottest thing to hit the industry since trucks began. Drive one—that's the proof, short and sweet.
