Set Study for Trout Rearing

The possibility of trout rearing ponds at Grove lake near Royal will be investigated by the Nebraska Game commission, announced LeRoy Bahensky, Game Commissioner.

"Within the next week we will begin the survey," Bahensky said. "Grove lake is fed by cold spring water and it has always had some trout in it."

If rearing ponds are deemed feasible, fingerling trout would be brought in from the Game Commission hatcheries.

"Eastern Nebraskans took so rapidly to trout fishing at Two Rivers Recreation area that we have to make plans now for securing trout for this area next spring. If we can operate rearing ponds at Grove lake, we will have an additional supply of adult trout for Two Rivers.

Co. Committee Members Meet to Make Long-Range Extensions Plans

The 45 member County Committee met Tuesday morning at the Courthouse annex to make long range plans for what they felt the people of Holt county wanted the Holt County Extension Service to provide information on, based on research on national, state and local levels.

The committee was composed of homemakers, ranchers, farmers, businessmen, newspapers, radio, agricutural agencies, church groups, schools, farm organizations, chamber of commerce and other groups. Again this year the committee selected four major areas of study: community and family life, family unit living, farming and ranching.

Each person chose one of the areas according to their interests. These groups or sub-committees met in the afternoon and reviewed the work done by the committee five years ago and the results and accompishments since that time. They then made changes based on the present and long time needs in the county. Present situations were determined and goals were

The sub-committee brought back their findings and recommendations to the full county committee and the county committee report was turned over to the Extension Board for use in making their annual plan of work that helps meet the needs.

O'Neill citizens will be asked to vote again on the $465,000 bond issue to buy the site, build and equip a new high school for O'-Neill. The election will be Decem-

First legal notice of the new election is running today in the Frontier.

School board officials are asking the same amount the voters rejected in the November 8 election. The amount includes funds for the site and building and furnishing the proposed building. Henry Lohaus, school board president, said the board would furnish speakers for organizations or groups wishing to hear explanations of the proposal. Requests for speakers may be directed to any of the board members, he said.

Some confusion arose during the last election regarding th voter qualifications in the school bond issue. The law lists the following requirements for a legal voter in a school bond issue; Every citizen of the United States who has resided in the district 40 days, and Who is 21 or more years old,

Who owns real or personal pro-perty that was assessed in the district in his name in the last general assessment, or Whose spouse owns real or personal property that was assessed in the name of said spouse, or Who has children of school age residing in the district, shall be entitled to vote in any district meeting or school election. An attorney general's opinion has ruled that paying taxes on an automobile or truck in the district meets the requirements on property assessments.

Survey Shows 233 Persons Seek Jobs in Industry

More than 230 persons have responded to the labor survey questionnaire recently sent_out by the O'Neill Chamber of Commerce new industry committee, Chamber Secretary, Howard Manson said Wednesday.

Included in the returns are 113 men and 120 women. Returns from this first group will be sent to the Nebraska Resources division at Lincoln immediately, Manson said.

Questionnaire forms also be made available to high school seniors, Manson said. Requests should be dir ected to him in the office of the Clerk of District Court in O'-

Neill. The survey is being taken at the request of the state resources division and a representative of an eastern inlustrial firm interested in setting up a branch plant in O'Neill, Later, aerial photos of the town and possible industrial sites will be forwarded to be included with the survey. Other informa-tion needed includes tax levies, condition and numbers churches and schools.
