Considerable Traffic is Expected Between Nebraska, Washington

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
LINCOLN — Nebraska's new governor, Democrat Frank Morrison of Lincoln, hit the charmed circle after 20 years in politics. Morrison, 53-year-old attorney, the state's 31st chief executive and the 24th Democrat, takes office in January. Until then, he says, he doesn't plan to make any major appointments.

switched parties in the 1930s. He added that he never votes a straight ticket.
Shortly after his election, Morrison conferred with Republican Gov. Dwight Burney and made rounds of the statehouse, getting set for a "smooth transition" in January.
Morrison carried five counties in the general election and won the chief executive's post by big margins in populous Lancaster and Douglas counties.

There were 41,670 industrial accidents in Nebraska last year, an increase of 4,322. That's the report from Albert Arms, presiding judge of the Nebraska Workmen's Compensation Court.
The total ranked second only to the 1945-46 fiscal year when there were 41,412 mishaps. During the 1959-60 fiscal year which ended in July, Arms reported benefits paid out to those injured amounted to $4.2 million.

It is expected there will be considerable traffic between Nebraska and Washington, D. C. in the coming months. Coming home will be the flock of Republicans who have served under the administration of President Eisenhower. Replacing them are expected to be several Nebraska Democrats.

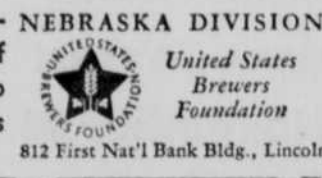

One Nebraskan already has a high position in the administration of John Kennedy. He is Ted Sorenson, named special counsel to Kennedy. Sorenson, of Lincoln, and Robert Kennedy have been top advisors to the President-elect.
Among those Republicans returning will be Secretary of Interior Fred Seaton and Ambassador to Denmark Val Peterson.

GLEANINGS from our Heritage of Freedom

"The condition to which God hath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance."
— John Philpot Curran

In our heritage of good living—beer belongs. As a beverage of moderation it contributes to friendly occasions and moments of good cheer. Enjoy it!

compared with $1.5 million in the 1945-46 period.

Part of the boost in accidents, the judge said in an annual report, can be traced to missile construction work in Eastern Nebraska. He also felt that employers in the Cornhusker state may be doing a more thorough job of turning in accidents since most of the boost involved less serious types of mishaps.

Proposed Homes

Proposed rules, to become effective July 1, 1961, require state licensing for operation of homes for the aged or infirm. The State Board of Health will set up the rules, which also call for complete drawings on location of furniture and fixtures in the homes in all rooms.

The proposed rules also require that persons residing in such homes get their mail unopened, have access to a telephone, be able to receive visitors in privacy, be allowed to attend church, and see a movie unless good cause can be shown to the contrary.

Budget Hearings

Budget hearings jointly by Republican Gov. Dwight Burney and Democratic Governor-elect Frank Morrison set for stage in government spending the next two years. Also in hearings both men will make recommendations to the next Legislature.

One of the big problems will be what to do about higher education which is lighting the salary problem yet and compensation from other schools for faculty. The University of Nebraska is seeking $3.8 million more in tax funds and the four teachers colleges at Wayne, Chadron, Peru and Kearney $2.7 million more.

Final hearing base for state spending in the Legislature. But senators go almost always with recommendations of the important budget committee which holds its own hearings and submits independent of the governor totals.
