

Another way to prevent water from freezing is simply to let it run continuously, as this poultry producer is doing. For best results with poultry, water shouldn't be too cold and drain should handle all surplus water without backing up. Use of a wire base around waterer is one of the best ways to keep litter dry and prevent any mess.

Cut operating costs of an automatic heated fountain by locating it in a sheltered area if possible. When buying, get the smallest size that will provide ample water at all times without excessive crowding. Another way to cut electrical costs is to insulate the waterer and place covers over any unused outlets of cattle waterers. Adjust the thermostat or buy a waterer which has a thermostat set at 45 degrees. In one test, setting the thermostat at 45 degrees saved more than 100 kwh of electricity during the winter, compared to a setting of 60 degrees.

"On this farm we use nothing but Firestones!"

National Farm City Week
November 18-28

Robert Brandt, Carlock, Illinois, says, "I drove racing cars before going into farming. Used nothing but Firestones then, and it's the same now. I've got them on both my trucks and on my tractors and passenger cars, too. On this farm, that means handling every kind of driving. They're tops—and that goes for service from Herm Polser, my dealer in Bloomington."

Like Bob Brandt, you'll find Firestone truck tires deliver extra service at no extra cost!
