SELL AT AUCTION

Atkinson, Nebraska

TUESDAY, FEB. 28 - 1:00 p.m.

From "Newt" Copple's PINE RANCH perhaps the season's most outstanding breeding cow dispersion. Hereford-if you please, the kind of Herefords that cattlemen love and admire. Founded on foundation females from the noted Barmore Bros. herd of Springview, Neb. Almost every cow is an offspring from this carefully planned founding. In the Copple herd, only the best of bulls have been used, including two of the present herd sires which cost in excess of $5,000.00 for the pair. The cattle have not been highly fitted for this sale, they are in range condition, bred to start calving from April 1st on. If you are looking for foundation females or top replacement stock-see these well known cattle

With the coming of spring girls, young and old, turn their thoughts to the selection of a new bonnet-probably an Easter Bon-

Your hat can express your perconality. A hat may be gay and frivolous, it may be young and ingenious, it may be dignified and sophisticated, it may be dainty and sweet. Shapes of faces may be classified as oval, round, square, triangular. The oval shape is considered the ideal. A round full face must avoid round hats. A straight stiff sailor hat is an example. Avoid off-theface turbans or hats that fit too closely, because faces need a background. Do wear hats with brims turned up on one side or brims that tilt. Hats that give a suggestion of height. A long thin face should avoid flat hats, stiff sailors, narrow brims, tall crowns, pill boxes, and close fitting turbans. A long thin face should wear hats with wider brim, irregular lines of softened edges. Hats with trimming massed near the crown or on the sides.

With a small face do not select hats that are too large and overpowering. You can wear tiny sailors, pill-boxes, or hats with shallow crowns.

An oval face with regular features may wear almost any attractive shape, closely fitted hats, halo, and heart-shaped. You can wear hats placed straight on the With a prominent nose or sharp features avoid turned up brims close fitting hats and tricornes. Select irregular brims, to give the softening influence of shadow, or a brim that tends to throw back the features. Wear soft trimmings on the forehead or front of the hat. If you have a heavy chin avoid hats with drooping brims and those that are lower in the back, as well as turbans and stiff straight hats. Do wear berets and stailors with a tilt. Highlight the forehead with heavier effects in turbans. Center the interest high on the head, preferable near the front. With a receding chin hands off of drooping brims or a hat that repeats the slanting line of the profile. Look for dashing lively hats with no drooping brims and brims that are wider at the sides. Let the forehead show.

For you who wear glasses don't be tempted by turbans, pill boxes. sharply turned down brims. Lines that turn down close to the face focus attention on glasses. Avoid too much decoration on the hat. Find hats with brims that extend beyond the glasses. Select soft, slightly drooping lines. Look for trimming at the front of the hat.
