

A Poem

From Mrs. Eby . . .

—The Last Cry—
The Crucifixion

Down by the side of that cruel old cross lingered the mother of Him, Weeping and broken by her loss her eyes with suffering were dim, Watching that face she loved so dear, seeing the anguish He bore, Straining her ears to hear the prayer she had heard Him pray before.
"Father forgive" was His last heart cry "They know not what they do."
"My God, My God Oh where art thou, wilt Thou, forsake me too?"

Looking down He saw her there and John the disciple so near "Woman" He said "behold thy son and son thy mother dear." A look of grief swept over His face, writhing in terrible pain, Feeling the sins of this whole world were there on His shoulders laid,
His heart was broken with the load of it all, He knew the end was near,
Now it is finished, He cried aloud and the old world trembled with fear,
They pierced His side, the blood flowed down, atonement for you and me,
For all our sins by Him were borne on that Old rough Mercifless Tree.
Father forgive still rings the heart cry 'and cleans them from all sin,
Oh brother come to the risen Christ and give your whole life to Him.
