It's the unity in a community that gets the job done

In Lincoln and Southeast Nebraska ... a THRIVING UTILITY

L.T.&T. Microwave Tower, furnishing network radio-television entertainment to the community as well as message toll service

The new Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company office building at 1440 M in the capitol city

Electrical operation of the entire L.T.&T. office building in Lincoln is schematically diagramed on this colorful control board

The community which pulsates with fast, efficient communications is one of progress. Working together to achieve the ultimate in communications service are the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company with its 1,500 employees and Consumers Public Power District. Electrical power, the basic element in every industry, activates L.T. & T.'s over 150,000 telephones, making possible virtually instant communications throughout the state and nation.

The entire community benefits when these good "civic citizens" work together to provide the rapid, smooth-flowing communications system needed to serve their various communities and to attract new industry to Nebraska.

This is another in a series of salutes to local and regional achievements which demonstrate the power of people working together.
