by her father, wore a formal length gown of hand-clipped Chantilly lace and tulle over bridal taffeta. The Elizabethan bodice featured a scalloped Sabrina neckline lavishly embroidered in sequins and pearls. Long, crushed lace sleeves carried the traditional bridal points to the wristline. The voluminous skirt was fashioned of scalloped lace, with the overskirt falling over full layers of tulle caught up at the center front with three lace roses. Alternating tiers of lace and tulle formed the very bouffant back. The bride's elbow-length veil of French illusion was secured to a crown of imported pearls. She carried a cascade of red ros-
