"Republicans Lose Elections Through Poverty of Workers"

Rep. Political Adv.
"The Republican Party has lost election after election because it has had a poverty of workers," said Raymond Moley, an editor of News Week Magazine, who spoke in Omaha Tuesday at a luncheon at the Paxton Hotel.

The Republican Party doesn't need to continue to throw elections away, but it can be strong nationally only if it has vigorous state and local organizations. Many people in this area think Nebraska and Holt County are safely Republican, but the facts are that Democrats have been elected governor in the past two elections.

Unless Republicans are elected on the local level, there is every likelihood that Nebraska will begin to elect Democrats to the U.S. Senate and House and to cast its electoral votes for Democrats in Presidential elections.
