"Memories of 1888 Blizzard"

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS, 411) South 51st St., Lincoln 6, Nebr.

These bright mild sunny January days are so wonderful! And then we think back to that terrible day in 1888. That winter my mother, my brother, my sister and I were living in the house across the street north of the Methodist church which had been the home of General John O'Neill and family. That winter storm struck without warning and I see in memory once more that old printer O. C. Bates as he stood at his case of type and picked letters up one by one and made up the story of that terrible event and coined the word "blizzard". And again I see in memory the stories of the frozen people that were found after that storm and the prairie covered with dead cattle. Some frozen to death in that storm were never found until the next spring out on the prairie and Grandma Chapman kneeling as in the the pioneer Brennan family of O'Neill. Tom and attitude of prayer in her bobsled with her team standing up to a hay stack and she herself frozen twenty years and still have an interest in their to death with her little granddaughter alive at her father's store building in O'Neill. And he has a side wanting her father and mother.

Senator Frank Nelson down from his ranch in the O'Neill community again. Holding down a desk in the state house with the legislature in session again. His son is home managing the winter chores at the ranch home. They have a herd of around two-hundred head of cattle. Mrs Nelson came down with the senator but she is gone now on a visit with relatives in California. The Senator has a grandson here in Lincoln who is employed by Cal Stewart in his printing business. The senator feels that this session of the legislature may run over into the late spring time.

Support Industrial Development

If the opinions of those who study national trends are correct, then a reasonable conclusion is that agriculture of the future will become a big operation managed and carried on by fewer people and on a larger scale. Even now, farm boys are being urged to train for other fields of work since it is no longer possible for a young man to rent or buy a small family sized farm and start with a modest beginning.

Time has long passed when farmers pooled their work jobs and this makes it necessary for

It was somewhere about the year 1885 and I was a winner in a horse race. Frank Mann and I mounted our steeds up west of town and came racing down the street to about where the Knights of Columbus Hall now stands. My split-eared Indian pony a horse's length in the lead. I won the race. And a few spectators there on the street took in the show. Rarely a day passed in those years of long ago that there wasn't a horse race of some kind.

The Rileys are no longer there, Robylers are gone, James is no more, Blighs are gone from their old home, John Bowers is gone, Berrys are gone excepting one of the third generation and the Prairieland Talker household is no more, but that beautiful land in the Swan Lake vicinity still lies there robed in the Prairieland sod.

I recently had a visit from Tom Brennan of his wife have been residents of Lincoln now for great interest in the welfare of O'Neill as is manifested in his wish for it's continual progress. Mr. Prairieland Talker recently enjoyed a visit from Brennan goes to O'Neill from time to time as does his wife who was one of the Shoemaker family.

> My esteemed friend Ed Mann Gallagher and Mrs. Gallagher disposed of their beautiful home in O'Neill and I suppose Ed's banking interests and they have gone to California. The state that catches the overflow of adventurous humanity. Mr. Gallagher is of the Ed F. Gallagher family and as far as I know the only one who has survived of that family.

each man to have his own complete line of ma chinery costing as much, or more than the amount that his grandfather hoped to accumulate in a whole lifetime of work

In the past, and with a farm family on each quarter section of land, the goodly rural population furnished the life blood for the small towns that dotted the country, in cases as close as four or five miles from each other. And while the towns were small, the volume of business was considerable. The typical town boasted one or two banks, a lumber yard, elevator, a doctor, drug store and a livestock market, to say nothing of other places of business and entertainment.

There are many who mourn the passing of such rural life, providing as it did, homes and wholesome dignified work for so many people. It may be presumed that the small town will disappear from the scene along with the small farm and the idea is even now being advanced that it is only a matter of time until the county seats may be the last of the small towns to survive.

Personally, we would be sorry to see such a day, although we realize, and already see, the reason for the gradual destruction of the old way of rural life. Say what you will in favor of progress, this change may not be for the better.

If only the county seat, of all the small towns, is to survive, a much greater burden of responsibility must rest there and forward looking men are already aware of that.

They know the need for employment in industries, markets and above all, educational facilities.

Here in O'Neill we have men who are both capable and aware. They know the challenge that O'Neill faces and they are meeting it. Always educational facilities have had first consideration here and now even more preparation is underway. A development group is in the process of organizing who will have as their consideration the whole industrial development of the city. The possibilities are unlimited and we have O'Neill men who are the equal in judgment and ambition of those to be found in any segment of our country.

Senator Frank Nelson's introduction of LB177 in the Legislature last week asking for a trade school similar to the one at Milford to be situated in O'Neill is definitely a step in the right direction. But, it's going to be a tough, uphill battle if O'Neill is to be selected as the location for the state vocational training school.

Let's back the Industrial Development Corporation and Senator Frank Nelson with everything we have.

GREAT FALLS, MONT., LEADER: "There is one thought that may not have occurred to you in regard to the recent thalidomide scare. The drug originated and was freely used in just two nations, England and Germany. These are the two nations which have the oldest and most deep rooted systems of socialized medicine . . . It just goes to show that under the crushing burden of nationalized medicine neither doctors nor scientists can exericse caution that is required in testing new drugs."

WELLINGTON, OHIO, ENTERPRISE: "Back in 1936, Franklin D. Roosevelt forecast the beginning of the end of public relief. That was the starting year of the Social Security program, with Old Age and Survivors Insurance and unemployment compensation. It was also the starting year for federal sharing in local relief programs. How are things working out? Upwards of $15 billion a year is flowing out to workers and survivors covered by Social

The new ending has the mice placed in high paying jobs by a wealthy de-tailed mouse enthusiast, the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The latest mouse to join up is Phil Weaver at a salary of $17,925. His job apparently is to help Secretary Freeman keep his tail out of the Capitol Hill legislative mouse trap.

Now that all three blind mice have managed high salaried jobs with the department it seems fitting to add the last line of our verse: "Did you ever see such a sight in your life?"

ALBERT LEA, MINN., TRIBUNE: "The United States government recently conducted a study of recreational habits in this country. It was the biggest study of its kind ever made. The government wants to know how best to plan to meet the recreational needs of this country. The answer to the question? Get ready for a surprise, for the major recreational activity of people in the United States is not swimming, walking, riding bikes or even baseball. It's riding around in the family car."

FORT SUMNER, N. M., NEWS: "The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly; You can hunt until you'e dizzy but somehow it gets by. Till forms are off the presses it's strange how still it keeps. It shrinks into a corner and never stirs or peeps. The typographical error is too small for human eyes. Till the ink is on the paper, then grows to mountain size. For all the other printing may be clean as clean can be But that typographical error is the only thing you see.'

MILLINGTON, TENN., STAR: "Gliberals who sneer at free enterprise never mention the fact that the biggest 'give-away' of all is the number of jobs given by this very system. But then the gliberals don't really think a man should work-he certainly should be clever enough to attach himself to at least one government hand-out."

HAGERSTOWN, MD., MORNING HERALD: "Once the nation's railroads made it clear that they no longer intend to pay unneeded men to do unneeded work or no work at all, the aggrieved unions launched an all-out campaign to save featherbedding . . By applying the union's reasoning to our own lives we get a strange result. Did you ever hire a baby-sitter? Perhaps the 'baby' is 15 now-or off at college. But you should go on hiring the sitter."
