A Poem From Mrs. Eby ...

PROMISES Some years ago a woman of wealth, Had for sometime been in failing health. At her death relatives met to hear her will read, Even the prodigal son heard his aunt was dead. When his name came up, disgust he maintains, To my wayward nephew I leave my Bible and all it contains. In disgust he threw it in an old trunk in the attic, With the thought, I'll go deeper in sin, the old fanatic. So he went the limit till broken in health, For he had always planned on his old aunts wealth. His health was so broken he just couldn't roam, So poverty stricken he headed back home. One day in the attic he saw the old trunk, Curiosity prompted and he opened the junk. There where he threw it many years before, Lay the Bible wrapped up and his name it bore. As he opened it, there on the very front page, Lay a large bank note, for years was unclaimed. 'Twas his, for Aunt's will said, my Bible and all it contains. And all through the Bible, many more notes were there, Till he knew he was a rich man and he'd been so unfair. For the Christians God gives us His word filled with riches untold, That he has willed to us far greater than gold. Rich promises on many pages there, That bank notes though large just cannot compare. Della Stuart Eby
