

Report from Washington

By Congressman Dave Martin
Fourth District, Nebraska

1963 could be a year in which this country will have more major strikes than it has experienced in many years. We have already experienced a long, costly dock workers' strike which tied up all shipping on the East coast and Gulf ports. Both Cleveland and New York are experiencing newspaper strikes which have now gone on for almost 3 months. The labor contract in the steel industry will be reopened on June 1, and the rubber industries labor contract expires in 1963 along with those of many other industries. No one wins from a prolonged strike, as the employees lose their wages during the period of strike; the company is forced to halt production and sales; and, in the case of an industry-wide strike, many other firms can be adversely affected. Let's take a look at the newspaper strikes now going on in both Cleveland and New York City.

In New York, the printers' union is the one out on strike — about 2,000 men out of approximately 20,000 employees. Ten different unions hold contracts with the newspapers, but the printers' union is the one which called the strike and the other unions agreed to go along. The printers' union has assessed its members nationally an extra 3% of their pay to build up a "war chest" to carry on the strike. From this, they are collecting about $335,000 a week or over $17 million a year. The striking printers are being paid $65 a week from the union as strike benefits plus $50 a week from the State of New York, for 26 weeks, because they are unemployed. Thus, they are receiving a total of $115 per week for not working — no wonder they are in no hurry to settle the strike. The other 18,000 employees who belong to the 9 other unions are not as fortunate because their union treasury is running out of funds, so payments in many instances have stopped. Thus, the 2,000 in the printers' union are causing a severe hardship on 18,000 of their fellow employees.

The New York newspapers are up against the international union, with a large "war chest." This is a case of big labor dealing with small business. The nine New York newspapers face a big national union with a "war fund" of $17 million. The newspapers are overmatched. The strike has meant heavy financial loss for not only the 9 newspapers, but also for every single line of business in New York City. Many of these papers were operating at a loss before the strike. If forced to pay higher wages, several of the New York papers will fold up with a permanent loss of jobs for their employees.

Labor is "big business," with millions of dollars available to them. Some of the unions are ruthless in their conduct. When they completely control an entire industry, I maintain that they have a monopoly which is injurious to the entire economy of Nebraska, which is primarily an agricultural state. The cost of the farmers and ranchers' supplies has increased to the point where there is little or no profit at the end of the year.

My bill, H. R. 333, would amend the Sherman Anti-trust Act and bring the labor unions under its provisions. Under my bill, control of the union movement would be restored to the local unions and taken away from the international unions could not exist. Strikes could take place at individual companies, but not an industry-wide basis. Union welfare and retirement funds would not be affected. Featherbedding would be stopped. This monopoly in the field of labor must be eliminated.

Let us be the first to admit—that this is a posed picture

But it's usually in bad weather or darkness that the most dramatic instances of truck drivers helping the lost, the disabled, the frightened (or the very pretty) take place • Under such circumstances we couldn't have got such a nice picture of the pretty girl • And we did want to do our best to highlight the well-known fact that most truck drivers are kind, courteous men, trained to drive with respect for the rights and feelings of others on the highways and to help them whenever they can • They meet the most interesting people that way!
