On the distant graves, for love could buy
No gift that was purer and truer.

Few of the hundreds of visitors at Cushman Park on Thursday, the opening day, had any idea before going that they would behold such a beautiful resort as they did on their arrival. The park is located three miles due west of the city and is easily reached by vehicle either on the O street or A street roads, which lead to the south entrance. It is on the south side of the B. & M. railroad track, running to Milford, and all trains will stop at Cushman Park to receive or deposit human freight, at the north entrance to the grounds. The Park covers one hundred acres, is thickly timbered with various kinds of trees that afford a cool and delightful resort from the hot rays of a summer sun.

Shortly after entering the north gates the visitor reaches the pavilion and cafe, which is a neat and lastingly arranged structure 32x32 feet, two stories high, the first floor being where refreshments are prepared and temporary drinks, cigars, etc., are dispensed, while on the second floor we find a cool and comfortable dining room for ladies and gentlemen. This large room is open on all sides and on the east side is a small balcony which is used when occasion demands, as it did on the opening day, for open air entertainments for speakers, vocalists, etc. In this apartment numerous tables and chairs neatly arranged to accommodate the many who desire a lunch or some cool refreshment. A head waiter is on hand to direct and see that everything runs smoothly and in the very best manner, no liquor being sold, or improper characters being allowed on the premises.

Leaving the pavilion and going toward the southeast a short distance the dancing hall, 30x80 feet is reached, and here we find one of the coolest and best ventilated dancing halls in the city. The sides have large openings and the top which is at an angle is also proper openings to allow the cool country breeze right of way through the building. In one corner is a ladies dressing and cloak room, and beside it the orchestra stand. The floor is an excellent one and is already in equally as good condition as any one in the city. Just to the east of this, in a sturdy oak tree overhanging the stream known as Middle Creek, built a platform for the band which will be used by the musicians when giving concerts.

Then a stroll through a short piece of timber to the south and a little west, brings you to a group of mineral springs and to the residence of Lincoln who is compelled to drink salt water, the flowing aqua from nature's mouth, is certainly welcome. Each spring is named there being four thus far found, viz: The White Sulphur Spring; The Giant Iron Spring; the Croighton Spring; and the Rosamond Spring, the latter being named after Mr. Jacob Mahler's charming little daughter, and is considered the best on the grounds. The water from these springs have been analyzed and found to be healthful and have a pleasant as well as cool and refreshing effect. The water comes bubbling, clear and pure from mother earth and each visitor is privileged to help himself by dipping the cup into the spring and drinking to their hearts content gratis.

Strolling a'out the spacious grounds, many beautiful walks are to be enjoyed and at intervals here and there, in shady nooks are seen the handiwork of skilful hands that have made numerous rustic seats, the various foot bridges being made either wholly, or in greater part out of the rough timber cut from Cushman trees. Numerous swings and hammocks are visible in most every part of the Park and on our visit of Thursday to the place, there were very few of these commodities untenant. Several very nice drives have been prepared through the Park, rustic wagon bridges having already been put in where vehicles cross the stream that runs through the grounds.

Speaking to Mr. Andrus about his plans for the future, he told a reporter that thus far the enterprise was merely a venture and that if Lincoln would strike the appreciation of his work, he would carry out all plans for further improving the resort by adding more attractions and making numerous further additions. Mr. Andrus is to be complimented on the sound judgement, excellent taste and general enterprise he has shown in giving Lincoln such an elegant and much needed resort, and the COURIER feels assured that the people of Lincoln will show their appreciation by a liberal support, a fact which was evident on the dedication day, on which occasion, hundreds of our leaders of society graced the gathering with their presence. It is the intention of the proprietors to strict rules of the Park management to keep the attendance always that of the most respected class of citizens and a vigorous effort will be made to keep out all boisterous and disrespectful persons, so that ladies and children, with or without escorts may visit the park in perfect safety and enjoy the attractions there extended the public. No admission fee is charged and all respectable people are cordially invited to visit the Park.

Dates for open air concerts will be given every week, and regular running trains will be announced in next issue.

June is generally regarded as the month of weddings, and as cupid does not appear to have killed much time the past winter, quite a number of these happy events may be looked for. In the selection of appropriate presents for friends about to enter the blissful state of matrimony, policy dictates that they should be procured from a first-class house, where reliable goods are sold at reasonable prices. A house that fully meets such requirements is Hallett's, 113 North Eleventh street, and intending purchasers should avail themselves of the opportunity to select from his large and complete stock.

SUMMER STYLES IN FOOTWEAR.

What a Representative Firm is Showing in Nobby Shoes, Etc.

Sauntering about the city yesterday in search of news and finding nothing startling in the ordinary channels, a reporter stopped into the large store room of Perkins Bros. on O street to talk about the weather, the season and the styles in footwear, and finding one of the partners at the desk, we were given ample information on the subject.

Styles in footwear have in some respects undergone a marked change, as is noticeable in the difference of the width and point of the shoes now worn from that of a year or two ago. The stylish shoe of today is broader and the toe more on the square shape. The Oxford shoe is in as popular favor this summer as ever, and is used by both male and female, and for children as well, with the exception that for little ones spring heels are preferable to others.

A new shoe just brought out for ladies, which was introduced by and made especially for Perkins Brothers is the "Rue de Bondy." It is similar to the Oxford but has a broader toe and is the most comfortable shoe ever brought west. It is becoming the popular shoe for ladies, and already is being worn to the exclusion of all others by many of Lincoln's fairest daughters. It has a neat and pretty appearance, and cannot fail to be liked by everyone.

"The Southern Tie," a nobby low shoe for gentlemen is the latest thing for summer wear and is made up in Kangaroo, French Kid and other light weight leathers. This shoe, similar in construction, is also to be had in button or in congress gaiters.

Referring to the makeup of shoes, Mr. Perkins said: "Patent leather vamps and tips are now being made for a short time been very stylish, and are worn considerably. For evening social affairs the patent leather pump is still in the lead. Many ladies are using the metropolitan style of dancing shoe wearing the bronze tar psichore slippers. They are very pretty, and refined society everywhere recognizes them as just the thing for ladies."

Perkins Brothers have their fine goods all made expressly for their trade, and keep all widths from A to E and half sizes in stock in ladies, gents and children's shoes. Their shoes are from the very best and most stylish makers, and every pair fully guaranteed as represented.

Lincoln people recognize this popular house as leaders in their line, and of the hundreds of purchasers of fine goods in the city, Perkins Brothers enjoy the patronage of a very large portion of them. They are always pleased to show their line to callers, and will take pleasure in showing you the latest and most elegant line of shoes you have ever seen in the city, if you will pay them a visit at 1129 O street.

Mr. J. M. Cochran returned Tuesday from Wymore. He reports a very pleasant visit. The body is more susceptible to benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla now than any other season. Therefore take it now.
