

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine which can truly be said to cost "no Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla in its medicinal merits. Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered."

Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine.

Hot or cold weather, just as you want it, at Lincoln, Nebraska.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN has quit drinking again. It must be a prohibition town where John is stopping.

It is reported that several persons were frozen to death at Manitou Tuesday night. Lincoln was cool enough at any rate.

CURETH and MERRIT give promise of making a splendid paper out of the Hastings Nebraskaan. They are competent newspaper men, have a pretty good field, and will doubtless succeed.

The Journal came out in its new dress of brevity yesterday morning. While it is doubtless less costly, it is by no means as neat as the old dress. The grandmothers who read it will be pleased at the change.

The people of Nebraska should bear in mind the fact that it is but four weeks until the great state fair of 1888 will open. It will be the biggest and best ever held. Everybody and their families should attend.

The erudite gentleman who spouts nonsense for the Journal under the heading of Topics leaves today for Kansas. Lincoln water is too mild for one who has been used to the combustibles of a Kansas drug store.

The Hastings Gazette Journal asserts that the people of that city never thought of lynching the negro murderer of Policeman Balcom; but does not explain why the officers thought it necessary to scot him out of town at night.

The new town of Bessemer in Wyoming is referred to as the Oil City of the west. The projectors should go to Pennsylvania and take a look at the once booming town of Oil City, and they will immediately hunt a new synonym for Bessemer.

Poor old Kansas is in hard luck. Her northern counties report a poor corn crop, while the counties of southern Nebraska have most excellent promises. The people out along the republican river can tell exactly where the state line runs by looking at the crops.

The receipt of an invitation with complimentary tickets to the Omaha fair is hereby acknowledged by THE COURIER. Thanks, gentlemen, if time permits we shall take pleasure in making comparisons—to note which, the Omaha or state fair at Lincoln will be the best.

MAXWELL, the trunk murderer, who has escaped punishment by legal technicalities for nearly two years, for the murder of his best friend, was hanged at St. Louis yesterday. His case has attracted more attention than any of recent years, and the people generally will not be sorry to hear of his paying the penalty.

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE arrived in New York yesterday morning from his European tour. The steamer did not arrive at the time expected, and an immense reception gotten up to welcome him miscarried a little. Over 50,000 people were in line in the procession Thursday evening. It was undoubtedly the grandest welcome home any private citizen ever received, and shows in what esteem the great commoner is held by Americans.

THE COURIER proposes to do a little improving of its own this autumn. Several new features will be added to the paper, an elegant new heading now in the hands of the engraver secured, and other improvements made in typographical arrangements and contents. THE COURIER has received substantial patronage in the past, and it proposes to merit still more in the future. We print the best family paper in the west, the nearest typographically, and give each reader the value of his or her money, claims we can easily substantiate by the testimony of our patrons.

MAJOR GENERAL JOHN M. SCHOFIELD succeeds General Sheridan as head of the army. He is 57 years old, graduated from West Point at the age of 25, was major of the First Missouri Volunteers at the commencement of the war, working himself upward until in 1875 he was breveted major general for gallant conduct at the battle of Franklin. Ten he acted as secretary of war during the Belknap trouble, and shortly afterward was made major general of the regular army by Gen. Grant. He is a gallant soldier, a good commander and an able successor to Sherman and Sheridan.

GENERAL PHIL SHERIDAN, the gallant soldier and general commanding of the United States armies, died on Sunday night last. He had a long, hard struggle with the grim reaper, but was conquered at last. Of his merits as a soldier and a commander we need not speak, as his name is known and honored the world over. He was the bono ideal of a soldier, brave, dashing, quick to see and take advantage, a thorough tactician and a cavalry leader without an equal. In the dark days of rebellion he was loyal to the old flag, and did good service in overthrowing the confederacy. The remains were interred in the National cemetery at Arlington.

LAKE MANAWA, the popular resort near Council Bluffs, is being rapidly filled with sediment from Chautauque creek which empties into it. Steps must be immediately taken or there will be no lake in a month. The property round about it is in dispute, and none of the claimants will put up money to pay for the improvements necessary to turn the course of the creek. The only plausible scheme is for the city to condemn the land and lake for park purposes, and take hold of the business itself. With proper management many Lincoln people could be induced to visit Manawa, and Sunday excursions would pay big money.

THE success of the Call has inspired the dear old Journal with a mortal jealousy, and there is nothing too mean which the latter cannot say of the former. It has now taken up the cry of "Van Wyck," (that nightmare which haunts the Journal's vision) and expects to drive the republican cohorts into the railroad line with its silly vapors about the old man. It even goes to the length of denouncing one of our leading republicans, General McBride, because he has the courage to stand up for the people of Lincoln and protect their interests against railroad encroachment. The voters of the city now have a chance to say which is their best friend, McBride or the Journal.

LINCOLN has some of the soundest financial institutions in the west. Seven banks and three or four security and investment companies make an array that any city should be proud of. Among the comparatively new institutions is the German National bank, which although in existence a little over a year, is rapidly taking rank with the leading banks of the west. The quarterly statement, recently published, presents a showing of greater gain in resources, proportionately, than any other bank in the city. With experienced business men at the head, a conservative management, and a large clientele, the German National will continue to prosper, and soon show its heels to its competitors.

AS epidemic of failures seems to be sweeping over the western country, and Lincoln has caught her share of them. It is one of the banes of western commerce, this credit system that prevails. If crops are poor, the country merchant has to carry his granger customers until they can pay. But in the city is where the deadbeat makes his lair. The merchants of Lincoln lose thousands of dollars every year by the credit system, and while they have time and again endeavored to correct this abuse, the proper solution of the question has not yet been evolved. There are too many confiding merchants who to do a big business will trust almost any one, and it is little wonder that they eventually go under. While poor business management has caused failures in Lincoln, the majority of them are due to too much confidence in human nature.

Peculiar
In the combination, proportion and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite.

CHRONIC DIARRHOEA.

Can it be Cured?

There are a great many persons throughout the country who have chronic diarrhoea, and have been led to believe that it can not be cured. It matters not how many physicians have told you your case was hopeless, nor how many different medicines you have tried, without any permanent benefit, we claim that the disease can be cured, and as evidence of it refer to the following cases:

WYANDOTTE, KAN., June 15, 1887.
One of my customers had been troubled for years with chronic diarrhoea. I persuaded him to use a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, it completely cured him, and he to day can not say enough in praise of it. This case cited is only one of many that have been cured by it. here, I can further say that I recommend it all the time, as I know it is as represented, and will do the work. I have been selling it for several years, and have never heard of its failing in a single case, in fact, every one who uses it speaks in the highest praise of its work.
DR. S. F. MATHIE, Druggist.

I have cured a most persistent and aggravating case of chronic diarrhoea with four or five bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, after the party had used all other preparations in vain. I consider it the best made.
W. A. MCGONIGLE, Monona, Clayton Co., Iowa.

I am just recovering from a long spell of sickness, and was given up to die by everyone who saw me. I had been suffering from chronic diarrhoea and had doctored with nearly all the physicians in Clark and Union counties. I laid in bed for three months and seven days, and could not move until I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has cured me and I now am in my store attending to my business. I now sell Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to my customers and tell them it is the greatest medicine ever made. All of the people in America could not now break my faith in your medicine. I would risk my life on it for doing for others what it has done for me.
J. C. SROUT, Thayer, Union Co., Iowa.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

NEW AND PLEASING STYLES IN DRESS FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Two Models for Wash Dresses That are Designed for Little Girls of Four and Five Years of Age and are Regarded as Very Attractive.

Mothers who live in near proximity to large cities experience little difficulty in dressing their children comfortably and at the same time prettily, for there is no end to the styles in made up costumes for young folks. Parents, however, who do not have the benefit of city fashions are often puzzled how to fashion frocks for little girls. In our cut are given two French models that may be made of wash goods or of light wool fabrics, as may be desired.

FRENCH FROCKS FOR LITTLE GIRLS.
In the first figure is represented a dress in striped sash, with a collar and jabot of the same material. The sash is of soft twisted silk and is tied in long bows and ends at the side.

The second figure shows a frock in plaid gingham, with broad collar and deep cuffs of embroidery. With this dress is worn a leather belt.

Hats for Young and Old.
Little girls, and even up to 12 years of age, are wearing the open worked linen hats with full gathered crowns, like large Tam O'Shanter, and a fall of deep edging all round, about a quarter of a yard in width. This edging is pinned up in front, or sometimes gathered up, so that it does not fall beyond the eyebrows, but hangs low at the back. If small boys wear these caps, they are gathered up at one side with a bow or large rosette. These shaped hats are made in muslin and pongee silk for grown up people. Leghorn hats are in the height of fashion for children and adults. The large single poppies, especially in black and gray, which are intended to form a bonnet, are simply laid on to a wire foundation, with the edge hidden by puffed tulle. A little is puffed up in front among the lower petals, to give softness. This plaited tulle for millinery purposes can now be had in every shade by the yard. Dandelion "blowaways" are much used for slight mourning, put into black tulle bonnets, among a few delicate loops of white tulle. They are also worn in the hair at night, and often with diamond stars. Just at present jet and diamonds are worn together, and amethysts have recently been introduced, with white and gray toilettes.

Tennis and Boating Fashions.
Many of the new tennis and boating coats have the outside of the high, stiff collar and the inside of the straight, open fronts turned back with a color and braided. Navy blue with red and blue braiding is an effective contrast. These coats just button at the throat. Cambria shirts, with hand embroidered cuffs and yokes, are becoming popular, and will be much worn as the hot weather comes on; also the pretty silk skirts and the striped flannel. For tennis, the shirts are made like men's cricketering ones, and worn with ties. Silk cricketering caps are much patronized by the girl tennis players. Very little is worn round the throat now. Young girls wear a string of pearls, and older women a piece of ribbon tied in a smart butterfly bow at the back of the neck, or a piece of lace with a bow in front. Paste ornaments are greatly worn, from the top of the hair to the toe of the shoe.

Long Scarfs.
As many of the English fashions soon reach this country, we give in the accompanying illustration two styles of long scarfs which are just now much affected with summer toilettes abroad.

In the second figure is shown the more common style, which is simply a long lace scarf, fastened at the neck and falling almost to the bottom of the skirt.

The first figure illustrates a more elaborate arrangement, termed 'yoke scarf' or 'yoke scarf', which is fastened at the neck and falling almost to the bottom of the skirt.

A Word About Brooches.
While the quiet round brooch, that looks as if it had been cut out by machinery, does not find much favor, the brooch that inclines to round or oblong form, with an irregular and decorative border or finish, is well liked. In a general way it may be said, however, that the most popular of all brooches are the ones that represent some pleasing design, such as two or three garlands of forget-me-nots interlaced, a broad curving feather, a butterfly with spread wings or a crescent set with graduated stones.

What the English term jeweled safety pins have found high favor here. These are of near kin to the old lace pin, but are shorter and have the safety or nursery pin attachment. These pins are much used on lace and other translucent fabrics; in a word, they are wonderfully convenient adjuncts to a lady's toilet.
