A German Christmas Festival.

The Pleasant Juniors. The Juniors gave another of their delightful parties last evening in Temple Hall. Occurring during the Christmas holidays it was an occasion on which the members made more than the usual effort to attend to the comfort and entertainment of their friends. The hall was elaborately trimmed with living plants and cut flowers and sweet music was rendered by the Philharmonic orchestra assisted by Miss Willoughby. Under the direction of W. E. Clark everything went off smoothly and to the entire setisfaction of the large number present.

Mr. Fred H. Preston and his brother Walter G. Preston, of Omaha, who are bome from Yale for the holidays, were the guests of W. H. and Charles E. Clark, of this city and accompanied them to the Jumor's party last evening,

For The Boys' Benetit.

The employes of the COURIER office, to-gether with a few invited members of the city press, were tendered a delightful bauquet by the Wessel Printing Co., on Christmas eve at Brown's. It was an elegantly arranged affair and reflects much credit on Mr. Brown as a caterer. Every course served was intended for service and not for ornament as was attested by the manner in which the boys enjoyed themselves. After the wants of the inner man were satisfied, the time was passed pleasantly by impromptu speeches by the members of the press, represented by C-J. A. B. Hayes, managing editor of the Journal, H. J. Dobbins, of the News, Al. Ewan, Omaha Bee, Robert McReynolds, managing editor of the Lincoln Procenium, and associate editor of the Fremont Proce nium, H. P. Barrett, Omaha Hhrain, and Lou Wessel and H. G. #### Miss Hawkins' Party.

A neat and very pretty entertainment was that given by Miss Anna Hawkins at Temple hall Wednesday evening. It was a reception given her class in dancing which comprises the elite of the younger generation of Lincoln. The program by the little ones was ren-dered in an artistic and thoroughly pleasing manner, distinctly showing the success with which Miss Hawkins has met in her work. The pupils of her class are Misses Leland, Griffith, Oakley, Grace Oakley, Baum, Me-Conniff, Liammond, Hayden, Burr, Elliott, Hawkins, Mateer, Murphy, Regna Rogers and Masters Hurlbort, Elliott, Curtis, Reh-lander, Sheldon, Zehrung and others. The affair opened with a grand march fol-lowed by a lanciers, coquette polka, may pole, minuette, military shottische, hoop dance, tycoon polka and others, several of which received merited enchores BITS ABOUT THE TOTS.

A violin solo by Baby Weber only seven years old, and a piano solo by little Hattie Cook, eight years old, deserving special mention. The distribution of gifts deftly arranged on a large Christmas tree was next in order, after which the Germania Mannaechor rendered some delightful songs. #### New Years Calls,

Next Tuesday, as most everybody at this late date is fully aware of, is New Year's day, Calling will be quite general and most of the ladies will be prepared to entertain their gen-tleman callers. Although strictly speaking, open house custom will not be [fully ob-served, but the ladies, many of whom have been seen by COUNIER reporters have ex-pressed their intention of being "at home" during the day to receive their friends, all of whom will be heartily welcomed. We have received names of about a dozen ladies who nave signified their willingness to keep open house, if others did, but it has been for the backwardness of the others, that we must forego the pleasure of printing the list. How ver all our fair triends unite in the one answer viz: "If the gentleman will call, we will receive them kindly and entertain them to the best of our ability, open house, or no open house." So gentlemen, there is aught to hinder you now from turning out en masse and making the day, one long to be remem-bered and u her the new year into existence appropriately and in fine style. It seems that last year quite a number o ladies had prepared to receive and some went in on elaborate arrangements to receive a large number of callers, but the truant male was scarce. One lady when asked if she would keep open house this year said, "No, indeed, I certainly shall not, last year 1 arranged with several lady friends who were to assist me in receiving. They were on hand and I had made elaborate preparations for entertaining, but alas, I had calculated on at east a hundred, when at night's arrival the isitors footed up to one over an even dozen. No, I will not keep open house, but will be at home all day and will be glad to receive all who call."

Judging from the number of calling cards that have been printed the past week, we are of the opinion that the good old curbstone will be reviewed to a considerable extent among the gentleman, and that the day will prove in that respect far more successful than last year.

A Bon Ton Affair.

The reception given Wednesday evening at the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Im-hoff on J street was in every respect a success and a most delightful affair. It was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Raymer and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McArthur, two young couples that have recently entered the blissful tide of matrimony. However, the illness of one of the former made it impossible for them to attend, consequently Mr. and Mrs. were sole recipients of the evening's honors. Guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. In-hoff who pleasantly made everyone comfortable and aided materially in rendering the evening so enjoyable. The beautiful parlors and suites were appropriately arranged for the occasion and every preparation for entertaining the company of nearly two hundred guests were amply provided. Dainty refreshments were served and enchanting musifurnished by Prof. Menzendorf's orchestra was all that was required to complete the charm of the occasion. Ladies were exclusively cos-turned and the gentleman in their full dress attire gave to the event an air of society re-finement seldom equaled in Lincoln, or in fact we might add, any where else. The reception was a brilliant social event and the success attending the same was cer-tainly complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Im-hoff and the honored guests of the evening.
