Miss Funke's German.
 The ribbon german given Monday evening by Miss Funke was a brilliant affair, a fitting crown to the social season. Thirty-two couples had been invited to participate in the dancing and the hostess hit upon the happy idea of using her father's opera house. This gave the affair an air of homeliness, if a word may be coined for the occasion, and gave the guests the advantage of a hall. These advantages will be obvious to any who have taken part in german in private residences in which the company were crowded into one room uncomfortably small, or scattered through two or more rooms and so cut off from seeing half the figures. Funke's opera house was specially put in order for the occasion and was found to be admirably adapted for its purposes. The floor of the stage was planed and waxed into a surprisingly good dancing surface. The scenery was arranged around three sides, successfully hiding the bare walls. The grand central chandelier was aided and abetted by the footlights, the box jets and a chandelier above the dancers in flooding stage and auditorium with cheery radiance. To the favored spectators in the boxes and the body of the house the gay scene framed by the proscenium arch was beautifully effective, brilliant and unique. The arriving guests were treated to a surprise at the very threshold of the house, the large foyer having been transformed with artistic ingenuity. In the center of the floor was a fountain. Whence the water came or whither it went was a mystery, but during the entire evening it burst from the fountain nozzle and fell in a gentle spray upon the rocks below. Around the inner circle of the basin was a row of geraniums and flowering plants, while palms, potted plants and vases of cut flowers scattered about the foyer gave it the pleasing semblance of a conservatory. Upholstered chairs and sofas here and there made it an inviting retreat, and during the several intermissions it was thronged with the happy, chatting dancers, who were deftly served by a corps of colored waiters with ices, cakes and lemon frappe.

The guests were received by Miss Funke in the foyer, a pleasing duty in which Mr. and Mrs. Fred Funke, her parents, assisted. Miss Funke made a gracious, tactful hostess, with a pervading presence that was charming. The dancing did not begin until half-past nine o'clock and continued until after one. The program comprised twelve figures, as follows: Star and circle, eccentric column, five orchestra, angling, opposite rounds, column reversed, military, screen, double column, augmented wind-mill, tournament and quadruple quadrille. There were eight favor figures. In six the favors were ribbons, each hand-painted with the name of the giver. It required nearly four hundred favors of this kind, which will undoubtedly be cherished to stir up reminiscent memories in the years to come. The favors in the other two figures were bows and arrows, oars crossed, hoos, rakes and spades, all made in bent wood. In three of the figures the effect was heightened by the use of properties. In the angling figure the gentlemen were provided with fishing rods and lines and secured their partners by throwing their lines over a screen among the ladies concealed behind, each of whom danced with the gallant whose line she grasped. In the screen figure was a screen frame with portieres in the panels. In front of each panel stood a gentleman, and on the other side of all panels but one was a lady. As the fair ones parted their portieres and waited off with the partners they found in waiting, of course one gentleman was left to take his seat in confusion. The tournament figure brought two sets of gentlemen face to face as the claimants for the company of one set of ladies. A cavalier in one party challenged a cavalier in the other by throwing down his glove. The two were provided with masks and fells, the latter's tips covered with chalk, and they appealed to the sword. The knights whose champion won the bout, which was decided by the appearance of a chalk mark on his opponent, danced off with the ladies faire, while the discomfited gentlemen retired with such grace as they could command.

The german was led by Lieut. T. W. Griffith, U. S. A., who is stationed in Lincoln as military instructor for the State University. The leader had the tact, skill, patience and self-abnegation so necessary for this post of duty and filled the place admirably. Lieut. Griffith was assisted by Miss Holmes of Kansas City, and Mr. H. Mansfield, Jr., of Omaha, honored by being the cavalier of Miss Funke. Following were the other dancers as paired: Hon. Richard Berlin, of Omaha, and Mrs. Elmer Dundy, Jr., of Omaha; Mr. John B. Wright and Miss Clara Agey; Mr. Frank Hathaway and Miss Martha Funke; Mr. H. T. Lemist and Mrs. Lieut. R. H. Townley; Mr. Charles Magoon and Miss Minnie Latta; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Beeson; Mr. Will Hardy and Miss Cora Hardy; Mr. George N. Foresman and Miss Aileen Oakley; Mr. J. C. Calhoun of Omaha, and Miss Miller of Lafayette, Indiana; Mr. H. A. Northam and Miss Lulu Clark; Mr. Louis Storrs and Miss Olive Latta; Mr. R. K. Cooper and Mrs. K. K. Hayden; Mr. Frank Burr and Miss Nana Lillibridge; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lippencott; Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Muir; Mr. Elmer Henkle and Miss Moore; Mr. Robert Muir and Miss Lulu Ballantine; Mr. C. R. Richter and Mrs. Stussy; Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sheldon; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Buckstaff; Mr. Wm. E. Clark and Miss Lona Giles; Mr. Oscar Funke and Miss Hamlin of New York; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Dennis; Mr. J. U. Higgenbotham and Miss Lulu Gruninger; Mr. H. C. Nutt and Miss Lemist; Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ogden; Mr. Frank Smith and Miss Anna Hawkins; Mr. Otto Morenstecher and Miss Anna Funke.

The favor tables were presided over by Miss Tote McMurtry, assisted by Messrs. Frank Polk and A. H. Buckstaff. Excellent music was furnished by the opera house orchestra. Among the spectators were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Funke, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Funke, Lieut. R. H. Townley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hargreaves, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Burr, Dr. and Mrs. Sherwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McMurtry, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Foster, Mrs. R. H. Oakley, Mrs. C. W. Mosher, Mrs. Foreman, Mrs. Dr. Fuller, Miss Cora Outcalt, Miss Addie Alger, Miss Dena Howell and Miss Maud Burr.

The german was a dressy affair and though most of the gowns were of dancing length, many elegant toilets were displayed. The fair readers of the COURIER will be interested in the following account of them:
 Miss Funke was attired in a charming costume of white muslin, elaborately trimmed with white ribbons. She carried a large bouquet of La France roses.
 Miss Holmes, Grecian toilet of pale canary tulle silk, on trains, with draperies of tulle embroidered with gold butterflies.
 Mrs. Dundy was daintily attired in a pale blue silk with draperies of tulle embroidered in blue; corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Miller, a charming debutante, wore a pink cashmere toilet elaborately trimmed with ribbons. She carried a bouquet of Bon Silene roses.
 Miss Martha Funke wore a Gretchen costume, black moire sash, pink roses.
 Miss Agey, pink cashmere with olive plush trimmings.
 Mrs. Lippencott, black lace with old gold velvet bodice.
 Miss Gruninger, a white silk costume, bodice decolletee; flowers.

 Miss Lillibridge, a Reanier costume of white china silk, corsage bouquet.
 Mrs. Dennis, white silk with draperies of white gauze.
 Miss Hawkins, black lace.
 Mrs. Towney was charmingly attired in a black lace costume, with V bodice, diamond ornaments.
 Miss Moore, a decolletee gown of black velvet.
 Mrs. Ogden, white china silk and sash, flowers.
 Miss Anna Funke, a delicate blue cashmere, La France roses.
 Miss Ballantine, blue silk with draperies of dotted mull, corsage bouquet of Marechal Neil roses.
 Miss Giles, a pretty costume of pink cashmere.
 Mrs. Muir, canary colored silk, amber ornaments.
 Miss Lemist, cream white silk with blue sash.
 Miss McMurtry's usual good taste and elegance were displayed in her rich attire. Her gown was of robin's egg blue silk, her ornaments diamonds.

The Druggists' Reception.
 The gentlemen of the Nebraska State Pharmaceutical Association are to be congratulated upon the success of their annual reception, a very pleasant affair. It was given at the state house Wednesday evening, and in addition to the druggists was attended by several hundred residents, among them a large representation of the swell society of the capital city. The unoccupied State library was used for dancing, and seventy-five to one hundred couples, many in full evening dress, took part in the giddy whirl. The balcony above was given over to the spectators, several hundred in number. The floor had been waxed into danceable smoothness, the Philharmonics played their best and gayety was unconfined until the wee sma' hours. The program comprised fourteen numbers, with an intermission in the middle, during which the company repaired to the Senate chamber and were refreshed with ices and cakes, served by Brown and his waiters.

The affair had been well planned by Messrs. H. S. Hefflinger, George McArthur, Alf. J. Shilling and C. M. Cobb, and the company found a competent floor management in the hands of Messrs. W. B. McArthur, W. E. Clark, R. Rhelaender, Doug. Shilling and W. B. Howard. The following gentlemen and their wives were the reception committee: Messrs. James Reed of Nebraska City, H. D. Boyden of Grand Island, S. E. Riggs of Beatrice, W. J. Turner, Charles J. Daubach, J. E. Riggs, H. V. Brown, J. H. Harley, A. L. Shnyder and B. O. Koski of Lincoln.
 Among those present were noticed, Messrs. and Mesdames Thos. C. Benton, Alf. Shilling, W. R. Dennis, J. J. Imhoff, Frank Gregg, F. E. Antram, Charles Gotthelf, C. S. Lippencott, W. B. McArthur, A. B. Cherrier, Geo. Brown, Wm. Tate, B. O. Koski, T. J. Hickey, Mesdames Wm. A. Preston, C. W. Mosher, R. H. Rhelaender and A. C. Masterson, Messrs. J. U. Higgenbotham, Frank Polk, C. R. Richter, Lieut. Griffith, Samuel Low, C. J. Danbach, George Holden, Frank Walton, W. M. Smith, Wm. Maxwell, Harry Hefflinger, Abraham Hess, F. M. Hilton, Frank McDonald, George McArthur, Fred Hallett, Frank Harris, Frank Lester, J. E. Thompson, Elmer Appleton, E. H. Andrus, H. R. Nissley, Otto Moemtecher, H. Mansfield, Jr., J. E. Ferris. Misses Minnie and Olive Latta, Clara and Martha Funke, Aileen and Belle Graham, Gertrude Marquette, Dena Loomis, Clara Agey, Gertrude Ziemer, Nana Lillibridge, Gertrude Laws, Lona Giles, Birdie and Lillian Ferris, Clarke Pace, Lottie Andrus, Ethel Marsland, Helen Merrihew, Lizzie Bonnell, Laura Buzzard, Maggie English, Lily Hathaway, Cora Hardy.

The Druggists' Feast.
 The annual reunion of the druggists of the state was brought to a happy close Thursday evening with a banquet at the Windsor tendered by the pharmacists of Lincoln. The assembling guests were regaled with a musical program on the parlor floor, during which the young people improved the spacious hall and the opportunity for dancing. About half past ten sat down to a spread of good things, conspicuous among which, at each place, was a small bottle of the product of the Irondequoit wine company. As master of ceremonies Mr. Charles J. Daubach pronounced the toasts and the following program brought out a flow of wit and sense, of jest and truth:
 The Retail Druggist..... Henry D. Boyden.
 Our Own Nebraska..... Gov. J. M. Thayer.
 The Prescription..... Hon. Sam D. Cox.
 The Nebraska Bar..... Hon. E. P. Holmes.
 The Wholesale Druggist..... Hon. H. T. Clarke.
 The Doctor vs. the Druggist..... H. B. Lewis, M. D.
 Our Exhibitors..... Henry Bernard.
 The Judiciary..... Judge M. B. Reese.
 City of Lincoln..... Hon. G. M. Lamberton.
 The Ladies..... Rev. E. B. Ralston.

A Fond Farewell.
 One of the most enjoyable social affairs was a surprise party given Tuesday evening in compliment to Miss Mamie Smith on the eve of her departure for her home at Crawfordsville, Ind. The company met at the residence of Mrs. Polk, Sixth and D streets. The rooms were aglow with light and fun, and Mr. Frank Polk was voted a royal host. Among the invited guests were Misses Olive Latta, Martha Funke, Aileen and Belle Oakley, Hallie Hooper, Gertrude Marquette, Dolly and Kitty Cowdry, Annie Funke, Lulu Ballantine, Lotta Andrus, Gertrude Laws, Clara Agey and Mattie Gillespie and Messrs. Griffith, Templeton, Storrs, Marshall, Houts, Maxwell, Wheeler, Langworthy, Burr, Kerman, McArthur, Wilson, Low, Jansen, Funke and Andrus.

HABERDASHERY.

Not another store in Nebraska carries such an extensive and well assorted stock of Gentlemen's fine fixings, from the indispensable Collar Button to the thousand and one other useful things too numerous to tell about. Our Neckwear trade is something simply immense and we now enjoy the largest patronage for Neckwear in the City and no wonder for we carry everything new that the markets afford. In Spring Underwear we carry fancy and plain Balbriggans in all grades from 30c to $3.00 per suit. Tennis Coats and Belts, and a matchless line of Flannel and Silk Outing Shirts. A handsome stock of Nobby Straw Hats, and remember we are sole agents for Youman's Fine Silk and Derby Hats.
