Mrs. R.—Why, professor, what is the matter!

Professor Von Spielen (angrily)—Madame, I spend von hour und von half dis morning to exblain to der young lady vot is der difference between von whole rest und von half rest, und she still take der half rest ven I say der whole rest!

Mrs. R.—Why, Elsie, I am surprised. Why don't you do as the professor tells you? You know you have plenty of time.—Life.

At one time this season there were 721 companies playing throughout the country. This includes permanent stock companies, and excludes a few western companies which start out from San Francisco to forage over the Pacific coast. Over two hundred failed in three months, nearly sixty closed for reorganization, and several played in spells. Dan Sully has played the longest season, having continued uninterrupted, excepting blizzard week, ever since July, 1887. The tendency among all managers who are making expenses is to lengthen seasons, and Mr. Sully's unique feat is likely to be frequently repeated hereafter by other heads of combinations.

The fur opening at W. R. Dennis' this week has been a great success and in fact the largest business and best display ever made in Lincoln was the result. Dennis never undertakes anything but what he makes a success.
