POPULATION OF LINCOLN, 60,000.

"The Courier" at the Resorts.

Persons leaving the city for the summer can have THE COURIER sent them without extra charge. In case of changes of location during the absence from home, the address will be altered whenever desired. This applies to present and new subscribers. Have the COURIER follow you as a means of keeping posted on home affairs. Its weekly appearance will prove more interesting than a letter.

The state militia will go into camp at Beatrice, September 14.

DURING July ten convicts at the pen were punished by solitary confinement.

A CONVENTION will be held at Temple hall at 2 p. m. of Tuesday to organize a county non-partisan prohibition league.

EIGHTEEN persons were admitted to the Soldiers' Home during July: eight men, three wives, three boys and three girls.

JUDGE REESE, of the supreme court, it is said, will have a formidable opponent for re-nomination in the person of Judge Hamer, of Kearney.

The third party prohibitionists have called a state convention to meet in Lincoln August 21st and 22nd. No candidates for the nominations have yet bobbed up.

The Governor has appointed Captain W. C. Henry of Fillmore county to the command of the Soldiers' Home at Grand Island in the place of Col. Hammond, resigned.

The Woman's Associate Board of Charities has appointed Mesdames Boehna, Harlan, McDowell, Davidson and Van Court a committee to pass in the adoption of infants.

PATIENCE is rewarded. Col. Billy McCann has received his $3,000 land office at Chadron. The man he displaces is Gen. Milton Montgomery, at one time police judge of Lincoln.

AUDITOR BENTON says either he or Insurance Deputy Allen will this year attend the meeting of the National Insurance Commissioners, which will be held at Denver, September 4.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway has abandoned the only road bed it had in this state. It was made nine years ago and extended from Niobrara to Atkinson in northern Nebraska.

J. A. KILROY, a candidate for Judge Stewart's official shoes, has deemed it necessary to publish a card announcing that he was born at Lockport, New York. He also challenges Judge Stewart to a joint debate.

It was an unusual coincidence last week that Mrs. Gov. Thayer, now in Massachusetts, was quite ill, that Lieut. Geo. McKeljohn was too sick to relieve the Governor and that the latter's private secretary was also confined to his room.

The Journal deemed it necessary to issue a circular letter denying the Call's story that Fred Nye, of Omaha, had bought the former paper. The Omaha Republican also thought it necessary to editorially deny the report, which was a "fake" on its face.

JUDGE GROFF of Omaha, who was invited to Washington by President Harrison, called on the latter last Monday. The judge is being pushed by Senators Manderson and Paddock for a place on the national railroad commission. Congressman Connell says he will get that place or a land commissioner'ship.

WITH its next issue, THE COURIER will begin a series of articles regarding the great northwest, written by the editor, who personally visited that section as chairman of the recent Nebraska press excursion. Being at the head of so prominent a body, he certainly had more than ordinary opportunity to become thoroughly posted, and therefore the articles will be of more than passing interest.

The state fair management is negotiating with Prof. Baldwin, the aeronaut, to secure his attendance. It is learned that he will be present in consideration of $2,000, and make three jumps from a balloon on three successive days. It is understood that he makes these remarkable jumps from his balloon at a height of 1,000 to 1,500 feet, and with the aid of a parachute descends successfully to the ground.

DURING the past ten days the editor of the COURIER has received numerous copies of Nebraska papers with marked notices complimenting him on the management and success of the recent editorial excursion to the northwest, and it is only owing to modesty that the same are not reproduced in our columns. However, the pleasant opinions are duly appreciated, and it is to be hoped that many of those who were on the last may join in a subsequent press jaunt to renew acquaintance and friendship. It is certainly very gratifying to the writer to receive these acknowledgements and to know that his efforts were duly appreciated. Thanks, kind friends, thanks, and may you ever look back on the '89 press excursion with pleasant thoughts and satisfaction that the time was well spent.

THE SEASIDE FASHIONS.

HINTS FOR MAIDS AND MATRONS ABOUT WATERING PLACE STYLES.

Bathing Dresses and What They Are Made Of—Some Evening Costumes—A New and Pretty Conceit in Hair Dressing—Hide Your Ears.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—What the wild waves are saying is now the question that interests the feminine person more than what is to be worn next spring, and where woman's heart is there also will go my pen, yes, even though it has to wade through rivers of ink and travel over oceans of foolscap to get there.

Blue flannel or serge is used to make the modest and ladylike bathing dress illustrated, and it is trimmed with white mohair braid and flat blue buttons. The skirt of the dress comes to the knees and the trousers three or four inches below. This same style is carried out for children and to a certain extent for the men.

A SENSIBLE BATHING SUIT.

In many, even the most bathing and seaside places, the bathing costumes are anything but modest, and young girls and matrons loll about the sands in a manner the reverse of delicate, and many bathers dress for bath in their own rooms and then throw a long cloak over the scanty costume and run down to the beach. In the ideal place, however, you will see mothers and children going hand in hand down to the bath houses, and from thence into the invigorating sea, and all the while habited as any man would like to see his wife, or father his daughter.

In the pretty illustration which shows a mother and child going down to the beach, I do not wish to have any one suppose that the mother's bathing costume is locked up in her little hand bag. It is only the Newport and Long Branch belles who can carry their bathing dresses in their bonbon boxes among their caramels. We will suppose, therefore, that she keeps hers at the bath house.

Costumes for the seaside for all occasions should be of such goods as will neither shrink, spot or grow limp, and, therefore, for ordinary day wear serge, black, blue or maroon is better than anything else.

Soft silks and lace dresses for evening are nice, and so is nun's veiling. Cashmeres are apt to feel sticky. Surah for trimming on dresses is good to use, for its principal claim is its softness and flexibility. All who go to the seaside should take plenty of wraps, and none should go without flannel undervests, as there is always a chill in the atmosphere. Feathers, except stiff ones, are ruined by the dampness. Thick shoes are safer than thin ones.

The costume represented in this cut is of dark blue serge, with a front and vest of cream surah, with a band of Persian embroidery up the center, and blue straw hat with cream lace and daisies. The child's dress is of two shades of blue serge, trimmed with white braid and white flannel vest and collar.

The other day I happened in the leading jewelry house to look for dog collars, and among the mass of silver collars, leather bands and chased and decorated neckwear for rich folks' bowwows I found several silver chains two and three yards long, and I naturally asked if those were to lead the dogs with. The clerk said no, that they were for young ladies to wear in their hair, and he showed several different kinds, some in gold, some copper and bronze, and besides those were several Greek fillets of gold and silver. These I was told are sold to young ladies who have discovered that this style of dressing the hair is becoming to them. The fillets made of the baser metals are for day use and the more precious ones for evening.

I am glad that women have come to a realizing sense that each should adopt a style of hairdressing for herself that exactly becomes her style. Just now much latitude is allowed, but some light rings or curls of hair lying over the brow soften any face, yet no one should overlook the fact that in arranging the front hair there is no rule that will produce the same results for two women; but it is safe to say that curls or frizzes should not be too compact, and they should be brought down as far around the ears as possible. Many women wear a compact mass of frizzes straight across the forehead, having the hair drawn tightly back from the temples, leaving the ear to stand out bare and ugly when it should be partially concealed in a soft mass of hair.

OLIVE HARPER.

Song of the Cyclist.
 Farewell to winter, cold and dread
 To snow and blow and icicle,
 Exclaims Adolphus in the shed
 A scrubbing up his bicycle.
 O soon I'll push o'er dusty street
 This thirty inch "Superior."
 And paralyze each maid I meet
 With grace of my exterior.
 And they'll not guess, now, I dare say
 In these intense enthrallment, oh!
 That I for this machine do pay
 On a plan that's called installment oh.
 And that from seven to six I stand
 Selling Quaker Rolled Oats o'er the counter oh!

Another Center For Homes.

There is abundant evidence of the stability of Lincoln real estate values, and one of the latest cases in point occurred in connection with the new addition known as Walnut Park. A short time ago McBride & Bell sold the J. E. Spencer homestead, five acres, to Des Moines parties for $11,000 cash. Councilman Dean has two acres adjoining, and the two tracts have been platted as the new addition. McBride & Bell are the exclusive agents for the Des Moines investors, and are offering choice lots at $750 to $1,200. This property is located at about Thirtieth and R streets, four blocks east of Grace M. E. church. It is covered with trees and a fine grass sod, and the buyer will not have to live in the weeds and the sun for ten years. It is especially noteworthy that the place has many fruit trees of fifteen to twenty years growth. Everything combines to make this one of the most desirable additions for residence. McBride & Bell are prepared to assist buyers with loans to erect houses. Their office is in the basement of the Capital National bank, 107 South Eleventh Street.

Lovers of Novel Reading, Look.

Messrs. A. E. Richardson & Co., the enterprising proprietors of the new Boston dry goods house, have just added a new feature to their business that will certainly prove interesting to their large number of patrons. They have just opened a large line of paper cover novels, which will be sold at ten cents per copy. The assortment just opened is only a forerunner of an order now in transit of 1,000 volumes, embracing the works of all the leading authors of the past and present. These books are substantially bound, handsomely printed and unabridged. See their large advertisement on page four of this issue, then call and make your selection.

Ladies, Look at This!

THE COURIER is requested to announce to the ladies of Lincoln that Foreman & Crowe will commence next Monday to sell everything in their handsome store at prices that are beyond honorable competition. On September first this firm takes its annual inventory, and being especially desirous of having the stock as low as possible, they offer a fine line of corsets, hosiery, gloves and all ladies' furnishing goods at prices that cannot fail to be appreciated. This means business, and if you want bargains, now's the time to buy.

On a Tombstone.

Here lies the body of a man
 O'er whose death so many weep,
 If he'd only eaten Quaker Oats
 He wouldn't be asleep.

She was the starlight, sunlight, moonlight of her people. The earth was bathed in the golden haze of autumn. 'Twas Priscilla the Puritan maiden who arm in arm with her John Aiden wandered mid the pumpkins and the golden crooknecks. They were going over to Plymouth Rock to buy a package of Quaker Rolled Oats from Col. Miles Standish the grocer of the colony. Like all sensible people they think they can't keep house without Quaker Oats.

How Thomas Williams Had Great Luck in holding a ticket which drew the $25,000 prize at the May drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery. He was found at his work in the Jefferson Iron works, where he has been employed for years as a painter. I was unsuccessful in capturing anything, but kept on until before the May drawing, when I sent two dollars to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., and received a one-tenth ticket number 87,826. The drawing took place May 14, and on the 17th I learned that ticket 87,826 had drawn the $25,000 prize.—Stuebenville (O.) Herald, June 6.

Of the folks who are a singing "We Shall Eat Our Quaker Oats."

If Princess Louise wants to make a good wife,

To her husband from Scotland the Earl of Fife,

She'll write out a postal and say if you please Will you send us some Quaker Oats from over the seas?

Have you used any Quaker Oats yet? If you have not you had better go and get some at once. Don't you know that delays are dangerous!
