HEROES OF THE CRUSADES by Amanda M. Douglas, Lee & Shepard, publishers. Price $1.50. For sale by Leasing.

Generally a history of individuals, this book is so comprehensive that it also becomes a history of the crusades. There is perhaps no epoch in the history of man about which clusters so much of romance and heroism as the crusades. They are pervaded with a glamour of romantic interest that makes their story a never tiring entertainment. In this work the author has taken ten of the leaders of both sides and given a very readable account of the parts they played in the crusades. The story of their valor cannot fail of being an inspiration to the young.

Parents should be careful that their children do not contract colds during the fall or early winter months. Such colds weaken the lungs and air passages, making the child much more likely to contract other colds during the winter. It is this succession of colds that causes catarrh or bronchitis or paves the way for consumption. Should a cold be contracted lose no time, but cure it as quickly as possible. A fifty-cent bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure any cold in a few days and leave the respiratory organs strong and healthy. For sale by A. L. Shadler, druggist.

To the Public. Having changed the location of our city ticket office from 115 South Twelfth street to the more central one of 1133 O street, near Funk's opera house, we take this occasion to offer our thanks for the generous patronage the Northwestern Line, Elkhorn road, has received, and to solicit a continuance of the same in the future.

As a matter worthy of attention the statement is made that, whereas, the first service on this line between Lincoln and Chicago consumed nearly 24 hours, several more than by competitive lines, the time is now 17 hours and 30 minutes, or fifteen minutes less than any other service.

By our fast train, connections are made at Missouri Valley with the Northwestern's vestibule limited, composed of Palace sleeping, dining and reclining chair cars, also with the St. Paul limited for Sioux City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and the northwest. Sleeping accommodations are reserved in advance for St. Paul and the southwest, Chicago and the east, when desired.

A cordial invitation to call is extended to all who desire information concerning our line of railway, assure of its being cheerfully furnished. Geo. N. Fursman, Agent. A. S. Fielding, City Ticket Agt. 1133 O street.

VERY MODEST INDEED.

A Young Man Wins $15,000 in the Louisiana State Lottery, but Says 'For Heaven's Sake Don't Say I Told You.'

Perhaps the most modest young man who ever struck the capital prize in the Louisiana State lottery is August J. Miller, a young printer with a pompadour hair cut and a little black mustache, who is in the employ of the Nixon & Jones Printing company, No. 212 Pine street, and who lives at the house of his brother-in-law, Mr. Coleman, a horse-collar maker at 1417 South Twelfth street. Mr. Miller held a 20th part of ticket No. 63,850, which drew the $30,000 prize in the drawing on Tuesday, Oct. 15. A Star-Sayings reporter called on Miller a few days ago, and he flatly denied drawing the money. This morning he called again, after ascertaining that there was no doubt whatever as to Mr. Miller's receiving the sum of $15,000 by check through the New Orleans National bank. Mr. Miller still retained his modesty on the subject, and declared that he did not want his name published.

'I will tell you I won $15,' said he, 'which was a portion of an approximation prize of $300.'

'Are you sure you did not draw $15,000?' After some consideration the young man finally acknowledged that he drew the entire amount of $15,000 through Mr. Pardue, the agent of the Southern Express company at New Orleans, who in turn collected the money at the bank at New Orleans, on account of August J. Miller of St. Louis.

But Mr. Miller persisted that he did not draw the money for himself, but that he drew it for a club of fifteen. He said: 'I drew the whole amount, $15,000, besides the $15 I won myself, and the amount has been divided equally between the members of the club.'

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Miller's daily occupation is setting type for the great weekly journal known as the Spectator, he was urgently averse to having his name appear in print, notwithstanding his great streak of luck by striking the lottery's richest vein. St. Louis (Mo.) Star-Sayings, Nov. 1.

A preventative for croup. There no longer exists any doubt but croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning, and if Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as directed as soon as the first indication of croup appears, it will invariably dispel all symptoms of the disease. This can always be done if it is kept at hand. 50c and $1 bottles for sale by A. L. Shadler.

'The Limited Fast Mail.'

The Union Pacific Railway, the Overland Route, has just put on a Limited Fast Mail train to carry the United States mail between Council Bluffs and San Francisco and Portland. This daily Fast Mail train will carry a limited number of passengers, and in addition to the United States mail cars and a baggage car, will be composed of a Vestibule Palace Sleeper and a Pullman Dining car for Portland, and a Vestibule Palace Sleeper for San Francisco, thus accommodating a limited number of passengers.

The sleepers and the diner will run through from Chicago via the Chicago & Northwestern railway. Only first-class tickets will be honored on this train.

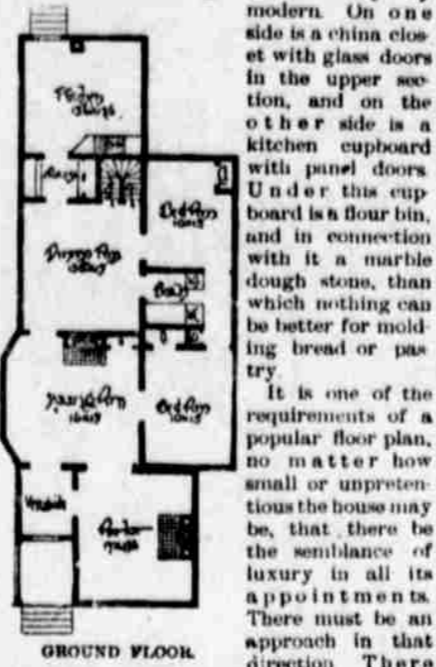

This train, with its connections, makes the extraordinary time of 107 hours New York to San Francisco, and 104 hours to Portland. As accommodations are limited, early application for seats should be made to the Union Pacific agents or to E. L. Lomax, General Passenger Agent, Omaha, Neb.

Now Mr. Decker Will Take Things Easy

Mr. Decker is a married man and has two children. He resided at 631 Ninth avenue, in the third floor. For six or seven years he has worked for the firm of Wessel, Nisbet & Gross of 437 West 45th street. They are manufacturers of piano actions. On Labor Day he invested a dollar in a one-twentieth ticket in the Louisiana State Lottery. The number was 8,174. He read in the News the dispatch from New Orleans that ticket No. 8,174 had drawn the capital prize of $300,000; it made his wife open her eyes. He received a telegram that his dollar investment had yielded $15,000. He took the ticket to Wells, Fargo & Co. for collection. He received the $15,000 less the collection charge of $62.50. -New York News, Oct. 5.

A CONVENIENT HOUSE.

Plans for a Residence in Which the Mistress May 'Do Her Own Work.' 'She does her own work' is an expression frequently used of a lady who does not employ help. A difficulty in planning a one-story house is in providing room for a servant. It is not desirable to have her room opening from the sitting room or dining room, nor is it altogether satisfactory to have such a room opening from the kitchen. Furthermore, the expense of placing it in any of these places is a very material consideration. In the plan which is here given this difficulty is met by providing a stairway that leads to the high part of the roof over the dining room. Thus, with very little additional expense, a large, airy room, one which cannot but be in every way satisfactory, is provided for the servant.

It is one of the requirements of a popular floor plan, no matter how small or unpretentious the house may be, that there be the semblance of luxury in all its appointments. There must be an approach in that direction. There must be the same classification of rooms in a small, one-story house that is to be found in the more expensive and elaborate structure. In this case, in a small, inexpensive, one-story house, there is parlor, sitting room, dining room and kitchen, and as well the bedrooms. This makes the planning of low cost, one-story houses a very troublesome matter. The classification is on the wrong side of the house. There is a very large amount of space for parlor, sitting room and dining room, but when it comes to the bedrooms, classification is not to be considered. We often see families living in houses where they insist upon the use of all of the day rooms also mentioned, but are apparently content with two, or at most three, bedrooms.

This suggests a consolidation at night which is uncomfortable to contemplate. In making use of the attic space a part of the problem of added bedrooms in a low cost house, which has nearly all of the rooms on one floor, is met. These attic rooms are quite as comfortable and in every way as satisfactory as those which are below, as the ceilings are square, the stories sufficiently high and ventilation by windows amply provided for. More than the one bedroom could be added if desired.

Another peculiarity with respect to the planning of one-story houses is that people will content themselves with a bedroom much smaller than they will in a two-story house of the same cost. The same accommodations can be provided in a two-story house at a less cost than in a one-story house for reasons which are obvious to any one who will stop to think about it. The roof and foundation of a one-story house would be ample for one, two, or more stories high. A two-story house is more imposing, affords better ventilation, and with the conveniences of plumbing, is in every way as convenient as the one-story house.

The one-story dwelling was altogether logical at a time when all of the water and fuel had to be carried to the second floor and all of the ashes and slops down stairs and out of the house. Furnaces, plumbing apparatus and other helps to housekeeping suggest something different. If we have four rooms down stairs we have place for four rooms and a bath room up stairs. This number of rooms can be built at about the same cost as the one-story house, which is given herewith. There are conditions wherein the house which is given would be desirable—as a home for a man and his wife, with one or two children, or for people without children. The annexed schedule gives an idea of costs:

Table listing costs for building a one-story house, including items like Building—First floor, privy, vaults, cisterns, connections, illuminating gas-pipe, plumbing, cellar sink, kitchen sink, bath tub, water closet, washstand, street washer, city and cistern water, gas fixtures, mantels and grates, and furnace.
