SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Considerable excitement was stirred up faturday and Sunday over the disappearance f J. F. Barnard, now living in Omaha. His in New York that he is in excellent health whereabouts were unknown for about two and spirits and will return from Europeabout weeks. Mrs. Barnard made anxious inquiries, and a Kansas City paper had a sensational item about his disappearance. Mr. Barnard turned up at Omaha Sunday afternoon rather surprised at the hubub he had created. He explained that he had been in the interior of Arkansas on business. Mr. A. B. Coffroth, an intimate friend, says Mr. Barnard, when away on business, is liable to become so absorbed in it as to forget to write home. Since going to Omaha it seems that Mr. Barnard nade an unsuccessful attempt to organize a packing company. Lately he has been trying o form a company for the manufacture of ar els and staves.

A wedding of interest to many was cele, ented so quietly last week that it eluded all oporters for a time. The parties to it were Wr. Elmer Fisher, a young contracter with a promising career before him, and MissOlive, aughter of Mr. James A. Bailey, the well known decorator. The ceremony was pera med Thursday evening at the bride's home the presence of only a few friends.

O. W. Webster and J. Z. Briscoe bought the boot and shoe stock of Perkins Bros. and save put Frank Perkins in charge of it. battle was expected within a day or two, though Jackson's plans were so carefully guarded that not even his adjutant could guess then intelligently. This self reliance was characteristic of Jackson, and his aversion to telling his plans was well known amongst his officers and men. In fact, it was his policy to surprise his own men no less than to surprise the enemy.

Gen. Jackson was one of a group of officers, and another of the group was a Georgia colonel who is still living. Conversation was dragging. Jackson was thoughtful and had little to say, and the effect was dampening. Finally, just to revive the conversation, the Georgia colonel asked abruptly:

"General, will we have a fight to-morrow. Everybody knew in an instant that the blunder was irreparable and nobody realized this more than the colonel.

Jackson turned quickly and stared full in the speaker's face. Then he slowly surveyed the colonel from head to foot, and back again. The silence was painful.

"Colonel," said the general slowly, but not in an unkind tone, "can you keep a secret?" "Yes, general," was the warm, if embar rassed, assurance, "I know I can, general.

Yes, sir" "Are you quite certain, colonel?"

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"A Possible Case" was produced at Funke" last night and will be repeated this evening. The Chicago Times says: While the subject of divorce can hardly be recommended or inlorsed for frivolous treatment on the stage of a theater, yet there are so many absurd and comic sides to the question that there can of Arkansas. The play is of the same farcical type as those presented by Daly's company; is well written, breezy, satirical, clear cut, full of animation, abounds in clean and keen wit and humor, is refreshing and as attractive and meritorious a play as one could wish to witness. Were the play inclined to be weak, the efforts of Mr. Hill's admirable company would make it go. The case is one of great merit and the members have been so long ssociated together that their work is perormed with regularity, smoothness and perfection. M. A. Kennedy, whose Cattermole in "The Private Secretary" has not been forgotten, has the part of a rich old fellow who unintentionally becomes the husband of two wives, and his assumption of the character is
