MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

Harry Freund, writing of Italian opera in New York, says: On every occasion that Patti sang the house was overcrowded. The soft, sugary melodies of Patti in "Martha" at a Saturday matinee drew such multitudes that hundreds of ladies stood up during the whole of the performance, and many others were unable to obtain admission at all. In "Lucia" on the 7th Patti in the mad scene awakened all the old enthusiasm for the brilliancy of her fortissimo, while the sextette of the second act won the customary encore. Guille, the tenor at this performance, received mild commendation, but Patti was all-in-all and satisfied everybody's demands. Of course, she had to sing "Home, Sweet Home," with the usual accompanying action and conventional pathos. The production of "Lakme" was a mistake. If it could not have been better sung it should have been passed by. Patti for the first time, dressed in bad taste, and in a garb and shoon wholly inappropriate to the part omitted most of the high notes in her music, and only secured a mild encore for the bell song. To the audience the evening was saved by "Home, Sweet Home" again; but the press, deaf to the blandishments of this familiar tune, opened fire on even the petted Patti the next day. The opera was so mutilated that it is scarcely necessary to remember or note what the supporting artists did; but they did not save the work from censure, and they induced unfortunate comparisons with the production of "Lakme" a few years ago by Mrs. Thurber's American opera company. The audience, however, was as large as ever. The season shows that Italian opera at high prices can only be given here with Patti, and the Diva, in proving this, has achieved the greatest triumph of a great career. She is the one person in the world on whom the impresario of Italian opera in America, when he chooses to charge double rates, can depend for financial success. Tamagno, the great tenor, has left our shores after creating a sensation in musical circles here without winning the paying popularity he seems to have attained elsewhere. His faraway appearance was in "Otello." He leaves an amusing record of personal characteristics in which extreme parsimony in trifling affairs is the prevailing characteristic. He quarrelled with his hotel proprietor, and formed a dislike for our country to which, he says, he will never return.

Under date of Saturday last Dunlop writes from New York: The only thing absolutely new during the week is a one-act comedy by E. W. Sydney, called "Wig and Gown." Rosina Vokes opened a six weeks' season at Daly's. It made a distinct hit, and the delightful genius of Miss Vokes was never put to sterner trial. At the Bijou "The City Directory" is in its zenith of prosperity, the house being crowded at every performance. The same splendid company that has been seen in "The Burglar" have been cordially received by large audiences. It will be followed next week by Dan Sully's new play, "The Millionaire." At the Fifth Avenue Donnelly and Girard's "Natural Gas" con-times to draw phenomenally large audiences and will close its season to a net profit of $25,000. "The Old Homestead" closes its season at the Academy May 10, when the full opera company will revive "Pinafore." This is the last work of "The Shennandoah" at the Twenty-third street Theater. It will be followed next week by Stuart Robson in "The Henrietta," "Money Mad," at the Standard, is unexpectedly doing fairly, the scenery painted by Walter Burridge, of Chicago, being particularly admired. Business has been good at all the theaters.

E. W. Potter, the post master at Elm Creek, says he has personal knowledge of several cases of rheumatism, in that vicinity, that have been permanently cured by Chamberlain's Pain Balm, after other remedies were used without benefit. He has sold it at his drug store there for five years and says he never knew it to fail, that "any customer who once used Chamberlain's Pain Balm will have nothing else instead." For sale by A. L. Shrader, druggist.

SHORT-HAND IN TEN LESSONS.

As announced in last week's issue, the COURIER will commence in another week the publication of a series of short-hand lessons taking the student through the entire Pitman system of short-hand and enabling him with practice to acquire a sufficient speed in the art to become a skillful reporter. The plates which the COURIER will use in presenting the lessons were all engraved by hand and are models of neatness and accuracy. Short-hand is not only a beautiful art, but is at the same time a paying business, and the COURIER feels justified in giving a good deal of space to this subject, which in the past few years has grown to such great importance. The COURIER special class, each member of which will receive individual criticism from the editor, Mr. Bert E. Betts of this city, offers an extraordinary opportunity for getting a full course of lessons for only $2.00 (including the COURIER for three months), which would ordinarily cost $10 to $20. A large number have already signified their intention of joining this class. Send your name at once to Bert E. Betts, Stenographer, Lincoln, Neb., if you wish to join. A good stenographer is sure of an excellent paying position at all times. The demand for such work has more than doubled during the past year and is increasing much more rapidly than the supply.

Desk Room and Offices.

In our new counting room which is carpeted with body Brussels and otherwise handsomely furnished, we have built a neat railing, giving room for two offices, or desk room, which we will rent reasonably to the right parties. Offices kept clean, heated, and use of telephone given. Apply at office.

Fortunate Chicagoans.

In the February 11th drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery drawing two citizens drew cash prizes which have made them wealthy. H. A. Hulburd, 38 Metropolitan Block, is one of the lucky citizens. To a Traveler representative Mr. Hulburd said: "I held one-quarter of ticket No. 40,919 which drew the third capital prize of $50,000. The cash, $12,500, was promptly received by me through the American Express Co." Messrs. Charles Kominski & Co., bankers at 108 Washington street, collected for a customer, through the State National bank of New Orleans, one-twentieth of ticket No. 94,285 which drew the first capital prize of $300,000 in the same drawing.—Chicago, (Ill.) Arkansas Traveler, March 15.

Not Wholly Useless.

Sentimental Young Woman (looking pensively at mummy)—Three thousand years ago this was a human being! A living, breathing, pulsating creature, with hopes, aspirations, joys and sorrows such as we have! And what has it earned by the preservation of its mortal part? Nothing but the contemptible celebrity of being a curiosity in a museum! Useless! Useless! Practical! Exact! Not entirely, Miss Grimes. You take a mummy and grind it up and it makes a mighty good fertilizer.—Chicago Times.

No Expense Spared.

May—These dresses from Worth's are part of Pendola's trousseau. She's going to marry Lord Dedbrooke directly after Easter, you know.

Louise—How lovely. Isn't she going to have an expensive outfit, though?

May—Yes, but it is not the dresses that cost the most. Her father had to pay half a million for Lord Dedbrooke.—Munsey's Weekly.

Why He Had Never Done It.

In an Omaha church recently Sam Jones shouted: "Is there a man present who never spoke a cross word to his wife?" The silence was becoming oppressive. People looked here and there. Every husband present wanted to get up but did not dare to. But the sadness that had possession of Jones' face vanished a moment later when a round faced, good natured man arose from his seat. "Thank God!" exclaimed Sam, "there is one man who never spoke a cross word to his wife!" The good natured man smiled, a bland smile and said: "No, sir, I never did. I'm a bachelor." Then he put on his hat and calmly walked out the door.—New York Tribune.

What He Would Think.

Trump (with tears in his eyes)—I do not ask you for money, sir, but what would you think if I should tell you I have been eating for forty-eight hours and my poor wife and children are now starving in the street!

Practical Citizen—I'd think you were a liar. Good morning.—Washington Star.

The Real Cause.

Hostess—What a modest young Jimmy is in society! He hesitates to address himself to the ladies, while you, Frank, are just the other way.

Frank—Pshaw! it isn't modesty that ails Jim.

"No. What then?"

"It's lack of nerve."—Chicago Times.

Fearful!

"Awful accident at the museum."

"What was it?"

"The wild dog from Borneo got loose last night and ate up three-quarters of the ossified man while he slept."

"Does the ossified man know it?"

"No; they're afraid to tell him."—Life.

Why She Looked Doleful.

He (meditatively)—What makes that tallowy blue look so unhappy?

She (carelessly)—Oh, she was disappointed in love.

He (interestedly)—Fellow went back on her? She (sharply)—No—married her.—West Shore.

He Tried to Fill Her Place.

"My wife is a great and noble woman, of wonderful domestic endowments."

"Why this sudden advance in your estimate of her?"

"She left me to take care of the children a couple of hours yesterday."—Chicago Times.

A Stroke of Fortune.

Hobbs—I made ten dollars last night.

Dobbs—How so?

Hobbs—I met Nobbs on the street, and he asked me to lend him twenty dollars until to-morrow. Luckily, I had only ten dollars in my pocket.—Somerville Journal.
