Plate 4. LESSON IV. KEY TO PLATE 4. 4 Fee fe vie Ho lay lee now (verb) now (noun). 5 Oaf eve sei Isle ire our life lover. 6 Nile knoll kneel name hope league chore boil. 7 Nose face sign save more sown aims James. 8 Dio leech scours souls arise Flido vorage Milo. 9 Word Signs—For have will me my him in any no. 10 Never now give anything that first we you. Translate L 11 to 15. (The words in L 11 and 12 occur also in the exercise below.)

After a, e, and in some other cases, I is written downwards. See L 6. It is then called e; and when struck upwards, ay. The signs for I, ol, and ov, should be made as small, light, and sharp-angled as possible. When two vowels are written by one stem, one is placed nearer, according to the order in which they occur. The circle s is always written on the inside of curves. At first, curves are difficult to write. As to degree of curvature, they should be nearly one-fourth of a circle. Be careful to bend them evenly throughout. In this and all remaining Lessons, spend at least two hours in copying and re-copying the Plate. Then write the words as they are read to you from the Key, compare with the Plate, and repeat until no errors are found. Also write and re-write the exercise a number of times. Occasionally transcribe your shorthand, and compare the translation with the original print. At first write slowly, and with great care; afterwards increase your speed gradually.

On Sunday Major McArthur received a check for $1,282 from the subsistence department of the United States army at Washington, which has been due him for twenty-seven years as commutation of rations while he was on sick furlough during the civil war. Major McArthur enlisted in 1861 and served throughout the war. He was absent on account of sickness during the months of May and June, 1862, for which he was allowed 25 cents a day. This was the only time the major was absent from duty during the great struggle.

IV. In learning the list-words a good plan is to write the proper characters in a column at the left margin of a sheet of practice paper, afterwards filling out each line by writing the words over and over, gradually increasing the speed. Always carry in your pocket a copy of this paper containing the short-hand lesson of the current week, to read whenever an opportunity for a few minutes' study may be had.

Most pupils press the pen too hard upon the paper, making both the light and heavy lines heavier than they should be. This extra pressure means more friction, more labor, more time, less speed. The rapid stenographer always touches the paper lightly. It is an excellent plan to cultivate lightness of touch by frequent practice in writing the thin stems as fine as possible, executing them rapidly, barely touching the paper with the pen.

The learner who always cultivates a compact style of writing will in the end be both rapid and accurate. By compactness of style is meant that the characters be written not only small but closely together. The handwriting of most all beginners is too large and sprawling.

More Photos From Falk. Falk, the famous New York photographer, has sent us another lot of artistic photos, and among them are handsomely engraved of the junior and senior Salvini, Patti, Stuart Robson, William Crane, James O'Neill as the "Monte Cristo," in the various costumes, Agnes Booth in her latest Madison Square success, "Aunt Jack," W. J. Florence, Richard Mansfield, Robert Mantell in "Monbars," Sara Jewett and others.

This will be of interest. The special committee, appointed at the state teachers' convention held at Lincoln in March last, to make arrangements for the comfort and accommodation of the teachers of Nebraska en route to the annual meeting of the national educational association to be held at St. Paul in July, have issued a circular in reference to these matters, and have selected the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway as the best route over which to run a special teachers' train (to leave Omaha at a specified time) for this great occasion.

Beware of Bogus Stanley Books. The great demand for an account of the thrilling adventures and explorations of Henry M. Stanley, has prompted unscrupulous publishers to flood the country with a host of bogus books, claiming to be "Stanley's Own," but to which Mr. Stanley has not contributed a single line.

Do not be deceived by these worthless books. The only one to which Mr. Stanley has contributed a single line is written by himself, is entitled "In Darkest Africa," and bears on the title page the name of the publishers: Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York. Their local agent in this city is Rev. Dr. Marine. Reserve your orders for him.

PEN, PAPER AND INK.

The Chicago Saturday evening Herald has issued its fifteenth annual spring number, and the simple fact indicates a notably long and successful career for a paper of its class. The cover bears a handsomely engraved title page, which embodies a spring scene, early blossoms, birds, etc. Inside are twenty-four full-sized pages filled with timely reading, including many special articles. The Herald is in many respects the best family paper in the west, and it enjoys a flattering reputation hundreds of miles from Chicago. It is especially strong in its social, literary and dramatic departments. It is an excellent journal, ably edited, and deserves its success.

Drake's Magazine for May opens with a breezy frontispiece. Janey B. Hope Marr describes "The Birthday of Joss," as it is celebrated at Marysville, California. The article is illustrated in good style. "Hodge" is a study of the modern English peasant from an American standpoint by George P. Hasbrouck. Graham Clayer has a clever story in "Romance of a letter of the Olden Time," illustrated. The third of Mrs. Holloway's series of articles on home decoration treats of "Nurseries and Bedrooms," and is plentifully illustrated. Tom F. Morgan's "Sweeping Machine" is a humorous Chinese fantasy.

The first numbers of the Salt Lake Mirror have been received. They show a handsome typography, many half-tone illustrations of the city, much interesting reading, loyalty to the community and a big display of advertising. The publishers are C. Sum, Nichols and Charles A. Nichols, who are issuing a creditable paper that deserves to succeed.

I. S. Doten, justice of the peace and merchant of Bristol, Ill., says he can recommend Patrick Fil "I have used these," he says, "and know whereof I speak." Any one troubled with constipation or biliousness will find them a friend. They are prompt and certain in their action and produce a pleasant cathartic effect. For sale by A. L. Shrader, druggist.
