EXPLANATION

In L 1 the first letter has the force of th in three, and is called ith; the second, the force of th in those, and is called When s has the sound of s, as in was or goes, it is called s, and expressed by a thickened stem. S is most commonly expressed by the circle; but the curve is needed when an initial vowel precedes, as in acr, L 7, or a final vowel follows, as in sew, L 8. In L 3 the first letter, called tower follows, as in sew, L.o. In 1.13 the first letter, called ish, has the force of sh in bishop, or it in motion. When struck upwards it is called shay. The second, called zhe, is equivalent to s in pleasure. The curves in L 4 are called way and yay, and are the same as the consonants w and y. H, always written upwards, is called hay, and ng. ing. Shaded m, called emp, is equivalent to mp or mb, as in temple, or tumble. Upward r, called ray, is used more than the down-stroke. It is quicker, oftener secures a good angle, and prevents word-forms from extending too far below the line. When the circle s occurs between two straight stems, it is piaced outside the angle, as in geyeer; at all other times it is if possible placed inside the curee. The circle is put on the left of up-strokes hay and ray.

When the reporter writes with a pencil, he should obtain one of medium hardness only, keep it sharpened, and use it with soft or uncalendered paper. For general purposes it is better to use a pen; the pencil in exceptional cases only. In every respect it will be observed that the pen and pencil differ from each other. The question as to the merits of of the profession. Those reporters who employ a pencil while learning, never afterwards giving the pen a fair trial, of course regard the pencil with the greater favor. Of those who have fairly tested both, the majority prefer the pen. The advantages of each may be seen from the following comparisons: 1. The pen must be dipped, the pencil

2. For the pen an ink-stand must be pro-vided, or the "fountain" filled; a number of pencils must be sharpened before hand. 3. The pen is elastic, and is used on a hard surface; the pencil is inelastic, and should be used on a soft surface, or springy tablet. 5. More skill or training is required to handle the pen: more people already know the use of a pencil, which is simple.

fades out in a few years.
7. Notes taken with a pen are black and easy to read; pencil writing is hard on the puz dog for sale some time ago, and one eyes, and for this one important reason a pencil shortly afterward he received a cil should be used as little as possible.

A morganatic marriage—sometimes called left-handed, from the fact of the left hand being given instead of the right—is one in which the wife is of inferior rank to the husband, and in which the children do not inherit the father's title or possessions. It is, however, strictly legal, and the children are legitimate. It is customary among the German princes. The word, according to Brewer, is based on the Gothic morgjan, to "cur tail," or "limit;" and the marriage settlement was called morgengabe or morgengabe.
"Handfasting" is the name of a custom, which Scott describes in the "Monastery" as existing at one time in the wilder districts of Scotland and the Borders. By it the pair were bound only for a year and a day-or trial, as it were—and were then at liberty to choose another mate, or, if they suited each other, to call in the priest to marry them for
