Selling Books by Subscription. The method of selling books by subscription has many advantages over any other, and is daily growing in importance and popularity. By this method the attention of the purchaser is called to valuable books of which he might remain in entire ignorance if they were sold in any other way. It is the most direct and altogether the most economical way to buy books. Books purchased at a retail book store have generally passed through the hands of from two to four middlemen, each of whom must have a profit.

The Riverside Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo., offers profitable employment to all who wish to engage in the business. Experience is not necessary, but any lady or gentleman with intelligence and industry can make a success of the work.

Their publications are first class, just such books as our young people and our older people should read; books that tend to make intelligent men and women; books that teach people things that they ought to know; such books as a splendid Family Bible, which is in itself a perfect encyclopedia of biblical knowledge. Ridpath's History of the United States is another splendid book; a sale of over 100,000 copies speaks loudly in favor of its great worth. The People's Cyclopaedia of Universal Knowledge is another work that has carved its way to a wonderful success; 100,000 copies of this splendid cyclopaedia, made and edited especially for the masses, have been sold, and the sale is still very large.

They also handle the Red Letter Life of the Republic; Stanley Explorations in Africa; The Pioneer History of America; People's Farm and Stock Cyclopaedia; The Physical Life of Both Sexes; Courtship, Love and Wedlock; and History of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Another splendid book, averaging at fifteen hundred sets a month, is Ridpath's Cyclopaedia of Universal History, a book that is bound to be read by tens of thousands of scholars, and by those who lay no claim to scholarship, and who yet love a clear, straightforward, understandable record of the great events of the world's history. The popularity of this book is something wonderful.

Some years ago we were very much subject to severe spells of cholera morbus; and now when we feel any of the symptoms that usually precede that ailment, such as sick at the stomach, diarrhoea, etc., we become scared. We have found Chamberlain's remedy the very thing to straighten one out in such cases, and always keep it about. It is somewhat similar to the usual cholera cure, but seems to contain ingredients that render it more pleasant to take, and that do their work more quickly. Sheriff Deveroux tells us that he is subject to cholera morbus, and recently felt a spell coming on, when he obtained a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy, and two doses made him all right. We are not writing this for a pay testimonial, but to let our readers know what is a good thing to keep handy in the house.—Troy, (Kan.) Chief. For sale by A. L. Shader.

ONE OF "OLD ABE'S" TEACHERS.

Uncle Billy Green's Interesting Reminiscences of President Lincoln. In his old age "Uncle Billy" Green, of Tallula, Ill., is known as the "Sage of Tallula." Fifty years ago his neighbors called him "Slicky Billy" because of his preternatural sharpness at a trade. It was in the early days of his career that he met Abraham Lincoln, and now that he has nearly closed the eighth decade of an active life he loves to dwell upon incidents of his association with the war president of the United States. Not long ago he dictated volubly upon the subject with Col. Phocion Howard, another Illinois old timer. Green, it seems, was Lincoln's partner in a grocery at Salem, and at night, when customers were few, he held the grammar while Lincoln recited his lessons. To his sympathetic ear Lincoln told the story of his love for sweet Ann Rutledge. He saw the happy pair strolling through the woods about old Salem or bowing on the river, or lingering long over the huge log of water which Lincoln drew from the well for Ann. He offered what comfort he could to his friend when poor Ann died, and Lincoln's great heart nearly broke.

"After Ann died," says Uncle Billy, "on stormy nights, when the wind blew the rain against the roof, Abe would set that in the grocery, his elbows on his knees, his face in his hands, and the best grammar through his fingers. I hated to see him feel so bad, and I'd say, 'Abe, don't cry' and he'd look up and say, 'I can't help it, Bill, the rain's a-fallin' on her.'"

Green saw his friend rise in greatness and favor with the people until he was elected president of the nation. At Lincoln's first inaugural banquet Green sat at the table on the president's left, with the dignified secretary, Seward, on his right. Lincoln presented the two men to each other, saying, "Secretary Seward, this is Mr. Green, of Illinois." Seward bowed stiffly, when Lincoln exclaimed: "Oh, get up, Seward, and shake hands with Green. He's the man that taught me my grammar."

Uncle Billy delights to tell this story, and adds: "The idea of my teachin' Abe Lincoln anything. Why, let me tell you that when he got through with that grammar he used to study he knowed more grammar than the man that wrote the book. This was Abe's greatness—that when he knew a thing he knew it better than anybody, and he could tell it to the most ignorant man so he'd know all about it."

Lessening Sable Island's Terrors.

Sable Island, which lies about 200 miles to the west of Halifax, Nova Scotia, is little known save to shipwrecked mariners. So many sailors have been cast ashore there that it has gained the name of the "ocean graveyard." The island is used as a lighthouse station on which the Canadian government maintains two light-houses and stores of provisions to be used in case of shipwrecks. As there is no communication between Sable island and the main land except by means of chance vessels, it has often happened that shipwrecked seamen have been kept on it for a long time without being able to make their condition known. The Dominion government now proposes to overcome this difficulty by establishing a regular system of pigeon post between the island and Halifax. A homery is to be established at the latter place, and an occasional consignment of trained birds is to be despatched to the former, which will be available as messengers in any special emergency. It is stated that the Canadian government is importing the carrier pigeons from Belgium.

The New Treasury Assistants.

The assistant secretaries of the treasury recently appointed by President Harrison are men comparatively well known throughout the United States. Gen. Alured B. Nettleton is a native of Ohio and is 51 years old. He left Oberlin college at the age of 22 to take part in the civil war on the side of the north, and when the contest came to an end had attained the rank of brigadier general. Since 1865 he has devoted his time to newspaper and railway interests. In 1880 he removed to Minnesota and established The Minneapolis Daily Tribune.

Gen. Oliver L. Spaulding was born in New Hampshire in 1838. Like Gen. Nettleton he is a graduate of Oberlin. After leaving college he became a resident of Michigan and regent of the State university. He entered the Union army in 1862 and rose rapidly, being brevetted brigadier general in 1864 for meritorious services. He has been secretary of state of Michigan for two terms, special agent of the treasury department, member of congress and chairman of the Sandwich Islands reciprocity treaty commission.

Nebraska's Republican Nominee.

The Republican nominee for governor of the state of Nebraska, Hon. Lucius D. Richards, is a native of Vermont, having been born at Charleston, Orleans county, Nov. 26, 1847. When less than 10 years of age he enlisted in the northern army as a private, and carried a musket until the close of the civil war. After the close of the contest he engaged in civil engineering. He located at Fremont, Neb., in 1875 and has lived there ever since. His present business being real estate and banking. He has been mayor of the town for two terms and holds a commission as general of the Nebraska militia. He is married and the father of two children.

Lawyer Hummel, of New York, is credited with the assertion that money, matrimony and alimony make nearly all the business for the courts of justice.
