BOSTON'S BRIGHT WOMEN SOME ARE WED AND SOME ARE SINGLE, BUT ALL ARE CHARMING. Not One of Those Mentioned Below but Has Earnest Work to Hand and is Doing It Well—Artists, Authors and Musicians. (Copyright by American Press Association.)

MISS MAUDE HOWE ELLIOTT. Perhaps no woman in Boston can lay greater claims to beauty and literary ability than Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, the daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and the writer of many charming stories. Born in the Hub, the compositions of the young aspirant for honors early attracted the attention of her teacher. Mrs. Elliott is of medium height and possesses a pair of sympathetic brown eyes that look out from a face of soulful expression which is crowned by a glory of Titian brown curly hair. In her youth Maude Howe was a peculiarly sensitive child, and early displayed an antagonism to mathematics. This is not at all strange since mathematics and literature rarely go hand in hand, presumably from the fact that an imaginative mind can rarely be tied down to the practical. Romantic, joyous and high spirited, she sees her own traits personified in others.

MRS. EMILY SELINGER. Accompanied by her mother Maude Howe has been an extensive traveler in eastern lands as well as in America. In 1887 she became the wife of Samuel Elliott, an English artist, and though regarded as one of the belles of Newport society she has never neglected her literary work. Her poetic fancy finds food in the contemplation of the beauties of nature by which she is surrounded in her summer home, and she says in speaking of her daily life that the quiet morning hours produce the best work, and that a few days stolen from society are among the pleasantest things that life has brought her. At present Mrs. Elliott is engaged upon a play—a three act drama of today, which is based on her novel "Mammon"—and in conjunction with her sister, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, is also busy in the arduous task of writing the history of the teaching of Laura Bridgman by her father, Dr. Howe.

MISS LUCINA PAGANI. Miss Lucina Pagani, as her name indicates, is a daughter of Italy, having first seen the light of day in the "Eternal City." Miss Pagani has resided in Boston since her earliest years. She is tall and graceful, with a beautifully shaped head, well poised and covered by an abundance of dark brown hair. Her olive complexion has a rich, warm coloring that, added to her deep, and she possesses eloquent brown eyes, full red lips and a dimpled chin. Added to these personal charms she is a gifted musician and has a voice of more than ordinary richness. Miss Pagani was educated at the Notre Dame academy, and during the coming season goes to Italy to complete her musical studies.

Mrs. Phoebe Jenks, a portrait painter, must also be mentioned in the list of Boston's beautiful and brainy women. She was born at Portsmouth, N. H., and became interested in art when a school girl. She worked assiduously, and has literally carved out her own success, never having taken a painting lesson in her life. Although a hard worker she is not a recluse in any sense of the word, but rather enjoys discussion of the social questions of the day, and, while practically a suffragist, says "the time has not come for women to vote, as they are not yet ready for the ballot." Master Barker Pickering Jenks is a bright and promising student in architecture at the Institute of Technology, and his mother takes great pride in her only son, whom she declares to be the "handsomest of boys."

"boys in blue." She is identified with twenty-two societies, all engaged in the work of reform. She is president of the Ladies' Aid association, which cares for the Soldiers' home in Chelsea, and is also director of the Woman's Charity club, which founded a free surgical hospital for women some few months ago. Mrs. Walter Dyer, who is a bride of a few months, is following in the footsteps of her mother-in-law, being already noted for her charitable work. She was Miss Martha A. Houston, of Thomsonville, Conn. She has one of the sweetest dispositions, and her earnest gray eyes beam with the light of lofty purpose. Miss Lillian Ames, the young daughter of ex-Governor Ames, and Miss Madeline O'Brien, daughter of ex-Mayor O'Brien, are opposite types of beauty. Miss Ames is tall and fair, with blue eyes and brown hair. She was educated at North Easton, and at present is taking a course of instruction in Europe. She is not a society girl, but enjoys the companionship of a few special friends. Miss O'Brien is now with her mother in the south of France. She is lithe of form and has a pair of big brown eyes that promise to play havoc with masculine hearts sooner or later. The "Belle of Roxbury," as Miss Herminie Richards is called, has, at the age of 18, blossomed forth in all the charming grace of womanhood. She is a pronounced brunette, rather tall and graceful in figure. Her face is exquisitely modeled, and she has a luxuriance of brown curly hair and large, brown eyes kindling with intelligence. Inheriting the rare artistic ability of her father (the late Orrin Richards) in the use of crayon and brush, her easel has already held many works, showing sentiment and sincerity. At the piano she easily interprets the thoughts of celebrated composers, and her voice is sweet and full of sympathy. Two other charming girls are Miss Constance Whitney and Miss Elise West. The latter has great brown eyes and classical features. She wears her hair drawn tightly back from her forehead, and dresses with artistic taste. Her friend, Miss Smoot, a niece of Charles Head, was the belle of the "Ladies' ball" last winter. Jack Linco's pretty sister, who married Mr. Minot Weld, and who has been likened to the famous English beauty, Lady Dudley, is very tall and willowy in figure. Her eyes are of a dark hazel, while her grace of manner and charming personality make her one of the most sought after in the circle of Boston's best society.

Three European Princesses. The giant of royalty is the young princess of Denmark. She is 6 feet and 3 inches tall. The most sensible of her class is probably Princess Marie Anna, of Portugal. She is about to wed an untitled physician, and defends her choice by saying, "I prefer to marry a man without a name rather than a name without a man." There is also current the story that a daughter of the Prince of Wales loves a son of the house of Rothschild. His royal highness is said to favor the alliance, and the only prerequisite to the nuptials yet unattained is the consent of the queen.

A Vigorous Old Age. Ex-Vice President Hannibal Hamlin still retains the reputation of being the youngest old man in Bangor, Me. His health continues so rugged that he has not yet abandoned his life long rule to get along without umbrellas or overcoats. The old gentleman's chief amusement nowadays is a game of whist. During 1890 British makers of patent medicines paid $1,500,000 in the shape of duties on their preparations.

Well, Sarah, what have you been doing to make you look so young? Oh, nothing much, only been using Hall's Hair Renewer to restore the color of my hair.

Selling Books by Subscription. The method of selling books by subscription has many advantages over any other, and is daily growing in importance and popularity. By this method the attention of the purchaser is called to valuable books of which he might remain in entire ignorance if they were sold in any other way. It is the most direct and altogether the most economical way to buy books. Books purchased at a retail book store have generally passed through the hands of from two to four middlemen, each of whom must have a profit. The Riverside Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo., offers profitable employment to all who wish to engage in the business. Experience is not necessary, but any lady or gentleman with intelligence and industry can make a success of the work. Their publications are first class, just such books as our young people and our older people should read; books that tend to make intelligent men and women; books that teach people things that they ought to know; such books as a splendid Family Bible, which is in itself a perfect cyclopedia of biblical knowledge. Ridpath's History of the United States is another splendid book; a sale of over 300,000 copies speaks loudly in favor of its great worth. The People's Cyclopedia of Universal Knowledge is another work that has carved its way to a wonderful success. 100,000 copies of this splendid cyclopedia, made and edited especially for the masses, have been sold, and the sale is still very large. They also handle the Red Letter Life of the Republic Stanley Explorations in Africa. The Pioneer History of America; People's Farm and Stock Cyclopedia; The Physical Life of Both Sexes; Courtship, Love and Wedlock; and History of the Grand Army of the Republic. Another splendid book, averaging at fifteen hundred sets a month, is Ridpath's Cyclopedia of Universal History, a book that is bound to be read by tens of thousands of scholars, and by those who lay no claim to scholarship, and who yet love a clear, straightforward, understandable record of the great events of the world's history. The popularity of this book is something wonderful. For further particulars, circulars, terms to agents, etc., address, The Riverside Publishing Co., 702 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo. 6-10-5m
