LITERARY NOTES.

The success of the small cameo edition of "Reveries of a Bachelor" and "Dream Life," issued by the Scribners last fall has warranted them in bringing out Thomas Nelson Page's "In Ole Virginia," and George W. Cable's "Old Creole Days" in the same dainty and attractive form. The volumes will contain etchings and are printed from new plates on a fine quality of paper.

Mr. Eugene Field, well known, especially throughout the west, for his witty contributions to the Chicago press, is the author of two small volumes about to be published by the Scribners entitled, "A Little Book of Western Verse" and "A Little Book of Profitable Tales." They are full of wit, humor and pathetic tenderness for which this author is noted and are to be issued in a neat and inviting form, bound in covers of blue and gold.

Joseph Jefferson will close his autobiography in the October Century with what he himself considers the most important installment of all, probably because he ventures to state here more fully than before, his reflections on the art of acting. He touches on the question as to whether an actor "feels" his part; describes a fault of French acting; discusses imitations; how to keep fresh in playing a part; how to learn to act; how to conduct rehearsals, and far realism may be allowed on the stage.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, have just issued "Sifting Matrimony" by Cora Camera, author of "Society Rapids." It is an entertaining society novel, dealing with life in New York, Washington and the south. The heroine is Pauline Berner, the daughter of a congressman, and the hero Graham Grahl, a cynical New Yorker with a mystery hanging over his life. Both these personages are opposed to matrimony but eventually fall in love with each other. The book is full of minor characters, all sketched in a life-like way. Price in paper 25 cents.

In Outing for October readers who delight in fresh air articles will find much stimulating entertainment. Captain Charles King, U. S. A., has a thrilling story of adventure in the west, George F. Mathes describes in a pleasing way, "A canoe Trip Down the Chippewa." Lieut. Edwin F. Glenn, in writing of the "National Guard of Minnesota," gives an interesting account of the Blueberry war of 1871. K. D. Peterson has for anglers a breezy article entitled, "After Muskallonge and Wall-eyed Pike." Edward Hitchcock, Jr., gives some timely suggestions on the development of wit and muscle in "Wrestling." Margaret Hissland discusses "Women and Their Cameras." Charles Turner sings of "Pheasants." Edward W. Sardy depicts the pleasures of "Woodcock shooting," etc., etc.

THE COURIER must of necessity again impress upon its contributors the importance of giving their names when sending in items. Two messages were sent in yesterday without such addition, therefore do not appear in this issue. We are always appreciative of such favors, but must know from whence the favors come, not for publication but for our own protection.

It commences next week—"His Fleeting deal."

GARMENTS FOR AUTUMN.

[Special Courier Correspondence.]

New York, September 25, 1890.—When your summer merry-making is all over, Madames, if you would begin the fall season by giving yourselves a real treat, go at once to the big white and gold showrooms on Fifth Avenue, opposite Madison Square where Redfern is commanding general of a small army of clever workers, and there satiate your appetite for beauty by an inspection of the unique and charming novelties which are the result of a summer of study and preparation. In the jaunty cloth coats alone, which are one of those specialties that have made the Redfern name one of magic meaning in the world of women, there are almost as many styles as there will be wearers for them; and all of them are not only elegant and striking, but marked by such originality in shape or ornamentation as sets them altogether apart from the usual run of shop-made garments.

Take for instance, this long.

CLOSE-FITTING COAT OF GREEN MOLTON. It is cut into square turrets all around the bottom, and is edged with a narrow band of golden otter, with a tiny braided heading in green and tinsel mixed cords. The collar is very high, and is also braided and bordered with the fur, and has two triangular appliques of the fur just below it, and up on the close coat sleeve. Now isn't that a beauty!

A REDFERN COAT FOR FALL WEAR. Number two is longer than any of the spring styles, as it extends far below the hips. It is a fawn-colored beaver cloth of moderate weight, and is elaborately decorated back and front, and upon the skirt as well as the body, with applique designs of bronze-brown velvet, with a loop border of brown and gold Paris braid. A band of otter heads the collar and the small braided cuffs. The sleeves are set smoothly into the armhole and fit snugly to the arm.

Some of the herbs in Hall's Hair Renewer, that wonderful preparation for restoring the color and thickening the growth of the hair, grow plentifully in New England.

Briscoe, the Shoe Man, had a display at the state fair,—and he was awarded a diploma on everything he displayed. He received a diploma for the best general display of fine shoes, for the best display of ladies' fine shoes, for the best display of men's fine shoes, and for the best display of children's fine shoes. He would have received more diplomas if there had been anything more to display. These certificates are now being prepared and will be placed on exhibition in his handsome store in the Exposition in a few days. In the meantime remember—if you are looking for something that will suit, as regards fit, appearance, durability and price, call on Briscoe, the Shoe Man. He has the largest and best stock of foot wear in the city of Lincoln to select from.

Eugene Hallett.
For the last nineteen years a prominent jeweler of this city is offering his elegant and expensive stock of watches, diamonds, clocks, jewelry, etc., at public auction. Mr. Hallett is compelled to make this sacrifice in order to unload a very large stock which has accumulated in the last year owing to the extreme dull trade. He extends an invitation to his friends and the public to call and get the benefit of the fine bargains that will be offered. Mr. Hallett has an enviable reputation as an honorable dealer and everything offered at his sale will be fully guaranteed. Mr. F. J. Burroughs of Chicago will be the auctioneer. Sale will commence Oct. 4th at 2:30 p. m. and continue every afternoon and evening.

Another Fake.
It does seem strange that merchants and business men with apparent commendable foresight and enterprise will ever fall into the snare of some fake advertising man that comes to the city today and flies to green quarters tomorrow. But such is the case. The traveling fakir comes in, shows his color, is a stock talker and goes away happy with game bagged, bragging to his brother fakirs how he done up the town in so short a time. The last of these pretty schemes was the clock advertising method, by which a clock was placed at the corners of O and Eleventh, and O and Twelfth streets, and the space below the dial of about twelve by eighteen inches was to show the advertisements of the prominent business men (who were anyone who would invest in the scheme) of the city, at intervals of every few moments. At first, as with all new things a crowd composed of passers by and principally hoodlums, stopped to see the leaves fall and after a few days its attractive power was even lost to them. The advertisement was to be a "big card" all the year round, but now both clocks are out of repair, the advertising leaves fall to drop and as results with all fakes the scheme is slumbering. Advertisers who have paid their money for the work are perhaps about ready for another fakir.
