HIS BATTLES NOW ARE O'ER.

The Record of the Late Maj. Gen. Terry as a Soldier.

Maj. Gen. Alfred Howe Terry (retired), whose death is announced, will doubtless go into history as the true "Hero of Fort Fisher."

It adds not a little to the brilliancy of Gen. Terry's achievement that he was a lawyer and, as generally supposed, with very little military knowledge.

In April, 1862, he was made brigadier general of volunteers, and for over two years longer served on the coast.

A New Opera by Verdi.

It recently became known that Verdi, the celebrated composer of "Aida," has in his old age undertaken a task that will either add to his fame or emphasize the close of his career.

Made a World's Fair Official.

Director General Davis has entered on the work of organizing his corps of officials for the World's Fair of '93, and as soon as it was announced that he was ready to appoint his office in Chicago was besieged, in the language of the local reporters, by "candidates from the Balkan mountains to Blue Island avenue."

Moses P. Handy is a Virginian of 49 years, who has been in newspaper work continuously since he laid down the musket at the close of "the unpleasantness."

The Millionaire Question. A writer in a Boston magazine has proposed a plan which has at least the merit of ingenious novelty.

Carried Away by an Eagle. The Texas eagle must be a strong and ambitious bird. One of these feathered monsters recently picked up a 4-year-old child near San Antonio, Tex., and bore it away to a ravine two miles distant.

They Never Used Tobacco. Four men of prominence in various branches of activity are said never to have used tobacco in any form.

ICE WATER FOR ALL.

A Fountain Worth Visiting When at the World's Fair.

John R. Drake has presented to the city of Chicago an ice water fountain which will be a beautiful structure, and unusual

JOHN R. DRAKE'S GIFT.

Interesting from its design and the fact that it will be finished and "dedicated" in 1892—a fit beginning of the quadricentennial.

HOW SITTING BULL WON FAME.

He Became Widely Known Because of the Custer Massacre.

The recent killing of Sitting Bull in a conflict with the Indian police and a detachment of troops brings once more into prominence the recollection of his greatest achievement—the conduct of the campaign which culminated in what is known as the Custer massacre.

Sitting Bull was not what might, in the strict sense of the word, be called a war chief, but he possessed all the qualities, save the fighting one, requisite for a leader.

He camped his followers in the almost impregnable situation where the troops found them on the fatal 23d of June, 1876, and then retired to his teepee to "make medicine."

clared the medicine strong and good and foretold victory for the Sioux. Scarcely had his prophecy been uttered when Custer's five companies of soldiers rushed into the conflict, from which not a horse came out alive.

The exploit naturally gave Sitting Bull wide fame among his pale faced foes and established his authority with the Sioux.

An Arabian Land Syndicate.

All sorts and conditions of people seem to be seeking homes in the United States. Not long ago several wealthy Arabians who live in New York city met and decided to form a land syndicate for the benefit of their countrymen.

Inventor of the Mailing Machine.

Robert Dick, who died recently at Buffalo, aged 77, was widely known throughout the United States and Canada, particularly to newspaper publishers, as the inventor of a mailing machine which has cut and pasted addresses on daily and weekly publications for many years.

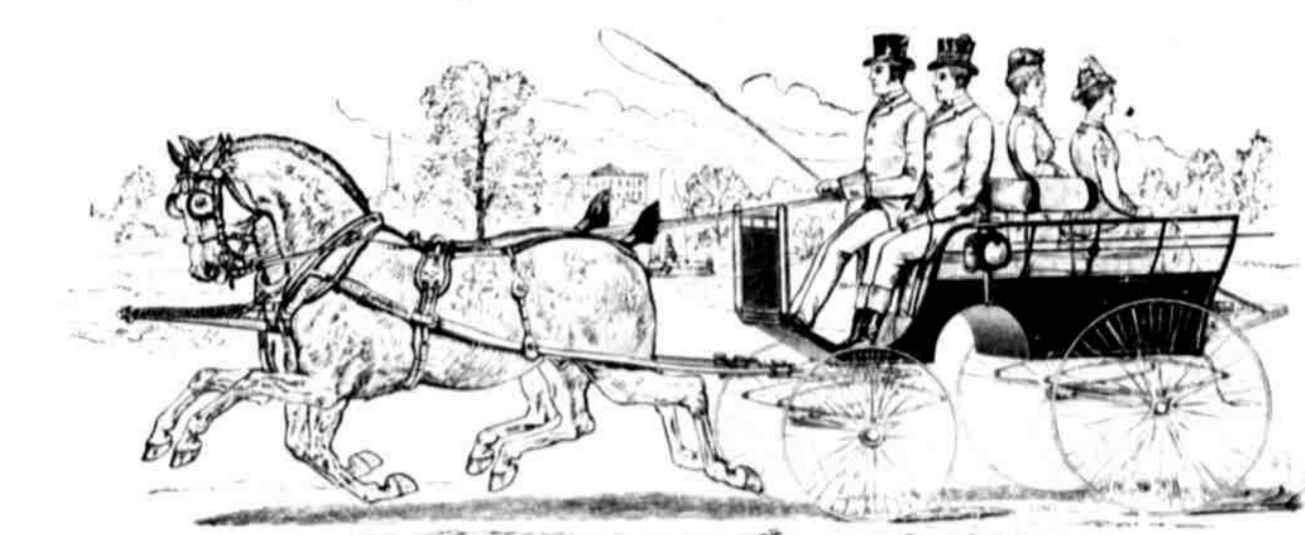

ROBERT DICK. He was a man of strong religious convictions. He was born in Scotland, but at the age of 7 became a resident of Canada.
