I have a cousin who is a printer, says ex-Mayor J. B. Loughran of North Des Moines, Iowa. Some years ago he was employed in this city where they were printing circulars for Chamberlain. He had a deep-seated cold and terrible cough, and while setting up copy he made up his mind to buy a bottle.

It cured him and that was the first I ever knew of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I have been strongly in its favor ever since. My own experience and that of my family convinces me that this remedy is the best in the world. That may be strong language, but that is what I think. For sale by A. Snider, Druggist.

Ladies' Hair Dressing at Miss Johnston's 1116 O street.

HOW SHE ECLIPSED ALL.

Her gown was pure and simple, and she was passing fair. She stood among the roses, a rose was in her hair. And when Sir Luder saw her, as she rode by the wall, He thought her of all flowers, the fairest flower of all.

New York, Jan. 14, 1891.—Among the wisest of wise virgins is she who has had forethought enough to reserve her prettiest toilettes till the last of the season.

So they talked back and forth till all were tired. Truly their oratory could be admired; And when they got through they were only able To lay the resolution upon the table.

They called to my mind a poem I'd read, In which Will Carleton's "Old Settler" said: "And she while I was reeling drier and warmer Was somewhere in the clutches of this storm."

The suffering in Nebraska still goes on. I think the senators all mean well. But what they will do is hard to tell.

And when they arrive at some definite plan, I will certainly inform you if I can. Now to ease my readers shall feel perplexed, We'll call this continued in our next.

REDFERN EVENING GOWN

which is almost Grecian in its simplicity. It is of coral pink cloth, with a pleated siltlo panel of crepe de chine. A narrow scarf is about the hips and knotted on the left side with the ends falling almost to the feet.

A new caprice is the use of the theatre jacket, after the fashion set by young Mrs. Stanley. This fad is becoming and appropriate. The design here given is from one of the Redfern models.

though it is hardly necessary to state the fact. The material of this jacket is a turquoise blue-azure, combined with shell pink satin brocaded in silver. The full vest and jacket are of pink mousseline de soie.

AT THE LEGISLATURE.

'Count that day lost whose slow descending sun Views from thy hand no worthy action done.'

In eighteen hundred and eighty-one My writing poetry first began; From then until the present time I've written many a little rhyme; But never before has it been my pleasure To write up Nebraska's Legislature.

And as a result from honest labor I'll tell you I heard in the Senate Chamber, After answering to roll call one by one And reading some bills as they've always done;

They settled down to business, and then— Talking commenced among the men— And Senator Stevens, of Lincoln county, (I really think he deserves a bounty) Offered a resolution which I am sure Was meant to bring the suffering poor.

But he failed to help in his words just right, He brought out a small-sized warty pig, Then Switzer, of Douglas county arose, And his words were stronger than blacksmith's blows.

He certainly don't need an opera glass To see things that never come to pass; He got right by the point for which he set out, So I think he knew what he was about, And Senator Moore, of Lancaster, too, Thought he would show what he could do.

His words were few, but to the point, Which shows that his nerves are not out of joint. So they talked back and forth till all were tired (Truly their oratory could be admired); And when they got through they were only able

To lay the resolution upon the table They called to my mind a poem I'd read, In which Will Carleton's "Old Settler" said: "And she while I was reeling drier and warmer Was somewhere in the clutches of this storm."

And while they argued the question pro and con, The suffering in Nebraska still goes on. I think the senators all mean well. But what they will do is hard to tell.
