May Bloom.

'From foam of sea was Venus born; Love came from cold ungrateful sea. But violets blossomed on the morn That gave thee life, Love's ecstasy. Beauty was with you from your birth, Whose loveliness I chant to-day, And from the ends of all the earth. Came love to name thee, Bloom of May: For this I thank thee, lady mine, That thou, these eyes has deigned to cast, On my unworthiness and twine. Thy lovely presence round my part, Give me this promise yet, My Queen: Kneeling upon my natal day, Let me—forgetting what has been, Still love thee more, sweet heart of May.

The following account of a beautiful wedding that will interest many Lincolnites, appeared in the Brooklyn Times of April 23d: "A charming little wedding occurred at noon today. The knot tied by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Powell united Mr. G. C. St. John, of Lincoln, Neb., and Miss Georgie Harrington Boyden. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. G. L. Boyden, 113 South Ninth street, in the presence of a company representing the relatives and intimate friends of the parties. Mr. W. Travers Gibbs and Mr. William T. Stearns acted as ushers, and the bride, in an artistic traveling costume, was given away by her brother, Mr. Frederick Ames Boyden. An hour of social gaiety, incidental to which was a pleasant luncheon, led up to the departure of the newly wedded pair, who were showered with rice and roses in full accord with the merry tradition. There was a beautiful array of bridal gifts. Mr. St. John, formerly a prominent member of the Nebraska bar, is now a leading real estate operator at Lincoln. Mrs. St. John has been introduced to the Times readers on several occasions as the author of various delightful musical compositions. Her musical genius has attracted much attention in and beyond New York and Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. St. John, who left for Washington this afternoon, will return to Brooklyn, before starting for their future home in Nebraska a month hence.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Nissley entertained the Young Married People's club very charmingly at the "Lincoln" Tuesday evening. A beautiful suite of rooms were set aside for the use of their guests and attentive waiters supplied their wants. Twenty games of high five were played, Mr. J. W. Maxwell and Mrs. John Wright being the fortunate winners. Dainty refreshments were served during the evening consisting of fruit, glacé, cake, coffee and ices and the merry party dispersed at a late hour with many compliments for the host and hostess for the charming entertainment. The following were the guests: Messrs and Mesdames, McIntosh, R. Rhaolander, Lieut. Griffith, Frank Sheldon, Jno. B. Wright, Chas. Dawes, M. E. Wheeler, Dr. Wente, Dr. Holyoke, Chas. Brown, Jno. West, Will Maxwell.

Day by day indoor society affairs are becoming fewer and it will not be long now until nearly all house entertainments will give way to the more enjoyable outdoor sport. Lawn parties, evening garden fetes and such will be in full bloom. Lawn tennis, as in seasons gone by, remains the popular game for society, followed by such charming pastimes as archery, cricket, etc., and it is really said by the best sporting journals of the east that croquet will again become as popular as ever. But aside from all this let us break in with a query: Who will give the first garden fete?

THE COURIER is pleased to record the fact that on May first Mr. John S. Dorgan became manager of the Lincoln office of the Whitebreast Coal company succeeding Mr. J. T. Stobbs who was compelled to give up the position by illness. The Whitebreast interests are eminently safe in Mr. Dorgan's hands and the young man as well as the company is to be congratulated. Mr. Stobbs proved an efficient manager and it is to be regretted that circumstances compel him to resign his position.

The oratorio society is hard at work these days rehearsing and getting ready for the annual May festival. There will be 135 drilled voices in the chorus and a number of superb voices will be heard from abroad, among them being S. C. Ford, soprano; Chas. Knox, tenor; Dr. Carl Martin, bass; Harrison Wild, Organist. The festival continues three evenings, during which The Crusaders will be given, a miscellaneous concert and Hayden's Creation.

The firm of Burr & Smyser, composed of Frank Burr and Fred Smyser, was dissolved a few days ago, and on Monday Mr. Smyser bade good bye to Lincoln and left for home. He was one of the best known young men in the city and his many friends heard with regret of his sudden determination to leave the city. The business of the real estate firm will be continued by C. C. and F. S. Burr.

Do not forget yourself and call him lieutenant now, for he is a colonel you know. At the conclusion of the University cadets drill Monday afternoon, Governor Boyd commended Lieutenant Griffith very highly on the efficiency of the battalion and appointed him senior-side-de camp on the executive staff with the rank of Colonel.

Hon. Geo. B. Lane and wife bade farewell to Lincoln Thursday. They will spend a few days in Omaha before leaving for Centerville, Washington, where they will reside in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Lane have scores of friends in this city and their departure causes genuine regret.

Leading medical authorities endorse Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best blood medicine.

Think of it! A pair of pants for 75 cents and a whole suit of new cloth for $4. Who ever heard of such a thing? These wonderful curiosities are shown this week in the west window of Ewing Clothing Co. It is the biggest surprise that the male sex of Lincoln ever experienced in that line. The show window is attractively decorated this week with over a hundred different styles and qualities of all kinds of low priced clothing, and they are so cheap that thinking people stop and wonder how they can be built for the money, to say nothing of the material used. Aside from these ridiculously low priced garments there are others of a better quality and then on the inside you will find a rich line of the finer grades embracing the season's latest and most approved styles. Don't fail to look into the windows when passing by.

The Amende Honorable. Auntie (to whom the game of baseball has been explained)—I do not quite understand it yet.

Little Boy—Why, auntie, it's as plain as the nose on your face.

Auntie (who has rather a large nose)—You should not use such expressions, my dear.

Little Boy (hastily correcting himself)—I mean, auntie, it's as plain as a pikestaff.—Good News.

He Was the Man.

As a peddler of rugs was passing a house on Joy street a woman opened the door and called to him:

"You man, there—say!"

He halted and looked at her, and saw the grim determination in her eye.

"Ain't you the same young feller that sold me a rug las' spring?"

He was, but something in her voice made him forget to tell the truth.

"No'm, this is a new roof for me. That maw's been been Soapy Jim. He's out of the bis'ness now."

"I reckon it was you," persisted the woman; "think a spell. It was a red and yellow rug with a green border, and I paid for it once a week for two months. I do believe you're the same young feller."

"Never was in this part of the town afore, mam'am," vowed the man.

"Is that so? Well, if you'd a been the same man I was goin' to buy another rug for myself and one for my sister who is going to Dakoty, but I wouldn't want to deal with a stranger. Excuse me for doubtin' your word, but you do favor that young man amazingly. I see now you ain't his'no'."

She went in and shut the door, and he knew then that he had made the mistake of a lifetime.—Detroit Free Press.

The Forcing Process.

Singerly—What are the Kildeers doing since they lost their fortune?

Strawber—I understand that they are doing very well. He is a writer of songs and she is a dressmaker.

Singerly—Indeed, I shouldn't think they could make their salt at it, because dressmakers have such a time collecting their bills.

Strawber—Her husband attends to that. When they have any trouble with a debtor he sings him one of his songs.—Brooklyn T. B.

VISIT TO A STOVE WORKS.

What a Reporter Saw and Heard at the New Hall Stove and Range Works at Manchester.

The new stove works at Manchester, a new suburb to Lincoln, about two miles west of the city was started a year ago with but few employees, and today it is one of the city's most important and strongest institutions employing upwards of fifty men, and among them some of the most skillful mechanics that are to be found in America.

Having a little leisure time at hand yesterday, a COURIER reporter accepted an invitation from Mr. H. J. Hall, the senior member of the firm for a short drive to and an inspection of the plant and found it to be not only a pleasant visit, but an interesting and instructive one as well. The plant is located on the line of the B. & M. railroad, occupying an entire acre of land with its various buildings, which comprise a range factory, foundry, store house, iron sheds, sand and coke sheds, etc., all conveniently located and put up with a view of future increase of business. The iron in bars direct from the mines are unloaded at their door, and when the ore again sees the outside world it does so in the shape of beautiful stoves and ranges, every particle of which is made at the works without any assistance in the way of castings or other supplies from outside sources. In looking over the plant everything of interest was noted by the reporter and certainly the entire establishment is a great credit to this flourishing city. Commencing in the foundry the reporter noted the manner in which every detail of the moulding was executed and with exact precision every casting was made. This department is separated into two separate and distinct parts of work, namely: bench work where all the moulds for small pieces including name plates, ornaments, etc., are made and floor moulding where all the heavier parts are made such as the tops of the stove, oven doors and lids. After the moulds are made, hot iron flowing like water from an immense cupola, which has a capacity of ten tons of iron, is poured into the moulds and after a ten minutes' lapse are broken and the castings removed. The next operation shows where the castings are taken to the rattler or rolling barrel, where all the sand and surplus iron is removed, and the several parts of the stove or range are then taken to their respective departments for finishing. The pieces requiring the nickle finish are taken to the nickle department where the work is skillfully executed and in a style unsurpassed anywhere in the country. The firm has put in its own plant for nickeling and none but the best machinery and appliances are used. Prior to putting the nickle on the casting it is first taken to the polishing room where it undergoes a rubbing over emery and canvas wheels after which it passes to the bath rooms, first put through a treatment of lye, then acid and after another cleansing is put into the solution bath where the nickle is finally put on with electricity, and we next see it where it adorns one of the beautiful new ranges. Few people that buy a stove have any idea of the amount of work that is entailed or the large number of hands that it goes through before it is ready for the store-keeper. After the castings are all made and ready to be put together they find their way to the finishing room where the stove or range is built, jspanned and fitted for the shop keeper or the user.

In its entirety there can be no factory more complete within itself than is the Hall stove and range works for there you will notice that every detail of the work is done on the ground, even down to the preparation of their own patterns for which they have a thoroughly experienced foreman from Cleveland. In their moulding department they have a foreman from one of the greatest shops in St. Louis and as foreman of the range factory they have secured a most valuable man from one of the leading stove works in Cleveland. They run the works with a forty horse power boiler and engine and generate all the electricity used on the place.

In connection with the business the firm has started a jobbing department where all kinds of castings can be secured for all classes of machinery or iron ware on short notice, perfect in form and made up in thorough, first class manner. They are also prepared to do all kinds of nickle plating, guaranteeing all work to be equal to the best done anywhere and at prices as low as eastern houses. That the Hall stove and range company will be a success there is no room for doubt. Both members of the firm are gentlemen of many years experience in the stove business dating back as far as 1875, when both gentlemen were in the iron business in Cleveland, later on in St. Louis for seven years and for the past three years in this city where they have been doing a most successful business at 1136 O street. Deeming Lincoln a profitable center for the manufacture of stoves they showed their faith in the city and its future by investing heavily and the result is they now have the largest plant of its kind in the west and their business is such that it keeps the works busy constantly to turn out enough to fill the orders. Every Lincolnite and every Nebraskan should feel proud of this new institution and of the wares that they are now turning out. The goods are of a very superior character, are fully and ably warranted in every respect and should have a place in every Nebraska home in preference to all others. Persons buying these stoves and ranges certainly have two great advantages over all others, viz: You save the freight charges from the east and in the event that you need any repairs they can be had at a moments notice at first cost and again save transportation charges. Aside from this there is another great advantage. Should the stove or range at any time get out of order, you have the manufacturers at hand who will at any time give you such assistance as you may need. These points, all well considered, can you afford to buy foreign make of stoves?

The Great Alaska. Lormer, the new proprietor of China Hall, 1312 O street is bound to make the refrigerator business go. Accordingly he offers any and all sizes at prices way below the usual figures. We invite you to call and see our stock of wash goods—"Korah-Moire" "Wool Challie" and all the latest dress fabrics. J. W. WINGER & Co., 1109 O street.

Buy coal mined near your home. Newcastles Nut is conceded by all that have used it to be the best for kitchen use. Price $4.40 delivered. Sold only by Geo. A. Raymer. Telephone 390. 1134 O street.

L. Barr carries a large and elegant stock of silverware and shows many novelties for table ware and ornaments. Don't fail to call and see him at 1136 O street when you need anything in that line.

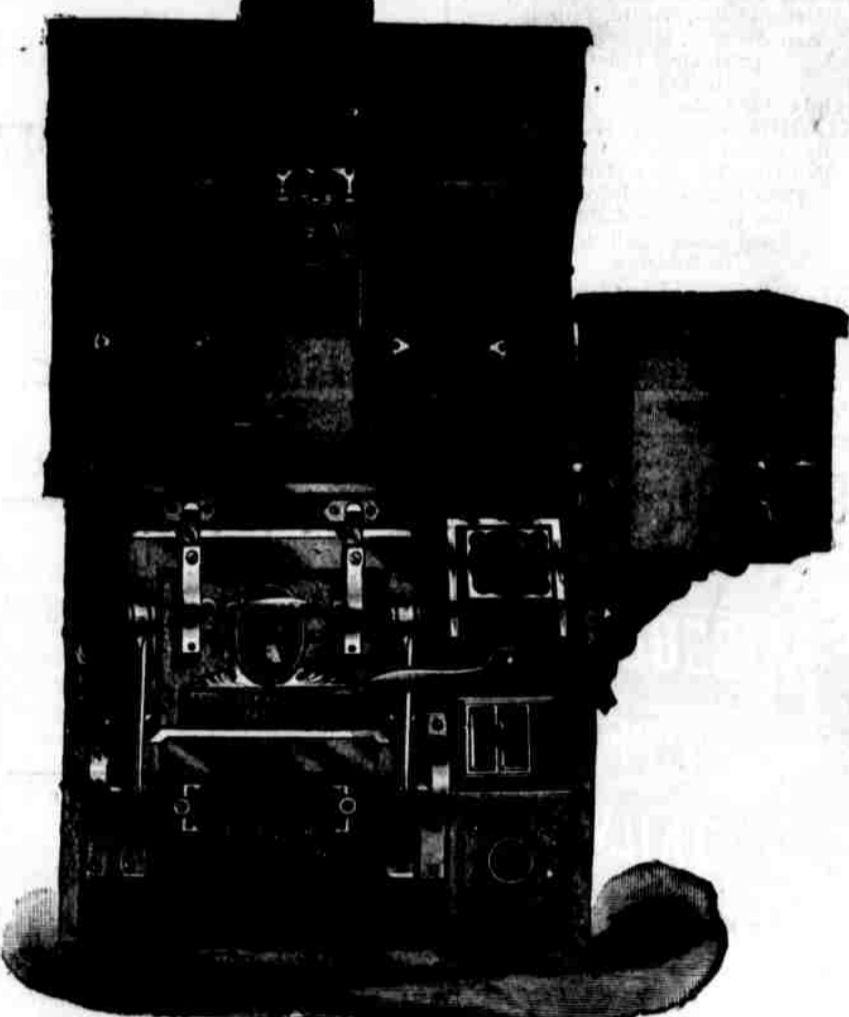

The above may serve as a hint to you that we carry Boys' Long Pant Suits and Short Pant Suits as well as an exquisite line of Men's, Boys' and Children's Spring Overcoats. In fact we have Suits and everything that Men and Boys' wear, rich enough for the richest and cheap enough for the cheapest.
