THE MAN WHO LEFT UTICA.

Showing the Great Power of Eloquence When Properly Applied.

A middle aged woman was washing basement windows in a house on Twenty-eighth street, near Third avenue, when she was suddenly startled by a voice which accosted her with:

"Juliet didn't clean windows, but she wouldn't have been any the less a lady for so doing. A lady to the manor born—m-a-n-o-r, if you please—is a lady under all circumstances."

She looked at him as she wrung out the cloth in a pail of clean water, but made no reply.

"Seedy genteel is the verdict, my Desdemona, and it exactly fits the case. That's me. Been traveling on my uppers of late, you know. N. C. in capital letters, which means no cash. No cash—no banker—no diamond set prospects ahead. All I have is my character for industry, integrity and love for the human race. Savey, my princess?"

She rubbed up and down and crosswise with her cloth, but did not even look at him.

"Case is just this," he continued, as he sat down on the railing and removed his hat to wipe his brow. "I struck Utica a year ago from St. Louis. Expected to find something soothing there—something to sort of lull my weary soul into a state of calm repose. Ever been in Yutica?"

She was ready to wring out the cloth again, and she soused it up and down in the water and had no word of reply.

"Beautiful city," he went on, "but the inhabitants thereof are inclined to be over-particular with strangers. Couldn't strike a job there to save my life, and cheek finally played out. Chief of police asked me as a personal favor to disappear, and I obliged him. A pointer, my fairy queen: Always oblige the police when it don't cost you a red to do so. Presto! changed! Which in the Grecian language signifies, 'From Yutica to New York on the bumpers.' Do you follow me, Beatrice?"

She changed over to the other window, and went rub! rub! rub! and gave him not the least attention.

"Like the town first rate as far as I have pergrinated around," he went on, using the lining of his hat to wipe his nose. "Does pergrinated strike you as too rich for the season? No. Well, then, let me further state that I feel in rapport with Gotham. Felt sort of all desperandum when I first got in, but I'm all O. K. now. Up on French and Latin, my queen of the May? They are like an old razor in the house—handy when you want to pare your corns. 'Scuse me if I have seemed to convey the impression that you don't know Virgil from Webster's Unabridged. Old Virgil used to be a particular pet of mine. Did I hear a motion to adjourn?"

He probably didn't, as her cloth went wipe! wipe! wipe! and her back was toward him.

"But delenda est Carthago, as I used to remark in St. Louis. To come to the point at once, and to secure a clearer and more satisfactory understanding between us, let me assume the interrogatory. May be a little rich for this locality, but I have always been noted for liberality. Now, then, dum vivimus vivamus, which abscissa straight out from the shoulder, and means 'Got any grub in the kitchen for a traveler o'er the long highway of life?'"

She rose up and dropped the wet cloth into the pail with a "spat," gave her hands a wipe on her apron and disappeared into the basement. Two minutes later she returned with a good sized sandwich and a couple of pickles, and handing them to him without so much as a look, she soused the cloth in the pail and went on with her window.

"Alterum alterius auxilio eget," saluted the man as he removed his hat. "In other words, 'Just my fit.' You have proved yourself an oasis in the sandy waste of life, and allow me to return my warmest thanks and to hope that your future may be no quid nimis, which, I will take the liberty to explain, signifies: 'Bully for you, old gal, and may you never know what it is to want for some spot on earth where your weary soul can be lulled to forgetfulness of the fact that you are dead broke and still slipping.'"—M. Quad in New York World.

The Hot Springs of Dakota.

These springs are rapidly becoming famous on account of the wonderful curative properties of the waters, and the many marvelous cures which have been effected by the thermal baths.

The town and springs are delightfully situated in a picturesque valley in the Black Hills country, abounding in beautiful scenic effects, and at an altitude of 3,400 feet above the sea level; thus insuring a pure atmosphere and exhilarating climate, absolutely free from malaria.

Under the enterprising and progressive management of the Hot Springs company many desirable improvements have been made; among the number the erection of a commodious bath house fitted up with all modern conveniences for the comfort of guests. New hotels have been built and comfortably furnished throughout, conducted in first-class style and at reasonable rates. Those who prefer stopping at a private house will find many desirable boarding places where good accommodations are furnished at moderate prices.

The superior daily service now afforded by the Burlington Route to Hot Springs, with through sleeping car accommodations from Omaha, Lincoln, Aurora and Grand Island, makes the trip an easy and enjoyable one; and for the benefit of all who desire to test the efficiency of the waters, round trip tickets at reduced rates, good for ninety days are now on sale at all offices of the Burlington Route.

For pamphlet, descriptive of the springs, and full information as to rates, time, etc., apply to any agent of the company, or to J. FRANCIS, Gen'l Pass' & Tkt Agt., Omaha, Neb.

REDFERN ON MILLENERY.

[Written for THE COURIER.]

New York, May 13, 1891.—Of all the bonnets and hats the year around, there appears to be a special glamour about the Spring bonnet just as there is about the season itself. It is probably because of the contrast offered by the brilliant yet delicate colors, the airy tulle and lace and exquisite embroideries and above all by the wonderfully natural French flowers, as against the more sombre and heavy felt and velvet and plumes of the winter hat which makes the new one so alluring. Especially is this true of the di-play at Redfern's where one can find anything to suit all tastes and all ages. Among the most noticeable beauties is the one here pictured which is a wide brimmed hat of silver grey lace straw, with a soft fluffy crown of grey china crepe. At the back and a little to the left side, is a big cluster of poppies and cornflowers, not in their natural red and blue, but in that lovely Russian violet which is so tinged with pink that it can be worn by those who have to forewear all the heliotropes and lilac tints. A knot of violet velvet and silver tinsel ribbon is coquettishly dropped on the front of the brim.

Here is a little Redfern bonnet for formal occasions. The crown is of gold and bronze passementerie and is encircled by a soft twist of yellow crepe de chine, banded with three rows of jewel studded gold galloon. The strings are of brown velvet and there is a spray of varicolored foliage shading on brown, yellow and red arranged in front and trailing over the crown.

A Red Letter Day.
February 6th was a red letter day for Chamberlain & Co., Des Moines, Iowa. They made their first shipment of goods to the Hawaiian Islands on that day. It consisted of 106 cases containing over four hundred dozen of their medicines, to the leading wholesale drug house in Honolulu. A large share of this shipment consisted of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, so much esteemed wherever it is known for its cures of colds and as a preventive and cure for croup. Chamberlain & Co., have contracted for advertising in all the leading newspapers in the Hawaiian Islands, and expect to make their remedies as popular there as they are in any part of the United States. For sale by drug-gists.

Peculiar

To itself in many important particulars, Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine.

Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Do not be induced to take any other preparation. Be sure to get

SOJA FOR TWO.

We Know That It Happens Every Day in a Drug Store.

"It's my turn," she said at the soda counter, taking out a little purse.

"No, it's mine," said her friend, rummaging in her pocket where she found a small shabby pocketbook; what will you take?"

"What you do."

"Then I'll have soda'n cream."

"So'll I."

"Two sodas'n cream, please," to the drug clerk. "Oh, wait a minute. Wouldn't you rather have ginger ale, Min?"

"No, dear, unless you do."

"Hum-m-m. Lemme see. I b'lieve I'd rather."

"Then I'll have ginger ale, too."

So the druggist, who had been standing with the two empty glasses in his hand, turned to draw the ginger ale.

"I don't know. Ginger ale sometimes makes my head ache. 'Spose we take chocolate soda, Min?"

"Ah, right, dear. That will be nice."

Then they chattered like two young magpies.

"Is there a black spot on my face, Lil?"

"No, Min. You look lovely, but I know I'm looking a fright."

"You sweet thing, you never looked better in your life. That one spot veil is so becoming."

"But you manage your spot so much better. Mine gets in my eye."

"Here's our chocolate. Now, put up your purse. This is my treat."

"Well, if you won't let me, but I really ought," etc., etc.

There is a gurgling silence and another dime has been squandered.—Detroit Free Press.

Bill Nye's Hotel Experience.

Bill Nye tells a good many funny stories, but considers the following his best because it is true and happened to himself.

"I was barnstorming once in a small town in Texas, and went to the leading hotel for dinner. The larder contained only a tough piece of steak, so I had that and a cup of bootleg coffee. When the bill was handed me I asked the proprietor, who was also waiter and cashier, how much I owed him.

"Two dollars," was the calm reply.

"Two dollars!" I said. "What for?"

"For the steak and coffee."

"But that is outrageous," I answered. "I can get a really good steak and coffee, and other things too, in New York for $1. What makes you charge so much?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, I need the money."—New York World.
