The newspaper boys have occasion to rejoice with other people over the selection of Prof. Canfield of Kansas as chancellor of the University of Nebraska. The new chancellor greets newspaper men with a cordial welcome and volunteers the assurance that he appreciates the power of the press and means to use it for the benefit of the university. He has given the reporters to understand that he will be glad to see them and to give them all possible information about the university and its work. He even contemplates having a hook in his private den upon which to hang memoranda of matters of interest, jotting them down hastily as they occur and thus giving the reporters hints which they may elaborate by making further inquiry of the chancellor. Too many men at the head of public institutions regard reporters as Paul Pry, as impertinent nuisances who are to be snubbed. Chancellor Canfield says the state university belongs to the people and the people are entitled to all possible information about it, which he will aid in giving. The new chancellor has made a good impression on our people, and there is reason to believe that the university will flourish under his energetic rule as it never has before.

Speaking of the University, are not the big schools with which Lincoln is blessed a greater source of wealth and prosperity to the city than most people realize? Lincoln has grown to such a size that there is very little apparent difference to most of us whether the universities are in session or not, but a little reflection teaches us that there must of necessity be considerable difference to the city as a whole. For example, with 500 students drawn from outside we know that they must distribute among Lincoln people a large sum of money every month for board alone. Then there are the important items of lodging, books and incidentals. It is quite likely that many of the students, coming from smaller places, improve the opportunity by buying while in Lincoln. It will be readily admitted that the colleges bring thousands of dollars to the Capital City every year, and the money helps the town quite as much as though it were drawn in by some commercial enterprise that kept itself constantly in the public eye by its activities on the street and in the papers.

Prof. Herrman, the trick artist who has mystified the world for thirty-five years, has taken a load off my mind. For many years we have read of the marvelous feats of the East Indian jugglers, until some of us have almost been led to think that they were aided by some supernatural power. Herrman has investigated them and finds their art crude instead of marvellous. In the first place, he was not able to find a juggler who could throw a string into the air and then climb up it out of sight. He attributes yarns of that kind to the exaggerations of credulous travelers. We have all read of the Indian juggler who plants seeds in a flower pot, covers it with a cloth, makes some incantations and then, removing the cloth, reveals a growing mango plant. When Herrman saw the trick done the juggler wore a loose, flowing suit, in which he had the mango plant concealed. After working on the superstitions of the Indians he walked around the pot and by slight changes of hand situated the mango plant, at the same time maintaining to the credulous onlooker that the plant had grown there. In another instance a juggler wearing nothing but a breech cloth placed a cobra on the ground, covered it with a cloth, went through his rigamarole, raised the cloth and the snake was gone. Herrman, however, saw through the trick. At one point in the proceeding the juggler bent over and raised the cloth slightly as if to rearrange it. The cobra, a trained reptile, understood the signal and leaped into his breech cloth, where it lay out of sight. Herrman had thought of engaging an Indian juggler as an assistant, but after examining their work he concluded they would not compare with a good American artist. They have a few tricks like those mentioned, but they never invent anything new and their work would not stand the test of critical American audiences.

Said a Beatrice man in the city the other day: "I would rather have stock in our Chautauque assembly than in the Standard Oil company." That was rather a startling proposition, and when pressed for an explanation he said: "Why, simply because it is paying a big interest on the investment. Last year Talmage preached a sermon here one Sunday, and how many people do you think turned out to hear him? Why, 35,000." He continued, without waiting for an answer, "I know that sounds big, but the ticket sales showed the attendance. People came from all parts of the state, and they just ate up everything in town. Talmage got $500 for his sermon, and you can figure the profit for yourself. The admission was 25 cents." Dr. Talmage has remarkable drawing qualities, to use a theatrical term, and from a business standpoint his discourses are valuable in proportion. Readers of the COURIER are among the fortunate ones to get noted sermons regularly. Each one of them, probably, is quite as good as the Beatrice effort, and it costs the reader but a nickel, while he may enjoy it at their leisure and in comfort. It is one of the features of the COURIER that wins it many readers among the best people.

that the governor will get more genuine pleasure out of his act of mercy than any man ever got out of the fizz of fireworks. It surely must be a happy day for paragon and pardoned.

One thing seems to be apparent in connection with the Little street car system. It is run by men who understand the business and have the money to start it out in the way it ought to go. Electric cars are now running on O street as well as Tenth, and other lines will be electrified as soon as they can be equipped. But one of the most notable changes is the approaching arrangement of the various lines so that all the cars will go around government square, just as in Boston all car lines radiate from Scully square, in New York from Bowling Green and in Chicago, to a considerable extent, from State and Madison streets. This enables a person to go to a central point a catch a car going in any direction, and is a great convenience. The late Brown line running out to University Place has just been connected with the main system near the Capital hotel, and is already equipped with electricity. In a few days it will be possible to ride seven miles for a nickel and without changing cars, and the consolidation of the various companies gives Lincoln one of the biggest and finest street car systems of any city of its size in the country.

Speaking of Boston, its car system is one of the institutions that will puzzle a stranger. The writer once had occasion to take a car from the Adams house and watched for one to come along. Car after car with the proper label passed by but they were all going in the wrong direction. Finally, in a fit of desperation, he boarded one of them and tried to solve the riddle by quizzing the driver. Yes, the car was going to the point mentioned, but it would take about an hour and a half to get there, although it was not over a fifteen-minute walk distant. The Boston cars, or some of them at least, travel around a certain circuit and all are headed the same way, or were at the time in question. Suppose the University Place line were connected with the Cotner university line, making a complete circuit, and, in hope of some patronage from Bethany Heights, a banner was hung out reading, "This car for the ball game." A stranger stopping at the Capital hotel, attracted by the banner, might naturally take that car if he wanted to see a ball game. Well, he would get there, but you can imagine his feelings after first traveling to University Place and Bethany Heights.

AN ADDRESS.

Delivered on the eve of the Fourth of July by the firecracker to his brother fireworks.

Good friends and fireworks all! I am not here to heat you overmuch, although my speech shall be as matchless as I'er can make it. For otherwise you might go off too soon. And thus this glorious Fourth be premature. The time will come when I shall kick, you bet! But just at present I am "laying low." You hear me shout! And if you do, just drop right on to what I'm going to warble now. Incline your ears unto the quiet tips. That I'm about to feet you with, and don't fire up if perchance should below "Punk" I am no pinwheel dude, but I can sport with the best of you, and when it comes to talk unfolded, the powdered one I have can raise a crop of new laid plasters on

A small boy's epidermis just as quick as the next one, and don't you forget it! I am of Chinese birth, but what's the diff? I met a man the other day who came. With nothing but a fatiron and a pigtail. Over in the same steamer with your uncle here. And now his pigtail's gone, and he, forsooth. Can hustle with the laundry just as well as any Yankee that you ever saw. And so with all of us. That's right. We're here to celebrate the glorious Fourth now. See? And first allow me to congratulate My friend, the young top pistol. Say, old man, I never saw a fit light on your slaps. But what was first to fade away. And so Small boy has ever tackled you in vain. This year you must remember that there is a bran new crop of boys. Sail in and see if you can show what metal you are made of. And if you need some help just call on us. We're here to celebrate, and when it comes

To making things go round, my pinwheel friend Can get there just the same, if he perchance Does base his hair and dress in fancy colors. Likewise the racket is no slouch. Not much! For oft upon occasion have I known His frisky nibs to take the hair right off A man's head better than his wife could do it.

Look at the Roman candles and Greek fire; The countless cannons, and the nigger chasers. And the torpedo, on whose modest pliz No smile triumph rears, and yet of all This noble band there is not one of us Who has displayed the sand of this young sport.

And now, my friends, go forth and do your best. And if you make a fizzle of this day, Why, do it so that Uncle Sam will hear. Throughout the land, the best reports of you. TOM MASON.

AMUSEMENTS.

Funk's Opera House was comfortably filled Wednesday evening, considering the season of the year, by Lincoln's Opera goers who appreciate and endeavored to reciprocate for the many favors and kind attentions showered on them by the gentlemanly attentiveness of that favorite resort. The proceeds were fairly large and will be disposed of in some manner, to be settled in the future, probably in an excursion or a weeks camping. The program selected for the occasion was "The Rose of Castile." The performance was far from that which was expected, as the company was small, consisting of but five members, and their powers very limited.

Manager Andrus continues to provide to Cushman Park. Preparations have been made for a big Fourth of July celebration. There will be a good game of base ball between the famous Lincoln Giants and the Genoa Indian Club. A number of fast trotting and running horses have been entered for the days races, which promises to be very interesting and exciting. Among other attractions will be the Tub races, for which six professionals have been entered. At 2 p. m. there will be a balloon ascension and parachute drop which will be repeated in the evening, using calcium lights. The management is exceedingly liberal as well as attentive and organizations desiring to have outings should make dates for the park in advance.

The first of a series of open air concerts was held on the Capitol grounds Thursday evening by the Conservatory Military band. BASEBALL

Three straight To Duluth. Cruel fate! Bad, forsooth! Sioux City Won too. More's pity; Too, true. Our boys Didn't play; Lost equisipe; Ate hay. Dave growled, Oh, My! Crowd howled, Ki, hi! People soured, Got disgusted, Players covered—Stomachs fasted. Change came; Welcome too. Brewers game, Followed Sioux. Pretty play Tuesday last. Hank O'Day Pitched fast. His arm Never truer Wrought harm. Poor Brewer. Milwaukee schemed, Captain fumed. Pitchers steamed, Coacher groomed, Davies Victory Twirled ball. Lincoln's hickory Welled ball. Rowe's men Milwaukee outbatted, Fell, then, Brewers fatted. We won The game My son; Nice game. Next day We lost. They say Luck crossed. Then again We won; Hank's main Worked fun.

We play Denver here Sunday. Another pitcher is said to be on the way. The Lincoln club is in Kansas City today. Kid Darnbrough was in excellent trim Wednesday. Vickery wasn't quite so swift Wednesday; but he was effective. Ronch has been put on the bench for two weeks without pay. Raymond's coming back they say, bringing with him Ehret, Louisville's crack pitcher. Much interest is centered in the forthcoming state tennis tournament to be held in this city. Stafford's popularity is slightly on the wane; but he is all right. He has simply had an off week. Dave says he will keep Stafford out of the field in the future in order to keep his pitching arm in trim. O'Day never pitched a prettier game than that of Tuesday when he succeeded Stafford in the third inning. Six men struck out in seven innings and two base hits! Unless current rumors prove to be without foundation there will be some more important changes in the personnel of the Lincoln club before another week goes by. It is the opinion of non-prejudiced observers that Lincoln and Milwaukee are very evenly matched clubs. The Brewers are a little stronger at the bat, while, Dave's men are better fielders. For a family medicine, Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills are unrivaled. They eradicate disease. Quick and Comfortable Trip. Two new trains have been added to the already excellent connections east that the Great Rock Island Route has been offering to its patrons. The Lake Shore & Mich. These are daily trains, scheduled on fast time, and arrive at New York City next afternoon at 2 o'clock, and via the first mentioned Boston passengers reach their destination but 2 hours later. The Rock Island Route Sleeper leaves Omaha daily at 4:30 p. m., and arrives at Chicago at 8:05 a. m., in time to make this important through connection. For rates and tickets apply to J. L. WHEN GRANT SAID, "We will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," he probably referred to the "Burlington," as everybody knows it is the only "line" worth fighting for in this part of the country.
