DEAR WILLIAM: Do you look on the dark side of things? Are you on good terms with yourself, your neighbor, and the world in general? Do you ever contemplate shuffling off this mortal coil? Dear William, permit us to condole with you, not your liver; your physician meant well when he told you 'twas, but its not. Its your shoes. You get the wrong sort. Try a Johnston and Murphy "KORRECT SHAPE" next time. Life will be well worth the living for you yet. There are shoes that try mens "soles," and you've been wearing just that kind. William dont spoil your feet, temper, disposition and prospects in life with any more of 'em. Life's too short to go groaning through it for the sake of just a little judicious care in selecting the right sort. Be circumspect, W. H. and oblige.
