ATTRACTIONS AT THE PARKS.

What Lincolnites May Expect for Out Door Amusement Next Week.

This afternoon Professor John H. Darling the gentleman who made such an excellent balloon ascension and parachute jump at Cushman park last Sunday will give a similar exhibition at Lincoln park. That the professor is a thorough scientist on this his favorite subject no one that saw him last Sunday will ever doubt. He is graceful and manages the big balloon with as much ease as a child would a toy balloon. Go out and see him this afternoon. Its your last chance. Tomorrow afternoon occurs the great amateur foot race in which a dozen or more zealous young men will each endeavor to come out first best. It will be a hotly contested race and will furnish ample amusement for the usual large Sunday gatherings at Lincoln Park. This pleasant resort is growing in popular favor daily and never fails to delight its numerous patrons at each and every visit. The merry go-round, the switch-back railroad, boating, and various other attractions are all in full blast and continue to amuse everyone.

AT CUSHMAN. Tomorrow will be a gala day at Cushman, the state societies of the Germania Mannachor having the day arranged for a good time. The singing societies will be present and everybody will have an enjoyable time. Wednesday is the outing of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and a fine program for the entertainment of all concerned has been arranged and you are invited to participate. Friday is the big outing of "The Butcher, the Baker and the Candle-stick maker" and it will be made one of the most interesting events of the season. There will be lots of fun of all kinds and time will fly fast. Go out and join in the festivities. Next Sunday (August 30th) the park will be crowded and the Danish population will be out in full force, aided in numbers by a big excursion of twenty eight coaches from Iowa and another from interior Nebraska points. It will be one of the largest outings ever seen at Cushman.

Timely Advice. Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a reliable remedy for bowel complaints. It is almost certain to be needed, and no family can afford to be without it. It costs but a trifle and may be the means of saving much suffering, if not life. There are many different remedies in use, but Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is undoubtedly the best. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Chas. C. Reed, Druggist.

Are You Interested? The following frank statement from J. E. Hare of Trenton, Texas, will be of interest to many of our citizens. "My little boy was very bad for two months with diarrhoea. We used various medicines, also called in two doctors, but nothing done him any good until we used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave immediate relief and soon cured him. I consider it the best medicine made and can conscientiously recommend it to all who need a diarrhoea or colic medicine. For sale by Chas. C. Reed, Druggist.

The Hot Springs of Dakota. These springs are rapidly becoming famous on account of the wonderful curative properties of the waters, and the many marvelous cures which have been effected by the thermal baths.

SIGNS AND TOKENS.

Knee deep in dewy fields that night
The king stood looting at the bar;
All nature slumbered in the light
Of hosts of silent . . .

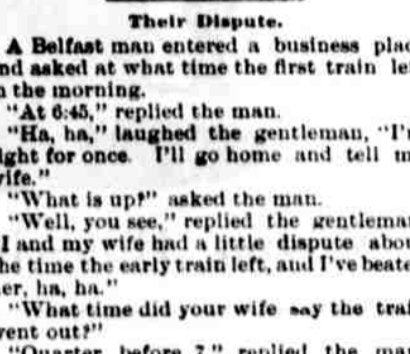

And he and she adown the lane
Strolled past the wringing brook, that made
Soft music for the maid's refrain,
"Take heart, young man," it said.

Yet, such a nervous man was he,
He dared not look upon her face;
But of the coy young maiden, she
Just tongued for one em—

For hours her talk and merry laugh
Made rhythmic echoes in the dark;
Her speech was one long
And!

At last she faltered: "Can't you see
My tongue is almost out of joint?
I think it's time you came to the

D. O. F. Jessup.
A teacher in the village school up in Wisconsin one fine morning received a new pupil, a little miss of seven years. After taking her name for the school rolls the teacher said:
"What is your papa's name, Susan?"
"Mr. Jessup," replied Susie.
"Yes, but what is his first name?"
"Don't know—his name is just Mr. Jessup."
"Yes, yes, I know," then as a bright idea struck her the teacher asked "What does your mamma call him?"
"Oh! I know what you mean now," the innocent child replied. "Ma calls him a durned old fool."
The teacher did not register the child's father as D. O. F. Jessup.—Texas Siftings.

Their Dispute.
A Belfast man entered a business place and asked at what time the first train left in the morning.
"At 6:45," replied the man.
"Ha, ha," laughed the gentleman. "I'm right for once. I'll go home and tell my wife."
"What is up?" asked the man.
"Well, you see," replied the gentleman, "I and my wife had a little dispute about the time the early train left, and I've beaten her, ha, ha."
"What time did your wife say the train went out?"
"Quarter before 7," replied the man.
"Ha, ha, I've beaten her and I'll go right home, ha, ha."—Bangor Commercial.

Won by a Neck.
Mrs. Bingo—You know that Bangor woman who lives next door? She was in a dry goods store this morning making a bee line for the most lovely summer dress you ever saw, and she was in such a hurry that she actually pushed over several people.
Bingo—Did she get the dress?
Mrs. Bingo—Oh, no. I got there first.—Cloak Review.

Self Evident.
Briggs—How do you expect to marry a girl who pays $100 apiece for her dresses?
Griggs—Because if she pays $100 for a dress she will be satisfied to pay $75 for a suit of my clothes.—Cloak Review.

No Wonder He Looked Sad.
What did the telegram say, papa? What did the telegram say?
You look so worried, so pale and ill—why should we not be gay?
Is something wrong at the store, papa? Is mother sick at home?
What did the telegram say, papa, that you look so sad at me?
"Nothing," you say. Now tell me true. Something's gone wrong, I know.
For 'tisn't often you look that way, nor often you answer me so.
But he answered not the pleading child, and never a word did he say.
The telegram read, "The gray mare won and we're in the soup today."

How to Drain Land in Level Places.
Sink a well down to the first porous stratum. The water from the upper soil will flow readily into the well, especially if drain pipes or tiles be laid in its direction.

How to Make Ginger Beer.
Into one gallon of boiling water put one pound of lump sugar, one ounce best unbleached Jamaica ginger well bruised, three-quarters of an ounce of cream of tartar and two sliced lemons. Stir the ingredients frequently in a covered vessel until lukewarm, then add one and a half or two ounces of yeast and keep it in a moderately warm place, so as to excite a brisk fermentation. The next day rack and strain through flannel. Let it work for a day or two, then strain again and bottle, wiring down the corks.

How to Act at Table.
Do not eat hurriedly or bolt your food—it is vulgar as well as being bad for digestion. A knife should not be held by the blade nor a fork by the prongs. Grasp both knife and fork by the handle, directing both by extending the forefinger along the backs close to the handle. Never eat potatoes, vegetables or anything for that matter with the knife blade, which was designed for cutting only; the fork was designed for carrying food to the mouth. Always be polite and pleasant to those with whom you are dining and endeavor to anticipate their wants. Do not reach across the table for the salt, bread, etc.; if they are not close beside you ask your neighbor or a servant for them politely.

How to Get Rid of Moths.
Sprinkle furniture and cushions thoroughly with benzine. It is sure death to moths, and will not spot or injure the most delicate fabric.

How to Dress.
Somebody has said "dress according to your means." But this motto is illogical. Probably the only persons who dress according to their means are paupers. Millionaires do not dress better than clerks who earn twelve to fifteen dollars a week—frequently not so well. Servants very often dress better than their mistresses. There exists a positive mania for deceiving others as to our wealth and position, and consequently the clerks and servants live in cheap—often dirty—rooms and eat the poorest and least nourishing food to enable them to wear "false feathers." Men and women should dress neatly and comfortably, but according to their station in life as well as means. Nourish your bodies and minds before indulging your vanity. "Fine feathers do not make fine birds."

How to Remove Rust from Knives.
When knives or other steel utensils become rusty they should be cleaned at once. To remove the rust rub with a flannel dipped in sweet oil; then cover it with slaked lime and allow it to rest for twenty-four hours; wipe clean and finish off with some powdered whiting and a chamois leather. This will make the articles as bright as new. An excellent way to prevent steel knives and forks rusting is to plunge the blades in a pan of whiting after washing and remove them just before they are used. When they are wiped they will be perfectly bright, and if kept in this way cannot get rusty.

How to Prevent Lamps Smoking.
A smoky lamp is generally caused by the wick being too high. This can be prevented by regulating the wick. Soak the wick in strong vinegar before using and dry it thoroughly before putting it into the lamp. Most of the unpleasantness attending the use of oil lamps can be prevented by this simple precaution.

How to Kill Aphides on Rose Trees.
Some use tobacco paper, two pounds soaked in a gallon of boiling water and strained. Others use liquid ammonia. But by far the best preparation is fir tree oil—one ounce to two quarts of cold water. This should be mixed over night. In the morning, if the water is hard, a scum will be found floating on the solution. This must be skimmed off, else it will blacken the leaves. It is then sprinkled upon the affected plants, and the operation repeated every ten or fifteen days. This solution will not injure or discolor even the most delicate azalea blossom, while it effectually destroys the aphides.

How to Join Broken Amber.
Broken pipestems or other articles made of amber may be mended in the following way: Smear the parts with linseed oil; heat the fracture over the gas jet (protecting the other parts from the heat) and press the edges together when they become soft and adhesive. Allow the joint to cool gradually and polish slowly with a little whiting and water, finishing with olive oil. Amber may be improved by boiling it in rape oil for twelve to twenty-four hours.

How to Clear Moss from Walks.
Gravel walks in gardens and shaded places are frequently covered with an unsightly growth of moss. This can be effectually prevented by watering the walks with a solution of sulphate of copper (blue vitriol).

How to See Down a Well.
By the use of a piece of looking glass, when the sun is shining brightly, you may discover a minute object in the bottom of a deep well. A ray of light is thrown down by the reflective power of the mirror. When the well is so situated that the reflection cannot be made to reach the perpendicular point, two or three mirrors can be used, throwing the reflection of one on the other until the desired focus is obtained.
