Criminal Practice.

Colonel Percy Yerger is one of the most popular criminal lawyers in Austin. He has an immense criminal practice and usually succeeds, with slight assistance from the jury, in acquitting his clients, a matter how atrocious their crime or overwhelming the evidence of their guilt. Last Sunday Colonel Yerger's little boy, Tommy, was asked by his Sunday school teacher: "Tommy, the man who is good in this world goes to heaven, now what becomes of the bad men who disobey the laws of God?" "Papa clears them," was the response.—Texas Sittings.

Enjoyment.

"Hey, Lizzie, come on join de gang. Dere's bully swimmin in de sewer."—Life.

Untrustworthy.

Fame has its own peculiar bitterness. "Isn't it pleasant to go back with laurels to your old home?" asked some one of a celebrated artist, who replied, quizzically: "It would be, except that many of my townsmen think me a house painter. That is a worthy trade, but still it is not my trade." Yet such a sting is not the sharpest to be imagined. A century ago there lived a famous almanac maker, named Partridge. One day, while traveling in the country, he stopped for dinner at an inn, and afterward called for his horse, in order to continue his journey.

"If you will take my advice, sir," said the hostler, "you will stay where you are, unless you want to be overtaken by a heavy rain."

"Nonsense," was the reply. "It doesn't look in the least like rain."

He proceeded on his way, and was thoroughly drenched by the shower in which he had refused to believe. Turning back, he was met by the hostler with a broad grin.

"Well, sir," said the man, "you see I was right, after all."

"Yes, you were right, and now you must tell me how you came to know about the rain."

"Well, sir," replied the man, "you see we have a book at our house called 'Partridge's Almanac,' and whenever that fellow promises us a fair day we know it will rain. Now this day is put down in the almanac as 'settled fine weather.' I looked at the prediction before I brought your horse out, and that was how I could put you on your guard."—Youth's Companion.

His Views.

The traveler stood looking at the glories of Yosemite for the first time. He had journeyed 3,000 miles to see the wonderful valley. Before him in solemn grandeur rose the Cathedral Rock, the Three Brothers and the Sentinel Dome. The Bridal Veil falls, dissolving in a feathery mist as the waters descended the tremendous precipice, lit up with varied tints the somber majesty of the scene, while El Capitan, mighty, overpowering, unapproachable, seemed to frown sternly over all. The traveler became conscious he was not alone. At his side, apparently lost in wonder, stood a stranger looking at the marvelous scene.

He addressed the stranger. "Is not this stupendous?"

The stranger bowed his head, as if he felt the inability of words to describe his emotions.

"Do you think," pursued the traveler, "that this terrific gorge was caused by some tidal upheaval from below? Or is it the result of glacial action? What are your views, if any, as to?"

"My views," blandly interposed the stranger, opening a valise he carried in his hand, "are only $1.50 a dozen and cheap at twice the money. Permit me to show you a few samples."—Chicago Tribune.

Changed the Subject.

One of the most difficult things to do gracefully is to change the current of unpleasant conversation, but the small boy can do it if circumstances make it necessary.

"Thomas, will you please tell me why you pulled up the onions from my Danvers onion bed? How many times have I told you to keep away from the garden?"

Thomas grew red in the face, and his grandfather went on to depict the evil fate that was sure to befall boys who went around destroying what their elders had planted.

Meantime, Thomas had pulled himself together, and as the harangue was concluded he said, with a smile, referring to an event of the previous week: "Pity our old rooster died, wasn't it, grandpa?"—Youth's Companion.

ADDITIONAL DRAMATIC.

ing. Hilda Thomas, as Tony Gay, old Ben's ward; Ollie Archmere as Flirt, the widow's maid; and Harry Gilfoyle, the waiter, were extremely good. Miss Boyd's imitation of Carmenita brought down the house, and the Daly Sisters' subdued skirt dances and yellow frocks had about the same effect.

BELLA GOLDEN

is Funke's closing attraction for next week and the engagement is for Friday and Saturday evenings on which occasions "The Martyr" by D'Emery, author of "Two Orphans" etc., will be presented. The company is playing an engagement this week in Omaha and the Bee speaks as following of the company: "The company is a strong one and produce a strong repertoire of fine stock comedies. Harry Robinson made a decided hit as Prof. Bangie, the crusty old Benedict. Martin Golden did some very clever work as 'the lean and slippered' Judge Growler. Miss Emma Butler, a very pretty and winsome actress, played Eva Clinton very acceptably. Miss Carrie Graham made a very pleasing Belle, and danced charmingly. The rest of the company gave excellent support. The orchestra rendered several very realistic musical selections during the waits, which were received with great favor."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Matinee this afternoon at Funke's.

"Chinatown" is due at the Funke Thursday. Marcus Mayer will star Marion Manola in 1892-93.

Marion Chester says she will hereafter be Marie Sydney.

Mary Anderson is preparing her dramatic memoirs for the press.

"Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" will be presented at Funk Wednesday evening.

The Martin Golden company will be at the Funke next Friday and Saturday.

Manager Charles Frohman will produce "Theodor," Victorian Sardou's famous tragedy at the Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, October 5th.

Charles Cowles, who made a hit as the Vermont farmer, "The Cuckoo," has achieved great success as the Stranger in "A Hole in the Ground."

Bernhardt closed her San Francisco engagement, September 12th, and the telegraphic message has it that she was not a "wholly brilliant success."

Alexander Salvini opened his season at the Chicago Auditorium on Monday and received a hearty welcome from an immense audience that completely filled the vast building.

The friends of Ever Elusive Rice will be glad to know that his "Evangeline" continues to do a very large business in Australia—receipts over $5,000 a week. "Evangeline" will soon be seen at Funke's.

Joseph S. Haworth appeared at the Grand Opera House in Chicago on Tuesday, in Anna Katharine Green's dramatization of her own novel, "The Leavenworth Case," and made a brilliant success. Mr. Haworth

When Richard Mansfield makes his entrance next Monday evening at the Garden Theatre N. Y., as Nero, he is supposed to have been on a tour, during which he has painted Rome a bright vermilion. Mansfield, with an old-fashioned jag wrapped up in a Roman toga, will undoubtedly make the gods smile. Mansfield will be seen at the new Lansing later in the season.
