New Dressmaking Parlors.

Miss Walters, late of Memphis, has located in Lincoln, and opened a handsome suite of dress making parlors in the Kennard Block, 329 south Twelfth street. Miss Walters comes excellently recommended, having held the trade for several years of the most prominent ladies of Tennessee's capital city. The lady is also somewhat known in Lincoln, all of whom speak in the highest praise of her work. Her parlors are now ready, and the ladies are invited to call and see the class of work executed and become posted on prevailing modes.

Eye and Ear Surgeon.

Dr. W. L. Dayton, oculist and aurist, 1203 O street, telephone 375, Lincoln, Neb.

Piano Tuning.

Nothing adds so much to the charm of music as a piano being properly tuned, and nothing is better for the instrument than to have a competent tuner attend to it. Mr. Edw. J. Collinson, for the past ten years connected with eastern factories as an expert in piano tuning, voicing and repairing, is now with Crance's art and music store, 221 south 11th street. Mr. Collinson's eastern work was too confining, and he is now to become a resident of our beautiful city. He comes highly recommended and we trust all who appreciate good tuning will give him a trial.

The Union Pacific System.

Has placed in daily service a solid train between Lincoln and Sioux City making close connections at Columbus with main line trains for all points west, with Albia, Cedar Rapids, Ord and Grand Island and branches, except Sundays. Lincoln and Sioux City daily connect closely in union depot, Sioux City, with the evening trains of connecting lines for the north and west. For full particulars apply at 1944 O street or at depot.

The Hot Springs of Dakota.

These springs are rapidly becoming famous on account of the wonderful curative properties of the waters, and the many marvelous cures which have been effected by the thermal baths.

The town and springs are delightfully situated in a picturesque valley in the Black Hills country, abounding in beautiful scenery, and at an altitude of 3,400 feet above the sea level; thus insuring a pure atmosphere and exhilarating climate, absolutely free from malaria.

Under the enterprising and progressive management of the Hot Springs company many desirable improvements have been made; among the number the erection of a commodious bath house fitted up with all modern conveniences for the comfort of guests. New hotels have been built and comfortably furnished throughout, conducted in first-class style and at reasonable rates. Those who prefer stopping at private homes will find many desirable boarding places where good accommodations are furnished at moderate prices.

The superior daily service now afforded by the Burlington Route to Hot Springs, with through sleeping car accommodations from Omaha, Lincoln, Aurora and Grand Island, makes the trip an easy and enjoyable one, and for the benefit of all who desire to test the efficacy of the water, round trip tickets at reduced rates, good for ninety days, are now on sale at all offices of the Burlington Route.

For pamphlet, descriptive of the springs, and full information as to rates, time, etc., apply to any agent of the company, or to J. Francis, Gen'l Pass & Ticket Agent.

To the large number of stories of "the meanest man" which are frequently related, one should be added of a certain Frenchman, famous for his habit of grumbling at everything and on every occasion. He was attacked by inflammatory rheumatism, and was carefully nursed by his wife, who was very devoted to him in spite of his fault finding disposition. His suffering caused her to burst into tears sometimes as she sat at his bedside. One day a friend of the invalid came in and asked him how he was getting on. "Badly, badly!" he exclaimed, "and it's all my wife's fault."
"Is it possible?" asked the friend in surprise.
"Yes. The doctor told me that humidity was bad for me, and there that woman sits and cries, just to make it moist in the room!"

New Rules.
Hotel Clerk (suspiciously)—Your bundle has come apart. May I ask what that queer thing is?
Guest—This is a new patent fire escape. I always carry it, so in case of fire I can let myself down from the hotel window. See?
Clerk (thoughtfully)—I see. Our terms for guests with fire escapes, sir, are invariably cash in advance.—Good News

His Trouble.
The reporter saluted a gambler as he stood on the after deck of a Day Ridge boat last evening coming from the races. This is the conversation:
"Win or lose?" by reporter.
"Win—good money. Big play on last race."
The gambler had won. He was not elated; he did not smile. There he stood thinking of something, and his thoughts presently came to the surface in words.

"I was thinking," said he, "how easy some men can cry, shed tears, yes, cry like women. Only today a big man came to the back of my box with a ticket on King Hazem. It called for fifty dollars against five. There he stood with tears running down his face and his ticket, ready to be cashed, in his hand. Poor fellow, I thought, that will help him out of some tight place."
"Crying for joy?" I asked.
"Nope," said the man.
"Sorry you won?" said I, surprised.
"Nope," he replied.
"Why, what was the matter with him?" asked the reporter, unable to hold down his curiosity.
"Had hay fever," said the gambler, looking far, far away.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Prudent Man.
There was a man sitting on a bench in Union square the other day with the index finger of his right hand tied up in a rag. The hand was resting on his knee, with the finger pointing across Fourth avenue, when a policeman came along and seized the rag and pulled it off. The finger looked exactly like all the rest—large, wrinkled and dirty. There was no sore or wound or other reason why it should have been tied up.
"Have you been begging on the strength of that?" asked the officer.
"No, sir."
"Is your finger sore?"
"No, sir."
"What's your object in wrapping it up this way?"
"Well, sir, that's the finger I allus use to scratch my head with. The nights are getting cool now, and I wrapped it up last night so as not to get cold in it. I've bin using that finger forty-three years now and have got too old to change."
The officer looked at him a long time, and then passed on with the remark that since the papers had raised such a great howl about people being clubbed for nothing no patrolman had any show to enforce the respect due to his position.—New York World.

At the Newsboy's Mission School.
Teacher (to Mickey)—Now, Mickey, you read the lesson to me first and then tell me, with the book closed, what you read.
Mickey (reading)—See the cow. Can the cow run? Yes, the cow can run. Can the cow run as swiftly as the horse? No, the horse runs swifter than the cow. (Closing up his book to tell what he has read.) Get outo de cow. Kin her jigsteps run? Becher life she kin run. Kin de cow up de horse a runnin? Naw, de cow aint in it wid de horse.—Life

It Has a More Sonorous Sound.
"I suppose," observed the high school girl to Amy, "that when Mr. Fitzpercy proposes you will accept him?"
"Indeed I won't, Mildred," replied Amy. "I don't expect him to pop, but when he does it will be a cold day for him."
"Don't say it will be a cold day," urged Mildred. "You know that is reprehensible slang. Say it will be a gelid section of the hiberniad!"—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Time No Object.
"By traveling your ticket over our line," urged the traveling passenger agent of the X, Y, and Z railway, "you will save sixteen hours' time on the trip."
"On the A, B, and C, route," said the agent of the rival line, "you get 297 miles more riding for the same money."
The agriculturist from Hawbrook bought his ticket over the A, B, and C route.—Chicago Tribune.

Now or Never.
A recent advertisement was to the following effect:
"The public is recommended to secure a copy of this highly interesting book, as from present appearances it is not at all likely a second edition will be printed."
—Fitzgibbon Blatter
