AUTUMN LEAVES.

For the Co. RIER. There comes a time in some folks lives When thoughts on poetry run, some write to pa-s away the time And others just for fun.

As I am one of the .anny kind Without much ryme or reason I'll try my hand at writing a poem And call it the Autumn Season.

As you are aware October is here, The seco-d month of the fall When the little birds seek Southera homes And Jack Frost begins to call.

The breeze is blowing among the trees And whisper ng a sad retrain As it tells of Autumn sunshine

And winters coming reign. The lovely flowers are fading fast, The sky looks dull and grey, As they realize the summer has passed

And they two must pass away, The grass is slowly turning brown, The trees are growing bare,

As the Autumn leaves come rustling Falling gently here and there. The beautiful autumn leaves that fall Of red and brown and gold,

To us the Autumn of life recall That we too, are getting old. And may the Autumn of our lives Prove as beautiful and as fair As the Autumn leaves that around us fall And are scattered everywhere.
