A WORD OF WARNING.

Scarcely a week passes that a large amount of matter is not sent or handed in at the COURIER office, usually Friday morning or late Thursday afternoon, which never sees the light of day, because we are unable to handle it. If our friends would get their favors in immediately upon their occurrence there would be no occasion for the "killing" or "cutting" process to be practiced here. When you have something that could be given us Monday do not wait until Thursday or Friday, but send it at once. You will save the office and yourself disappointment and regret by adopting this course.

RECEPTION AT HOTEL SAN MARINO.

A grand reception was held at the Hotel San Marino, Sutherland, Florida, of which Messrs Imhoff and Elliott of this place are owners, on Thursday evening, January 21st. The Tampa Journal, describing the event, among other things says:

"No social event has created as much of a furor as the reception at the San Marino, Sutherland, on Thursday evening last, when the guests of that magnificent hostelry extended to guests of other hotels in the vicinity and to distinguished people throughout every section of the state, their hospitality. Invitations were scattered broadcast, and expressions of regret, to which are attached names well known in political as well as literary circles, are proofs positive that more than local interest was felt in the success of the reception. The arrival at the station was a pleasant one. Outspurred the merry and up the long walk began the march to the Mecca on the brow of the hill, the grand San Marino, whose front shone down a blaze of light, and from whose portals floated out strains of song and low-toned laughter of fair women. Soon strains of music from the dining room admonished the guests that the grand march was about to commence, and that the reception was about to become a ball. It was certainly a lovely sight as couples after couples fell into line, passing round and round the spacious hall. Soon the march melted into a waltz and fairy forms glided through the mass of the dance, upheld by cavaliers, whose firm footsteps kept time with the light ones of their partners. Speaking of the proprietors, the same journal says: "Messrs Imhoff & Elliott, being the owners. They are both self-made men, both have money enough to push the enterprise and there can be no doubt of the ultimate result of the investment. Their first step was to find a hotel manager of experience, and that they have found in Mr. Don. H. Porter, formerly of the Hotel Minnetonka, South Dakota. He is one of those whole-souled men, whose very greeting is a welcome, and who makes of every guest a friend. He does not depend on Florida for help, but has to aid him an able corps of assistants."

An extraordinarily large number of guests were present, among them many of Nebraska's best known citizens. MR. ROBERTS' ANNIVERSARY. Mrs. E. T. Roberts and a party of friends gathered Friday evening to celebrate her husband's birthday anniversary. High five and refreshments were enjoyed and a pleasant evening spent. Those present were Messrs and Mesdames M. D. Tiffany, C. C. Waldo, O. B. Howell, F. W. Bartruff, J. E. R. Miller, Chas. Sanburn; Mr. R. C. Hazlett, Miss Beale Bartruff and Mrs. Whited. Mr. Roberts was the recipient of a number of fine presents.

AN IMPRESSIVE HOME WEDDING. There is always something particularly beautiful and impressive about a home wedding and such certainly was the case at the nuptials of Miss Josie Wessel of Nebraska City and Mr. E. Schwarz of New York which took place Tuesday at noon at the bride's home. The ceremony, that of the Jewish faith, was performed by Rev. Dr. Rosenau of Omaha in the presence of relatives only, two rings being used, the vows being pledged with wine from the cup of life. The service was one of unusual brilliancy, and the touching remarks of the able divine caused more than one eye to moisten. The bride and groom were attired in travelling costumes, the wedding taking place at the family residence after which carriages conveyed the guests to Hotel Watson where at two o'clock a most delicious wedding dinner was served under the personal direction of landlady Mrs. F. Higby. The feast was one "fit for the gods" and consisted of the most toothsome delicacies and substantial of life. It was served in five courses, interspersed with wine, and would certainly have proven a creditable spread for any hotel in the country. The cuisine was excellent. At three o'clock L. Wessel, Jr., of Lincoln, acting as toastmaster, called the guests to order and the time intervening before the train's departure was occupied in listening to impromptu speeches and reading congratulatory telegrams. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for their future home in New York City where the groom is an extensive importer having been established a number of years in the great metropolis. The bride, well known to a large circle in Lincoln was also a resident of New York for several years; the scene of early courtship. Mrs. Schwarz was born in Nebraska City, and is the daughter of Mr. L. Wessel, one of the earliest settlers and prominent business men. Endowed with a lovable disposition, and highly accomplished in the arts as well as domestic life, and with many friends in the metropolis to welcome her back again, life will undoubtedly be a happy dream for the popular couple.

The list of presents were varied and valuable, among them being a real estate deed, several checks for large amounts, etc. The following is a list of the guests: Messrs and Mesdames G. Adler and son Edgar, B. Kohn of Seward; M. Kohn and Chas. Schwarz of Aurora; Max Kohn and daughters Tullie and Amanda; Henry Wessel, L. Wessel Jr., Sam Wessel; Misses Carrie Arnold, Pauline Goldsmith, of Lincoln; Messrs Edgar Wessel and Alex Wessel of Omaha.

Miss Emma Gillespie entertained a pleasant party of her friends with cards and refreshments Friday evening. Those present were the Misses Hattie and Lottie Town, Patterson, Barnaby, Esterday; Messrs Esterday, Slosson and George; and Harry Town.

UNIVERSITY'S CHARTER DAY.

The University of Nebraska will celebrate its Charter day next Monday, for which elaborate preparations have been made. The exercises will open with the Faculty recitation from two to five o'clock, between which hours all the lecture rooms, libraries, laboratories and museums are open to the public, and members of the faculty will be glad to meet their friends and the public generally. In the evening at the new Lansing theatre Rev. Washington Gladden, D. D., will deliver the address on "The True Socialism" at eight o'clock, preceded by selections by the University orchestra. At Grant Memorial hall from half-past nine to ten o'clock, the University recitation will be held. The friends of this institution cannot but be deeply gratified at the solid progress made and the material prosperity and advancement which has attended its establishment.

IN MEMORIAM—MRS. AGNES S. MAITLAND.

"Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff comfort me."

Died at her home 1848 Prospect street, February 4th, 1892, Agnes S., beloved wife of W. G. Maitland. The funeral was held Saturday, the remains being followed to Wyuka cemetery by a large concourse of sorrowing friends. Deceased was a daughter of M. and A. M. Dreher and was born in Schuylkill county, Pa., October 8th, 1853. Her parents moved to Indianapolis, Ind., in 1856. In 1875 she was married to W. G. Maitland at the latter place. She had one child, a large circle of friends to mourn her loss, but they mourn not as those having no hope, for they know that she is "not lost but gone before," and waits with smiles to greet them, where sad partings come no more. The following touching lines are inscribed by a friend:

Our friend has left us like a gentle breath, Her eyes are closed in the sleep of death, The autumn leaves will flutter and fall, And the drifting snows will cover all; But she will surely peacefully rest, Forever happy by Angels blessed. Just in the prime of sweet wifehood, As the child tender and good, She was to good to remain on earth, None but the Angels knew her worth, So they called her home to dwell with them, Crowning her brow with pearl and gem. But should we grieve when such a life Gives up the battle of earthly strife? Better rejoice that her tasks are done, The cross laid down and victory won. Tears are vain when a soul so bright, Wings its way to the gates of light. Dear Agnes has left her parent, kind Husband and children all behind, And many friends kind and sincere Are left to grieve in sadness here; She has only gone where they may come To dwell with her in that heavenly home. Yes, our friend has gone but her sweet good will, Like a fragrant odor is with us still, The tender remembrance her memory bring, The mantle of patience o'er us fling, While we strive to follow the path she trod, That will lead us hence to home and God.

The Beta Literary club expressed these sentiments touching Mrs. Maitland's death: Our circle is broken and our beloved friend and sister Agnes Maitland has joined the eternal circle before the "Great White Throne" where the Mysteries of life are all revealed and hidden things made plain. Our hearts are heavy and our eyes filled with tears at the loss of the earthly touch and presence of our friend, but the memory of her sweet and gentle life must ever remain like incense which shall pervade our entire circle. It is such lives as hers that interpret the words of God to the world for His light shines through them. While we mourn the loss of the cheering presence and heartily sympathetic loving cooperation of Agnes Maitland we bow submissively to God's will and thank Him that it was ours to know and labor with her, feeling that the influence of her tender, true character must still live and we are the better, truer women for having so known her.

"In this dim world of clouding cares We rarely know, till bewildered eyes See white wings loosening up the skies The Angels with us, afar are."

A MAGNIFICENT ART PRODUCTION.

Much has been done in the past decade or two to advance the cause and elevate the tone of art in America and no one who has shown the least interest need be told how much has been accomplished. The latest achievement of Messrs D. Appleton & Co., the well known New York and London publishers, is such a giant stride in the direction of progress that it deserves more than passing attention at our hands, as well as from every art student and admirer in the country. This firm has just issued two magnificent publications, the first of which, "Recent Ideals of American Art," has enjoyed a deservedly wide popularity and sale. The second and most recent is entitled "Woman in French Art." It would be difficult to imagine and still more difficult to describe the inherent beauty contained in these works, for no matter how faithfully the pen portrays, how accurately it performs its task of word painting, it cannot reproduce the delicate coloring or artistic outline and execution of the artist's brush. It is a well nigh impossible undertaking. "Woman in French Art" is a reproduction of two hundred and twenty-five Paris copper-plates, comprising the finest, world renowned oil paintings and water colors of the most celebrated French artists, including Millet, Meissonier, Dagnan-Bouveret, Bonheur, Corot, Julien Dupre, Gerome and others. The reproductions are from the celebrated establishment of Goupi & Co., Paris, of world-wide reputation, who have co-operated with the Messrs Appleton & Co., in this work, and every picture appears by special arrangement with and permission of the artist who painted it. The work is a truly magnificent one, baffling anything like an adequate description. The mellow tints and shadings, the perfect contour of form and feature, the sweetness and tenderness of tone, the rich appearance and absolutely superb perfection of the paintings are a human marvel. The greatest improvements in the art of reproduction are here apparent. Two years ago such triumphs of artistic skill would have been utterly impossible. To-day scores of prominent artists, collectors, and connoisseurs attest their appreciation of its beauty, fidelity and splendor. The work is published in twenty-five parts, each containing three large photograms, size about 10x12 inches, suitable for framing, and six typographicures. The price is one dollar for each part, payable monthly upon delivery. Incidentally, it may be remarked that the text, which is written by George William Sheldon, the well known American art critic, is not the least interesting portion of the work which is, altogether, the finest ever introduced into Lincoln.
