One of the chief objections to the proposition to issue bonds in the sum of $150,000 for the purpose of straightening, widening and deepening of the channel of Salt creek...

It must be gratifying to Mr. Bryan's friends, and they are many, to note the fairness with which Lincoln's, already famous congressman, is being treated on all sides.

With, perhaps, one or two exceptions, his political adversaries have been unanimous in praise of his brilliant achievements.

It is a fact that the pages of history may be searched in vain to find another instance since the early days of the government, where a congressman on serving his first term has made such a decided impression on the country at large.

A few people were wont to say, "Mr. Bryan shins as all right at home, but his light will be put out very quickly when he takes his place in congress."

The young democratic statesman from Nebraska has demonstrated his ability to cope with the ablest talent, and his light is still burning.

Even the straightest republicans must feel a certain amount of pride in the success of the "boy congressman." He reflects credit upon the city, the district and the state.

There died in this city this week a man who, actuated by selfish motives it is true, has done a great deal to advertise Lincoln.

Recently he did not operate quite so extensively, but a few years ago one might have thought from the advertisements that were scattered over the country that the chief industry of this city was the manufacture and sale of "Pratt's Treatment for the Scalp."

A grand formal opening of the "Famous" fair has been a pronounced success. All new and fine goods are being shown and are opening offices today, ladies will miss a treat if they fail to attend.

DEATH OF PAUL MAYER.

Paul Mayer, a short illness, Paul Mayer, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mayer, breathed his last, and at the age of 20 months and eleven days leaves heart-broken parents and a circle of many friends.

His little one was the first born into a household where it was fairly idolized by all, and the sad affliction comes to the family as a thunder-bolt from a clear sky.

Previously little Paul has enjoyed the best of health, every attention possible was given him and his parents were lavishly bestowed. The funeral took place from the family residence 631 south Eleventh street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the remains were deposited in a vault at Wyuka pending future interment. The following lines are respectfully dedicated to the memory of deceased:

IN MEMORY OF LITTLE PAUL.

The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away Bless'd be the name of the Lord.

How precious the home that is blessed With little ones, many or few, For they are the angels that guide us And hold us to ways that are true.

Such a home is a paradise, truly, A portion of heaven on earth; And fortunate they who possess them, For gold cannot measure their worth.

But oft are the little ones taken, And we are left sadly to mourn, For the dear ones who left us so early, In the first flush of beautiful morn.

Just three months ago our darling Came to gladden our hearts for a time; But God has seen fit to take him To dwell in a higher clime.

And our home is sad and lonely, For we miss our dear little Paul; No more on earth will he feel our kiss Or hear us when we call.

The precious life that budded here, That by "Our Father" was given, Has been recalled by the selfsame hand To bloom mid the flowers of heaven.

Merit Wins, It Always Wins.

When the Interior Decorative company announced to the public, about a year ago that they would open a resort where the finest goods obtainable in house decorations would be kept on hand to supply a growing demand for these goods, few people gave President Ziener credit for carrying out such intentions.

The competitors joined with the croakers in saying: "It won't pay—sint no people here to buy such fine goods, etc." But the opening of the place and the class of hangings and other decorations shows from time to time since then, has been the cause for disappointment to the foreword croakers and genuine delight to the class of people that appreciate high class goods and superior work.

The company's present location, 1233 O street, presents to the visitor, one of the most elaborate and finest wall paper emporiums to be found anywhere. Its class of goods carried in stock, the manner in which they are shown and lastly, but by no means least, the way they are "stuck" on the wall.

"Merit wins, it always wins," is an old adage, but its meaning was never more exemplified than in the instance of the Interior Decorative Co.

CREEDE MINING CAMP.

A Second Leadville—Fourth Place Already Gained by the Young Giant.

The whirligig of fortune has stopped at Creede, nothing yesterday, it is a town today and will be a city tomorrow. Many a man will date his rise in this world from the hour he stepped into Willow Gulch. The camp has practically existed only since last May. The D. & R. G. Ry. did not get in until October, and regular passenger trains did not run until December. yet no other mining camp ever produced so much ore during the same period of its early existence. Leadville itself fell far behind. The extraordinary output has come from exactly five mines, and one of them has shipped only a nominal quantity. Early investments promise prompt and quick returns. Pamphlets containing a full and complete description of this wonderful mining camp, together with other valuable information, routes, rates and tickets may be obtained at B & M depot or city office cor. 17th and O streets.
