A small but very appreciative audience listened to a charming concert program at the Lansing Monday evening, given by the well known Whitney Mockridge company. There were ten numbers on the evening's bill and before the last one was finished, nearly as many encores were responded to. The first to appear were Miss Grace Almy and Mr. Fletcher Wyatt, who rendered Meyer Helmund's "Musical Dialogue" much to the pleasure of all present. Their voices blend nicely and the harmony was perfect. Mr. Winternitz rendered a difficult, yet sweet and charming violin solo that thoroughly caught the house. He has a graceful attitude, does his work with delightful ease and thoroughly convinced his auditors of the fact that he is a thorough artist. He was compelled to answer an encore. Of Gounod's "Jewel Song," from Faust, which was sung by Miss Marina Posta, it may be said that she is a capable artist, but on this occasion her work was not as well received as was that of her companions on the program. She has a good voice but her attitude on the stage is not easy, and her manner seems to be somewhat strained, which always has a telling effect upon the success otherwise of a vocalist. But the event of the evening was the appearance of that popular tenor, Mr. Whitney Mockridge. His rich, beautiful voice was never sweeter, nor was he ever heard to better advantage. He seemed at his best and when "Murmuring Zephyrs," by Jensen had been finished the burst of appreciation from the audience demonstrated only too clearly the appreciation of every auditor in the house. Encores were sung with like results. As a tenor Mr. Mockridge has few equals, and the only regret that can be offered is that a full house did not hear him. One of the prettiest numbers of the evening was Miss Grace Almy's "When I was a Child of Three." It was gracefully sung, with good expression and brought down the house, and an encore was the result. The entire program was excellently carried out and the concert was undoubtedly one of the most enjoyable ever listened to in Nebraska. Manager Persinger may well be credited with having a most elegant aggregation of talent in his company and they certainly deserve united praise for their work. Lincoln, however, is a poor music town, which has of times been demonstrated, and the small audience that was present in no manner reflects upon the merits of the company.

Madeline Merli, the Italian actress, played a two nights' engagement at the Lansing this week, appearing both nights to poor business. The madame is not well enough known to draw large houses and her success throughout this country, which is advertised as her first American tour, will doubtless be her last. That she is a very fair artist we will not deny, but when she or her manager claims extravagant ability for her, then the line must be drawn. She has the appearance more of a Spaniard than an Italian and her acting will never set the world on fire—unless she improves much hereafter. Her support was very poor in some parts and only fair at best. Camille was to have been put on the first night but owing to illness of one of the ladies Frou Frou, the second night's bill, was staged both nights. The business done here was fully in accord with what the show merited.

Jolly, genial, jovial Joe Murphy made his bow to a Lincoln audience again last night after an absence of several years. Kerry Gow was the bill and it received ample and pleasing attention from a most excellent company of artists. Mr. Murphy's clever dialect is refreshing, pure and simple, while his songs are such as to give cheer to the most melancholy. In fact so much was his voice appreciated last night that duplicate numbers were found necessary to satisfy the audience. Tonight Mr. Murphy will be seen in his most successful play, "Shaun Rhuie," and if you haven't your seats secured yet, it's time you were moving toward the box office. There will be a big audience present tonight.

The following attractions will be seen at the Lansing the week after next, January 23d to 28th: Annie Lewis in A Nutmeg Match, Friends, Hole in the Ground and Vesper Bells. These will fill the entire week. In Omaha, Denver and elsewhere, Clara Morris seats sell for $1.50, while in Lincoln the best seats are selling for $1, and a crowded house will greet her at the Lansing Monday evening, when "Article 47" will be given. Clara Morris in "L'Article 47" Monday. An engagement of more than ordinary merit is the one booked for Monday night at the Lansing, and the sale of seats for Clara Morris, which opened yesterday, already bespeak a crowded house. The following brief criticisms show the regard in which Clara Morris is held in New York: "Mesmerism and hypnotism are strong words, but perhaps the best to use in speaking of her power."—Brooklyn Eagle. "The Fourteenth Street theatre was crowded with the admirers of this remarkable country and New York City. The central figure, of course, is "Si Plunkard," a young Yankee notion peddler, which part is looked after by Mr. J. C. Lewis. Some of the leading characters seen may be mentioned, Dora Page, a young country lass, in love with Sir Felix Schmarldt, an inventive Dutchman; Robert Denney, a bogus stock speculator; Ezra Page, an honest old farmer who does not understand speculation; Moses Wilton, a Hebrew money lender, and numerous country friends of the Page family. The performance includes many specialties. Regular house prices, 25, 50 and 75 cents, will prevail.

The Pay Train is Coming. A great realistic comedy drama that will interest all will be seen at Funke's Saturday evening. It is the "Pay Train," and will be presented by the petite actress Miss Florence Bindy and a great cast. There are numerous climaxes and the scenic effects are said to be most elegant and realistic. The wreck of a train while running down a steep incline, a boiler explosion, the flight of the fast pay train across the stage at full speed, a most natural coal mine scene and other mechanical effects shown are such as to stir the audience to its highest pitch of enthusiasm. Speaking of the piece the Chicago Herald says: "The Pay Train" is easily at the head of the long list of railroad dramas." Notwithstanding the high merit of this attraction, prices for seats will be the same as usual, 25, 50 and 75 cents.
