An Appeal For Aid.

A big black cloud of debt hangs over the spacious Tabernacle in Brooklyn, where Rev. Dr. Talmage speaks every First let me repeat my definition of an Sunday to thousands. If it be not speedily dispelled, this great preacher and wanted to marry, but never did, and is soured and cranky in consequence. As teacher must give up his labors in a teacher minst give up his labors in a locality where he can do more good thing in any place else on earth. The story of the financial trouble at this church seems to be a simple one. It casts not the slightest reflection upon the care, prudence or foresight of either Dr. Talmage or his congregation. Several years ago a large church was built. The year following it was found necessary to enlarge it at I have said, there are few old maids now, | locality where he can do more good than these unfortunates lately. Then another large edifice was constructed. But Of course you will say they immediately learned useful employments, went into the noble world of work and earned their own living, being too just and high spir-it de to depend on the one brother. But no! Not they! They every one slumped down and hung like four millstones around the neck of that one brother. So they do to this day; so they have done for 12 years. It is superfuous to say the brother does not enjoy it. But these girls were brought up to believe that woman should be sweetly dependent on man and look to him for support. They have done so with a vengeance. They are well on in years now and live all four Of course you will say they immediately financially, is a remarkable example are well on in years now and live all four of self sacrifice and liberality. They believed that woman's mission was to marry; they missed it, and this radiant, glorious and beautiful world became only a place for them to nurse their grievances. One of them came near being married once, but a month before her bridal day she broke off the engagement because she feared her husband his reponse in deeds and words was most potent. When the cry of distress came from the starving peasants in Russia, he went 6,000 miles to distribute bread. For every local charity and every case of individual distress his right hand has literally been estended at all times, and his left knew nothing about it.

If this unfortunate financial embarrassment of his church had not occurred. Dr. Talmage would probably never have troubled himself to correct the prevailing opinion that he had been drawing from $10,000 to $20,000 per year for his services as pastor, but in speaking of the difficulty the other day he remarked incidentally that for the past three years he had received $680 for his work, the balance of his salary having been turned back to the church.

Nearly 500 women are employed as station agents on the French railways, but they get only half as much pay as men. This is partly owing to the fact that comparatively few occupations are open to Frenchwomen, largely also to lyn, together with the names of the dothe fact that women cannot vote. Denying women the right to vote and paying women less than men for the same work will both be looked upon as relics of barbarism in 1993. Just watch and see if this is not so.
