The World's Fair.

The World's Fair buildings and exhibits are insured for three hundred million dollars. In other words, they are valued at an amount equal to one-third of the national debt. But figures cannot give you even the faintest conception of the immensity, the beauty, the charm of this greatest of all great fairs. The only way to see the exposition is to visit Chicago, and the only (satisfactory) way to visit Chicago is to take the Burlington route.

See Bonnell at the depot or Ziemer at Tenth and O. They will give you full information about trains. Excursion rates every day.

THE INFANTA'S VISIT.

The present visit of the Infanta Eulalie, of Spain, to this country has caused a great deal of perturbation in social circles in Washington, New York and Chicago.

"A ball as late as May 22 would not be a wise move on the part of New York society."

Thus spoke Ward McAllister, the other day in opposition to the proposed ball to the Infanta Eulalie and suite, which is planned to take place at the Madison Square Garden next Monday night, and over which society at large finds itself in a curious middle. "Then, again," continued Mr. McAllister, "too many complications, owing to the rigid rules of Spanish court etiquette, would ensue."

Mrs. Paron Stevens, who at first was full of the project, is now violently opposed to it. Mrs. Stevens desired to give the entertainment at her own house on Fifth avenue, to invite her own particular friends, to such Mr. McAllister and to do everything in her own way. She at first associated with herself Mrs. Van Kessel-Cruger, Mrs. Bayless, and a few other ladies whose names are well known in society. Then she wanted a major domo or chamberlain to conduct the affair.

Mrs. Stevens was determined not to ask Mr. McAllister, and Mr. McAllister was not very anxious to accept the mission. It was suggested that the entertainment should be placed in the hands of the Circulo Colon-Cervantes, which is composed of the best Spanish element in the city, and thus give the entertainment a semi-official character, and in that manner tide over many of the difficulties in the way of the Infanta accepting an invitation to a private ball.

Mrs. Paron Stevens wouldn't approve of this arrangement, and she has now withdrawn from the affair altogether and will not discuss it.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Cruger, and Mrs. Balliss have signified to the Circulo Colon-Cervantes that they will act as patronesses. "We are doing all we can," said Mrs. Enrico Rosso, who has charge of the arrangements, "to make this the greatest social success. Do not believe the reports of the Infanta not coming here. They are not true. We will have our servants in full court dress, black and gold. The private boudoir and reception room of the Princess will be approached from the Madison avenue entrance."

"In her suite are the Prince Antoine of Orleans, her husband; the Duke of Tamames, and a retinue of servants. The Duke is her chamberlain, and all these arrangements have been submitted to him and to the Spanish Minister at Washington for approval. The tickets will be $15 each."

There are many intricacies in Spanish Court etiquette which will be rehearsed fully before any attempt is made to carry them out. In New York staying quietly with friends, is a Spanish gentleman, M. de Carvajal, who belongs to a noted family in Spain. When seen at the Hotel Waldorf the other evening he said: "I am very much surprised that the Spanish society in this city should be such a stickler for court etiquette in its entertainment to the Infanta. If you wish to observe the traditions of the Court of Spain of course you must hardly be seen in the royal presence. There must, of course, be a royal quadrille, in which I suppose these good ladies of New York will dance—that is if they are of royal blood. You cannot have a state ball unless you have a royal quadrille."

"You must kneel down and kiss the hand of the Princess when presented, and then back out. I think you should also wear court dress, although these things should not be required in a republic. You should receive the Princess in a dignified manner, but the etiquette of the Court of Spain should not apply except in Spain."

MAY A DULL MONTH.

May is always a dull month, socially. There is still a prejudice against May weddings, and the month is at best little more than an interim before June, when the young people come home from school and college, when fashionable weddings are solemnized, and when the season for out door fetes fairly begins. In Lincoln there is a prospect that the dearth of May entertainments may be offset by an unusual social activity in June. There will be a number of weddings, and various entertainments are in contemplation. There will be several receptions before the season closes, and with the approach of warm weather there will be the customary coaching parties, picnics, etc.

WILL PICNIC AT MILFORD.

The class of '93 of the state university has decided to celebrate class day by a picnic at Milford this year instead of the usual exercises in the opera house.

The societies have all combined to give a single June day program instead of having four separate ones, as they think there have been too many intellectual feasts during commencement week heretofore. The various committees on arrangements are getting everything in readiness and a special train will be secured going out about 9 o'clock in the morning and returning in the evening. A picnic banquet will be served with appropriate toasts. The speakers will be two members of the academic faculty, two from the law school faculty, and two seniors each from the academic college and law school.
