DAVID H. MERCER

DAVE Mercer, congressman from the Second Nebraska district, made a speech on the tariff in the house of representatives January 27. He said a great many things, a habit congressmen have, of which the following are samples:

Only one year ago President Harrison congratulated his countrymen upon a degree of prosperity and a diffusion of the comforts of life which had never before been enjoyed by our people. As the year closed a democratic year, even a conservative commercial agency, which usually avoids strong language, was compelled to declare that it was the most disastrous year in the history of the country—the worst ever experienced. The failures were 50 per cent more numerous than in the preceding year. The liabilities were 400 per cent greater. Seventy-five railroad systems are in the hands of receivers, representing a capitalization of nearly $2,000,000,000.

Bank clearances have fallen off 12 per cent. Prices of all kinds continually fall, and the production of staple articles of various kinds has decreased from 25 to 50 per cent. At least two million working people are out of employment, with the result that all the tradesmen depending upon the expenditure of the wages these people earn are deprived of profit. The treasury of the United States for the first time in thirty years is short of money, and, unless extraordinary measures are resorted to, will be unable to meet its obligations. President Harrison noted the high-water mark of national prosperity at the close of the year 1892. Only twelve months later, under the administration of President Cleveland, the tide is at the ebb, and if a change does not soon happen for the better there will not be water enough to indicate even the ebb.

If the republican party during over thirty years of control in this country could have achieved by its legislation and its management of affairs the wonderful success that has followed its every effort, why should the people seek a change from such method of control? A sure thing beats an uncertainty every time. Just think of the history of the republican party during the grand march of progress which began with the accession of this party into power. Some figures have been presented in the above column that value per capita of the products of American manufactures increased from $50.98 in 1880 to $138.93 in 1890. The mileage of steam railroads increased 465.7 per cent. The value of live stock on American farms increased 122.4 per cent; of farm implements and machinery, 124.47 per cent; of land, fences and buildings, 97.97 per cent.

In that period our annual exports of farm products grew from $256,560,973 to $629,785,917, and our exports of domestic manufactures from $45,866 to $151,131,297. Wages have grown higher in every calling, both in amount and purchasing power. The popular standard of living, of comfort, of intelligence, has gradually and generally risen. If the country can make such wonderful progress under republican legislation and republican control, and in so short a time, why should the people seek a change, especially when that change threatens to overturn all the progress thus made and reverse us to a situation of affairs in this country thirty years ago?

Is what Hood's Sarsaparilla vigorously fights, and it is always victorious in expelling all the foul taints and giving the vital fluid the quality and quantity of perfect health. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, boils and all other troubles caused by impure blood.

FADS OF THE FAIR

THE next season will assuredly be that of the "tailor-made." The "tailor-made" girl is a person for whom every one has a great respect. There are many reasons for this respect. First, we are taught to believe that she costs a great deal. In this a general mistake is made, for the tailor-made girl has about half as many gowns as her sisters. The matter of expense is, therefore, about the same in the end. Still, the majority of folks, not knowing the exact cost of these perfect and workmanlike garments, or the length of time they last, look upon her as an expensive kind of creature. We regard her tweed gown, gaitered feet and hat with awe, and put her down as a very expensive luxury—about as far out of the range of average man as terrapin and hand-painted porcelain teacups.

Secondly, she is respected because she is always ready for any sort of exertion on a moment's notice. She is neat and taut and trim, and all ready without any fuss. The other girl turns the house upside down when her brother or his friend asks her suddenly to accompany him on a long country walk or any kind of an expedition. She is never prepared for any of those impromptu strolls. She is generally drifting about the house in a tea gown when she is summoned, and they allow her just ten minutes to get ready. Of course, she can't get ready in ten minutes—no woman ever did, should or will—unless she happens to be ready, which is the case with the tailor-made girl. The other girl puts on a maulin gown, with ribbons flying, and a hat with a good deal of a sail to it, and what with her trailing draperies and constantly flopping hat her walk is not exactly a success.

Now the tailor-made girl is ready for any emergency, from an Arctic expedition to a yachting trip on the sound. She doesn't care about your picture hats and flying ribbons and trailing draperies. A trim suit, with a neat mannish shirt and tie, boots that have been well made for her active feet, and dog-skin gloves that don't pinch her hands, a hat that is firmly pinned on and will keep on even in a hurricane—and there she is, complete and ready for anything and anybody. You could not have a prettier companion or a pleasanter one.

Some Current Fripperies. Pretty feet have now some chance of being seen and appreciated. Neat boots are no longer hidden away under more or less muddy or dusty skirts, and it is no longer a work of supererogation to study one chausure as carefully for the street as one does for the ball or dinner. Small diamonds are never used to more advantage than in the dainty flower wreathed brooches that are in vogue.

For a "notion" useful to a traveller commend us to the damp detector. It is made of silver and looks much like a compass. At the back there are small holes in the silver, through which a damp atmosphere passes and moves the needle until it points to the word damp. The detector is placed in the bed, and is a certain tell-tale if sheets are unajred. The Tam O'Shanter is being brought out in several chic styles. This novelty headgear is frequently fashioned of velvet, black, green or bronze, the brim being fluted all around except at the left side, where a bunch of tips poses, or a puff of lace is secured by a glittering buckle.

Some of the new coats are one-sided affairs. They have one side rather full; on the other is a single wide reverse edged with braid or stitching. Straight and slender persons can wear these to great effect.

Three large rings of chased silver set in an ornamented vase hang against the wall and are intended to hold cards and letters.

One of the vivid reds is geranium, which is of almost dazzling brightness. None but a brunette with a pale olive complexion should be reckless enough to wear this shade.

A black hat trimmed with plumes may be brightened with a bow or rosette of pink, blue or yellow ribbon, and will look quite jaunty with the addition.

People troubled with sick and nervous headaches will find a most efficacious remedy in Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They strengthen the stomach, stimulate the liver, restore healthy action to the digestive organs, and thus afford speedy and permanent relief.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled. The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs, had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore, to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and gained my waist, together with an indescribable 'gone' feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which according to their universal conclusion, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it continues its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit. When I saw an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there has not been even the slightest indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 137. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recommendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine."—James Kane, La Rue, O. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price. If per bottle, six bottles for $4, express prepaid. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs.
