PLATTSMOUTH HERALD,
 PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

The Plattsmouth Herald Publishing Co.
LOCAL NEWS.

Thanksgiving day was one of the brightest and most pleasant in years. Carruth has taken a number of shop views lately, and also a fine view of the depot over at Pacific Junction.

The cases started some two years ago in the district court against certain saloon men have been discontinued.

The pupils in the city schools are hard at work on their coming exhibition, which has every promise of success.

Mr. Walter J. White is building an addition to his residence and otherwise improving his now pleasant home.

Louisville will rebuild the Hall House at once and we understand the contract has already been let to Omaha parties.

Thanksgiving day was observed in the city by many family dinner parties and otherwise quite numerous recognized by our citizens.

Work has been pushed forward very rapidly of late upon the Chicago avenue culvert, which is one of the most substantial improvements of the year.

Mrs. M. A. Buler, whose card may be found elsewhere in this paper, returned from Nebraska City this week, where she has been engaged in her line of business.

Already the Perkins feels sorely the need for additional room; many nights the proprietors being unable after sending all help away, to supply the demands made for accommodations.

Mr. Robbins is building on West Main street, a large two-story residence, with square roof and high basement; it will be one of the best residences in that locality.

District court adjourned on Saturday evening with a vast amount of work remaining and awaiting action. Judge Pound comes back the 15th to hold a week's session to take up equity cases.

The F. A. M. Club gave the largest ball of the season at the Hall, Thanksgiving evening there being one hundred and three couples in attendance. Glenwood was represented by six couples, and others were present from Omaha, Lincoln, Nebraska City, and Burlington Iowa. The club and its officers left nothing undone to secure a complete success and the verdict of those in attendance is very complimentary to them. Supper was served at Murphy's Central Restaurant.

If the managers of the new opera house would hire special policemen and put them in the gallery to make parties there sit down, take their hats off and give a semblance of quietness, the audience below would be glad to foot the bill. Friday night last, the gallery audience, or large numbers of them, stood up on the seats, walked around during the most attentive parts of the play, talked out loud, sat on the backs of the seats with their hats on, and in other ways exhibited their early education, while the hoodlums put in their time "firing" programmes at the audience. The nuisance should be abated.

Union services were held in the M. E. Church on Thanksgiving day, there being a very good audience in attendance. Rev. S. P. Wilson offered prayer and Rev. J. T. Baird, pastor of the Presbyterian church, preaching the sermon. Those only who were present know the excellence of the discourse, which was listened to with the closest attention. It was broad in extent, rich in thought, scholarly and finished. The world was brought together; the blessings of nations garnered, and the self evident truth of our highest privileges coming from our nation as a Christian nation exemplified. It was a sermon so replete with good, that it should not be confined to church walls and the comparatively few who heard it.

The Mill-Burlough company entertained the finest audience of the season in the new opera house last Friday, the troupe appearing in Othello, Mr. Burlough as Othello, and Mr. Mill as Iago. To the lovers of the tragedy in the drama, the entertainment was most highly appreciated. The cast was the best that ever appeared before a Plattsmouth audience and their rendition of Othello was exceptionally good. Mr. Mill as Iago personified that most treacherous character magnificently, and Mr. Burlough was in no manner weak, although his conception of his character is subject to criticism, and much below McCullough's. The visit of the company was an epoch in dramatic circles in this city.

Those Frauds. As predicted by the Pilot the still-hunt after election frauds has been without results. In the United States court at Omaha yesterday, the im-maculate Morton brought his grand jury into court and after reporting no bills, was discharged. It is reported that they spent two weeks investigating the alleged frauds in the surveyor general's office, and more than that time delving for election frauds. The result, no bills found, coming from such a source, is a complete vindication of Surveyor General Smith and Mr. Valentine, and now the Herald and the Bee, after having had the investigation virtually in their own hands, have failed to discover any grounds for their insane ravings of fraud, they would at least exhibit a commendable decency by taking a long rest on that subject.—Blair Pilot.

J. W. MARSHALL, P. M.

Dr. Schildknecht's new home will be one of the handsomest in the city, and it is now receiving finishing touches and being surrounded with an iron fence.

A reporter for the Daily State Journal gives the following description of Plattsmouth in last Thursday's issue. It shows what people who come from other places think of our growth and prosperity. In the same article is a full description of the new Waterman opera house:

A THRIVING CITY.

Plattsmouth of to day is a surprise to one who knew it only a few years ago. From a straggling village of a single street, it has now spread out over its "seven hills," with imposing brick business blocks lining each side of Main street from the depot to Eighth street, a distance of more than half a mile, handsome residences and cottages dotting the hills north, south and west as far as can be seen, and containing a population in excess of 6,000 people. A beautiful three-story school house stands upon a hill three-quarters of a mile west of the "big muddy," from the summit of which can be seen the city—a most beautiful sight. To one who has been accustomed all his life, as the writer, to flat, level streets, it does not seem just the right thing—this city on the hills—yet we are compelled to admire it, for it is picturesque and grand.

While your reporter had not the time at his disposal to "circulate around" and get acquainted with the business men of Plattsmouth, he did find time to investigate as to the capacity with which Plattsmouth is building up, and the result proved greater than was expected. The investigation showed that since the first of last January there has been erected on Main street, inclusive of the opera house, fourteen brick business blocks, eight of which are three stories high, at an aggregate cost of $100,000, and the total number of frame buildings, residences and cottages, erected during the same period has been 174, at an average cost of $1,000 each, making the total amount in building, including the opera house, $338,000 in eleven months. In addition to this several buildings are under contract, which will be completed before the end of the year. When you congratulate a Plattsmouth man upon this fine showing, he smiles complacently and informs you that their buildings are all occupied, and they need as many more.

The completion of the bridge across the Missouri two years ago, and the turning of the Kansas City and Omaha routes via Plattsmouth, combined with the untiring energies of some of her best citizens, has given the city a start that is marvelous, and Omaha and other river towns better have a care, or the term metropolis may be applied to Plattsmouth in the near future. There is nothing to prevent the further growth and improvement of Plattsmouth if her citizens pull together. The hills can be graded, manufacturing established, colleges founded, and what is now a city of 6,000 become one of 20,000 before the next decade is ended.

COUNTY NEWS.

From the Greenwood Eagle.
 M. E. Chevront shipped several hundred pounds of turkeys and will game this week.

E. A. Ryder paid out $1,043.45 last Saturday for corn for J. A. Connor. We understand the other three buyers paid out about the same.

Mrs. D. H. Devore, living seven miles southeast of town, says she planted one ear of corn and got three bushels of shelled corn from it. Who can best that?

There will be a festival held in the town hall by the members of the M. E. church on the 15th of December, for the purpose of raising funds to purchase seats, etc., for the new M. E. church in this place. Everybody is invited.

The little town of Greenwood is paying out $3,000 every day for corn. These are facts which can be substantiated by our buyers if necessary. We venture to say right here that Greenwood is receiving more corn and paying out more money for the same than any other town of its size in the state.

From the W. W. Republican.
 Wm. Coon, of Grand Prairie, has a new ten-horse power corn sheller.

Thomas & Orton have erected a street lamp in front of their drug store.

Mr. E. L. Reed left on last Wednesday morning for Chicago, to purchase holiday goods, and will not return until he has made a complete selection.

Mr. A. W. Hall, late proprietor of the Hall house, recently destroyed by fire at Louisville was in town yesterday. Mr. Hall informs us that as soon as the weather permits in the spring, work will be commenced upon a new hotel building. The plans and specifications of the new building are now in the hands of Architect Voss, of Omaha.

One evening last week the young folks in the vicinity of Elmwood united their forces and made an onslaught upon the unsuspecting home of Rev. Edward Root. A general old-fashioned corn husking frolic ensued, after which a supper of oysters, which had been brought by the raiders, was served and a general good time was had until a late hour.

Some two weeks ago Mr. Frank Fowler, who resides two miles west of town met with a painful accident which has cost him the sight of an eye. He jumped from the top of a load of hay, landing among some high weeds, one of which was forced into his eye, under the ball. The eye proving quite painful the unfortunate man called upon Drs. Thomas & Hall, who upon examination decided that the sight was destroyed. However, desiring a more thorough examination, he accompanied Dr. Hall to Plattsmouth, and was there re-examined with the ophthalmoscope, by Drs. Livingston and Hall, when his worst fears were confirmed.

The HERALD would appreciate some money from subscribers about this time of year, when expenses run high and demands for money increase.

If the nights without a moon do not make the city street lamps appreciated, one's deeds must be of darkness.
