A Spangled World.

Is the title of the newest issue from the press of Richard K. Fox's Police Gazette Publishing House. It is a brisk and breezy series of sketches of circus life, embodying the romances and realities of that peculiar and fascinating profession, and tearing the veil from many of its piquant mysteries. Next to seeing the circus itself, the "Spangled World" may serve as a mirror in which to view it with reflected brilliancy. The book is filled with pictures as bright and snappy as
