WEEKLY, by mail,

OMAHA will soon be a highly moral city. The mayor says the saloon-keepers must pay a full year's license in advance, and that the gambling houses must all close at once, while the ministers of the city are preaching a crusade against Sunday base ball. One remarkable result showing the improved moral tone of the city is already discernable. The people and press have discovered the drinking water is muddy.

COUNCIL BLUFFS had a big time the Fourth. They had the races, and then they had the news that the Secretary of at a time there is no day in the year they War had signed the permit giving the Omaha and Council Bluffs Bridge Co. the right to build a wagon bridge across the Missouri. The enthusiasm of the people passed all ordinary bounds and they went in for a big time and had it. They burned more fireworks and made more noise than any city in Iowa.

THE Burlington Hawkeye of June 27, contains a "part 2" devoted to showing up the advantages of the Western Normal college of Shenandoah. Extracts are taken from papers all over the state of Iowa and they uniformly speak in highest commendation of the college and its surroundings. The institution is one of the best of its class in the west and is certainly worthy the praise which the extracts alluded to show are so bountifully bestowed.

THE Railway Age gives Statistics showing that in the first six months of this year track-laying has been going on in 37 of the 47 states and territories of the union. Track has been laid on 230 different lines of railroad aggregating 3.754 miles. It is a remarkably healthy showing and has only been surpassed in the number of miles laid, once, in 1882, when almost 5,000 were laid during the same period. The state showing best is Kansas with 692 miles of track laid on 17 different lines of road, followed by Texas with 489 miles, the Indiatn territory with 433 miles, and Nebraska fourth with 331 miles laid by five different lines of railroad.

THAT grand old traitor Jeff Davis has emphasized his denial of the letter accredited to him saying the flags should not be returned by writing one to the Baltimore Sun in which he plainly says they should be. He says to retain them would be equivalent to renewed exultation and then adds: "Our men fought for a principle, and that they have not surrendered, but rather hopelessly lived to see the good sense of northern men reyert to the teachings of their sires, and reestablish the government according to the constitution on which it was founded. That is the only victory which would be to them and their children, a thing to be prized and glorified." There is only one exclamation in current use in America that is appropriate for the occasion. It is,

Keep up the Improvements.

We do not know how much truth there is in the rumors that are afloat of new enterprises coming to locate in this city. But it is certain it is to the interest of the city and every resident in it that every such enterprise be made to feel it will find a cordial welcome amongst us if it will but come here. Our many advan tages of location and surroundings should be shown in their proper light to all visitors. And above all we should show our own confidence in our city's future by going steadily ahead with the improvements in hand and proposed. perity, that it will surprise the most sanguin of us. Let our citizens continue the works of improvement.

The Fourth.

The telegraphic dispatches inform us that hardly ever in the history of the country has our great national holiday been so generally observed as on last Monday. This is as it should be. As our country grows in wealth and power, remaining in a state of prosperous peace, we do well to joyfully celebrate the anniversary of the day on which our ancestors courageously declared their indeand maintenance of an independent government founded on the great principles of equality of mankind and free government. From the first the country grew and prospered, but never, in its previous history, has it been so marked as since the one great stain of slavery that belied our declarations and our teachings has been blotted out.

greater or less numbers of our citizens who are abroad. Among those of them who have gone to live abroad for years look forward to with as much pleasure, and for which they plan such general observance as do they for this of their country's independence. There is that about the associations of the day that takes them back to their old homes "in the States," and which renews in them that love and pride of country which has come to be so characteristic to Americans. shows how great must be the benefits that have come to us through the act which it commemorates, and is but a fit ting tribute to the wisdom of those who framed it, and to the courage of those who upheld it. May the custom of its observance never become obsolete, but rather let it grow till all the world shall justly acknowledge it the greatest of civil holidays.

The parachute was about eighteen feet in diameter and made of cords and strong silk. When the jump was made it was closed and the first 200 feet the aeronaut drooped like a rock. Then as the parachute expanded, the speed became less rapid and the aeronaut and his strange apparatus floated down like a bird. It was a grand sight. The descent was acomplished in three minutes and twenty seconds. Baldwin struck the ground with some force, but not enough to injure him. The descent varied about a quarter of a mile from vertical and the professor struck ground about a mile and a half from the place of ascent.
