With many of us the question of feed for our stock during the winter will soon be determined. That is, we will know reasonably certain just how much feed will be secured from the farm and we will know what to depend upon.

We ought in addition then to determine how many heads of stock of different kinds this will feed and keep in good condition. Not keep alive, but keep growing all winter. It will be far better to determine this question now rather than discover that the supply of feed is giving out and then either be forced to sell or put the stock on short rations until grass comes in the spring.

As a rule it is not a good plan for the farmer to keep more stock than his supply of feed will warrant with the intention or rather the expectation of purchasing feed to help carry them through.

By taking the pains to ascertain the amount of feed you have to depend on as early as possible you have a much better opportunity of disposing of them than in the winter.

Ordinarily stock are in a good condition now and will be while there is a good supply of grass and at present prosif you can see that you have not a sufficsell.

It does not pay to winter stock or attempt to winter it when we know that in the spring than in the fall, simply be- foe than the words "the war of the rebelcause we do not have a sufficient amount lion." The term "confederate soldier" as of feed.

to dispose of some of the stock, and then unpleasant as the bare word "rebel." again there are always a few that ought to be culled out and sold; stock that for various reasons it will not be profitable to winter.

These and all others that we want either to sell or to fatten and market later in can feed and get in as good a condition as possible. Taking one year with anoth- No. The southern newspapers today are weather usually becomes cooler and more food is required to maintain animal heat. So that with stock that we expect to market early it is usually a good plan to commence feeding the latter part of August, gradually increasing the amount until we are feeding all they will cat up clean. This of course applies to stock that we are fattening for market and this is one good reason why I prefer to select out what I expect to keep over reasonably early, at lesst as soon as I can make a fair estimake of the amount of feed I will have and the number of stock I can winter. This fact I always want to know if possible so that I can determine better buried. Let the record of the fratricidal what stock to keep. And the best plan is to be sure and be on the safe side. I find it much better to have a small amount of feed left over rather than be obliged to stint the steck for even a few days and from disgrace. Let treason be made so especially after making a reasonable effort to keep up a good gain all winter. -By.N. J. Shepherd, in Nebraska Farmer.

BETTER COWS.

Take any of the improved breeds of cows and they require no more room either in the stables or in the pasture. They require but little if any more feed political campaign. A number of proor care, and yet many of them will give us a yield for forty quarts of milk while many of the common cows will not at of which one providing for prohibition best average more than ten. The better attracted by far the largest amount of incows cost a little the most and we may in consequence add a larger amount of interest. While of course the best results | was made apparent in the course of the are secured by good feed and care, yet campaign, but as the election held on with the same feed and the same care Thursday proved, the sentiment was not there is a very considerably difference in sufficiently widespread to compel a change the yield. The yield even from a scrub in the policy of the state on the liquor cow can be considerably increased by question. The prohibition amendment giving good feed and care. This is also has been defeated, by what majority has the case whith the better grades and it is not yet been definitely ascertained. This possible to feed to high, that is, to overfeed so that in order to secure an extra quantity of milk or to make an unusual amount of butter we can over feed and to bring about a split in the domihant seriously injure the animal for future use. But there is no need of this. Let the animal be a full-blood, a grade or a scrub, such feed and care should be given as will give us the most profitable results. This is desirable with all the stock kept on the farm.

Then we want stock that when given good feed and care will pay in return the best profit. If good graders will do this better than scrubs we want grades. If full-bloods are better than grades we want full-bloods, keeping in mind the cost. We want a fair per cent. of profit on the money invested and if grades will do this better than full-bloods we want the grades because they cost less. By using good cows selected especially for their qualities as milkers and these are bread to a thoroughbred bull of some of the milk breeds, we can secure cows that in very many respects the average farmer because they cost less and can be one readily secured. They cost no more for feed or require no more care or feed from the pastures, yet they will give a considerable large amount of milk and that of a much better quality and from which a much larger profit can be secured.

The cost of keeping in a great measure is the same. With very many the only difference is the cost of service and care required in the selection, while with a what part of the cows pay us little or no profit. It is hardly good policy to keep on breeding and feeding these. We need to cull out and now is a good time to do this. Such as are not profitable can be economically prepared for market, and there is no question that if a careful test is made quite a number of cows will be found that do not give a sufficient amount of rich milk to pay a fair frofit and such ought to be disposed of as soon as pos sible. - Cor. Journal of Agriculture.

Make Treason More Odious.

If the result of the war of the rebellion established one fact clearer than another it established the fact the states which joined the secession movement were engaged in rebellion; that the men who were responsible for secession were guilty of treason, and that the men who desertpect for crops will sell at fair prices, and | ed their posts as citizens to participate in war were traitors. Hints to Ladies.

Cleanliness demands that ladies occasionally wash their hair. For them to thoroughly dry it at once is compulsory; if they do not, and the water is allowed to dry in the hair, the secretion of the oil glands becomes decomposed, and a sour, extremely ofiensive odor is emitted. To assist in drying long hair after it has been carefully rubbed in towels, finely powdereds tarch can be taken up on a brush and then removed by continued brushing .- Journal of Health.
